Foreign Developments.

The French cabinet decided last night to resign today because the left wing in Parliament had blocked granting to Premier Chautemps of power to deal with financial questions by decree.

Concessions by France on Italo-German demands regarding the foreign fighters in Spain's civil war were announced in the British House of Commons by Prime Minister Chamberlain.—Page 9.

Crisis Over Arms Costs.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, March 9.—The "middle-ground" government of Premier Camille Chautemps tonight decided to resign Thursday because of left-wing opposition to granting the premier decree powers over troubled French finances.

The Radical-Socialist premier said he would address the nation tomorrow morning from the Chamber of Deputies rostrum and then tender his resignation to President Albert Lebrun.

Political observers expected the president to offer the premiership immediately to Leon Blum, head of the First People's Front government, whose Socialist Party holds the largest single bloc of chamber seats.

The resignation decision came during a three-and-a-half hour cabinet session after Socialist and Communist members of the premier's chamber majority created a tense situation by refusing to grant him wide powers he requested to deal with acute financial and economic problems.

Cabinet Lasted 51 Days.

France's rapidly increasing armament needs were blamed for the financial crisis.

Socialists and Communists said they were unable to back Chautemps' request because his plans called for postponement of costly social reforms to which they are pledged.

The cabinet, composed largely of Chautemps' own Radical Socialist Party members, was constituted January 18, succeeding the second People's Front government which Chautemps also headed. It will have lasted 51 days, the 103d government since formation of the third republic.

Its fall came over the same issue, financial decree powers, which forced out Blum in June, 1937.

Behind the new crisis were these main problems facing France:

1. Necessity for borrowing 13,000,000,000 francs ($480,000,000) in 1938 for national defense needs that grow in proportion to the rest of Europe's arms race.

2. Fall of the franc to a new 12-year low.

3. Necessity for increasing production to raise the nation's in-

Austria to Vote Sunday on Rule Of Schuschnigg

Nazi Interior Minister May Quit in Protest of Plebiscite.

By the Associated Press.

Innsbruck, Austria, March 9.—Chancelor Kurt Schuschnigg carried the fight for Austrian independence to his people tonight by calling a national plebiscite Sunday, to test his government's strength.

Reports immediately were heard in Nazi quarters that Arthur Seyss-Inquart, the interior minister taken into the cabinet with Hitler's approval, contemplated resigning as a protest against the plebiscite.

Friends of the minister said he was neither consulted nor informed by Schuschnigg before announcement of the plan.

Leaders of the Fatherland Front—the only legal political organization in Austria—gave Schuschnigg what probably was the greatest ovation of his political career after he declared in an address:

"We shall observe the agreements reached at Berchtesgaden, but we shall make not the slightest additional concession."

Pointedly striking at Nazi agitation for more power, Schuschnigg declared "there must be a clear demarcation, once and for all, between the legal and the illegal."

"We shall not tolerate nationalist threats," he warned. "I cannot ask my supporters to remain quiet if the other side does not do so."

In the plebiscite, Austrians will be asked to vote on whether they are satisfied with the government's program.

Schuschnigg bid for support by declaring "1938 is labor's year." He said Austria's work program will be conducted on a large scale and the labor service will be reconstructed further.

Schuschnigg defended himself against Nazi charges that by seeking the co-operation of labor organizations he was helping to establish a people's front.

Swastika Hoisted.

Linz, Austria (Thursday), March 10 (U.P.).—Austrian Nazis today hoisted the hakenkreuz—swastika—flag over the city hall in defiance of Chancellor Schuschnigg's orders barring display of such flags in the country.

Love Slaying Confessed at Soviet Trial

Ex-Secret Police Head Coveted Actress-Wife of Gorky's Son.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, March 9.—Sex was injected into Moscow's great treason-murder trial tonight with the indication that Genrikh Yagoda, former head of the secret police, was in love with the beautiful film-actress wife of one of the men he confessed killing.

A communique issued at the close of tonight's secret court session said Yagoda had testified he killed Maxim Peshkoff, son of the famous writer, Maxim Gorky, for "personal aims" as well as "conspiratorial aims."

The communique did not mention Yagoda's friendship with blonde Mme. Peshkoff, but the defendant's "personal aims" were interpreted as referring to this.

Court Doors Closed.

Doors were closed on the trial of the 21 confessed plotters today to keep secret details of treasonable dealings with foreign countries.

(Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in the House of Commons in London denied allegations of British espionage made in the Moscow trial. The Russian prisoners named Great Britain, Germany, Poland and Japan as countries with which they had connections.)

The next point in the procedure will be the summing up by Prosecutor Andrei Y. Vishinsky with a demand for death of the prisoners by shooting.

Prayer Proves Guilt.

A scribbled prayer wrapped around a crust of bread was offered as evidence of guilt against A. P. Rosengoltz, former commissar of foreign trade. It was given him by his wife as a talisman and contained a prayer that God arise and scatter his enemies. Rosengoltz, who quailed in face of this apparent evidence of religious tendencies, said his wife had put the talisman in his pocket three months before his arrest to protect him.

Daranyi Revamps Hungary Cabinet For Rearmament

Budapest, Hungary, March 9 (AP).—Premier Koloman Daranyi's cabinet underwent swift reorganization tonight in preparation for an elaborate rearmament and public works program.

The premier threw off armament restrictions of peace treaties and launched the financial and military program he announced at Gyoer last week.

It was stated that Daranyi's purpose in reorganizing the cabinet was to drop ministers who were half-hearted in supporting his new program and to gather about him experts in technical and financial matters.

Jury Is Split In Shooting Of Veteran

3 Hours' Deliberation on Keys' Killing Ends in Deadlock.

Tests Show Nally Fired Fatal Shot; Another Officer Released.

After one of the longest inquest sessions in local history, a coroner's jury late yesterday failed to reach a verdict in the police shooting of Leroy Keys, demented colored World War veteran, and reported a deadlock after nearly three hours of deliberation.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald discharged the jury, announcing a new panel would be drawn and the hearing repeated at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Ballistics tests by Lieut. John Fowler, it was testified, showed that Keys was killed by a bullet from the gun of Policeman John W. Nally, son of Detective Sergt. Thomas Nally and former college football player. Policeman Robert M. Henry, Third Precinct, accused also of firing into the crazed colored man's house, was released as a defendant on Fowler's testimony that his bullet failed to strike the man.

The lengthy inquest—lasting from 11:30 a. m. until the jury announced its failure to agree shortly before 5 p. m.—was attended by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and several ranking police officials.

Keys, 38-year-old former mental patient at St. Elizabeths, Mount Alto, Naval and Gallinger hospitals, was wounded fatally early Tuesday when he ran amok with a butcher knife and set fire to a room in which he had barricaded himself at 2470 Ontario road northwest.

He was shot, according to the stories of policemen who responded to a trouble call, after nearly an hour's efforts to persuade him to leave the house peaceably.

Policeman Nally, testifying in his own behalf, admitted that several scout cars at the scene were equipped with tear gas, but that the gas was not used. Keys, he said, had broken all windows in the room, and tear gas would have had "no effect."

Both Nally and Henry testified they did not intend to kill Keys nor did they take deliberate aim at him.

"We only wanted to scare him into the open," said Nally. "In fact,

U. S. May Take Direct Hand in Rail Finances

Intervention on Bankrupt Lines to Be Weighed at White House.

Direct Government intervention to hasten reorganization of bankrupt railroads may be proposed, it was learned yesterday, at the White House conference President Roosevelt has called next week to consider the entire railroad problem.

The idea, in various forms, has been widely discussed in Administration circles. Some proposals have been for a special railroad reorganization court, a Federal board of transportation and a Federal railroad corporation.

They all have the same purpose; to restore the railroads to financial soundness as soon as possible.

Meanwhile the Southern Railway system, giving concrete evidence yesterday of disappointment with smallness of the freight rate increase granted Tuesday, announced a 10 to 15 per cent cut in pay roll.

"We are discontinuing some Saturday work and spreading work among present employes, also reducing some forces and some salaries," the announcement said.

The report that other roads soon would take similar action was current in railway circles.

Pelley Calls Meeting.

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, said the association's board of directors has been called to meet here tomorrow to "find what can be done."

Pelley also repeated his warning that increased employment and buying by the railroads, which had been anticipated if a 15 per cent increase had been granted, could not now be realized.

The plan for a special railroad reorganization court is reported to have originated with Walter M. W. Splawn, an I. C. C. commissioner. A Federal corporation would be established if a scheme of Government condemnation of bankrupt railroads was utilized.

Senate's Vote On TVA Quiz Is Postponed

Norris Defers Motion Till Roosevelt Talks to Directors Friday.

Galleries Guffaw as Hot Debate Raises Talk of Jackasses.

By Sidney Olson.

The Senate discussed jackasses in great detail yesterday, with no less than four members strongly hinting at the presence of one in the Senate, before deciding to postpone until tomorrow, at least, any action on resolutions for investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

At the suggestion of Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, Senator George W. Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, who conceived the TVA, agreed to defer seeking passage of his resolution for a Federal Trade Commission inquiry into TVA until the three TVA directors have presented their cases to the President tomorrow morning.

Yesterday's debate, which doubled up delighted galleryites in repeated guffaws, was alternately bitter, dramatic and downright funny. The topics ranged from jackasses to Senatorial ethics, from fertilizer to shotgun weddings, from electric ranges to the cost of milk.

It all began when Senator H. Styles Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, coauthor with Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, of a resolution asking a Senatorial investigation of TVA, embarked on a four-hour blast against the widely-criticized project that Senator Norris has hailed as "the fundamental achievement of the New Deal."

"Let the Truth Prevail."

Bridges' speech, reacting on Senator Norris and other friends of the TVA like a cat-o'-nine-tails, again and again lashed them into bitter answers. But the calm New Englander, handling himself with the skill of a veteran, withstood the combined assaults of Senators Norris and Barkley, Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee; Lewis D. Schwellenbach, of Washington; Sherman Minton, of Indiana, and William H. Smathers, of New Jersey (all Democrats but Norris).

Bridges' basic points, to which he returned many times, were his assertions: "Let the truth prevail" and "Don't you Democratic Senators trust Vice President Garner

Tried to Bite Her, Policeman's Wife Avers in Slaying

By the United Press.

New York, March 9.—Mrs. Patricia Ryan today told through bloodless lips a story of her husband, Michael Ryan, a New York policeman, making unnatural advances the night she killed him.

The dark-haired widow did not once refer to the shooting itself—for which the jury may send her to the electric chair.

She told instead of a brief struggle in the bedroom when Ryan supposedly approached her, and she "screamed and started to run."

She said he had been drinking and swore at her and "kicked" Michael, one of their two children, into bed. She said after they retired Ryan "grabbed me and went to bite me."

"I jumped out of bed," she said "I began pleading with him to stop. I couldn't stand the disgrace."

It was after that, she said, that "something snapped" and the next thing she remembered was someone telling her to "look at my husband."

"He was lying face up on the floor," she said. "I can see his face staring at me."

Decisive Non-Record Vote Defeats Move of Roosevelt.

Leaders Postpone Action on Measure

Lower Body Adjourns in Search for New Revenue.

By Robert C. Albright.

Abrupt adjournment of the House and a new search for Federal revenue was forced yesterday when the chamber in two decisive nonrecord votes turned thumbs down on Administration proposals for punitive taxation of closely held corporations.

Caught off guard by overwhelming rejection of the so-called "third basket" tax, leaders postponed further action on the tax revision bill while Ways and Means Committee Democrats discussed strategy in emergency session.

At 6 p. m. the committee conference adjourned without reaching agreement on proposals for making up the $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 estimated revenue hole caused by elimination of the penalty provision.

Warnings Fail.

Warnings that either the President will veto the tax bill or Congress must raise depleted revenue failed to halt members in their rush to wipe the controversial punitive provision from the bill.

They followed the leadership of Representative John W. McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, a Ways and Means Committee member, but an outstanding opponent of the tax. On a standing count, members voted 165 to 125 for the McCormack amendment to strike out the penalty. A teller vote was ordered, and members this time voted 180 to 124 against the tax.

Shortly afterward, Chairman Robert L. Doughton, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, moved to shut off further consideration of the bill until today. He called Democratic committeemen in special session, where for two hours today's procedure was discussed.

No Agreement.

This meeting adjourned without final agreement, but it was indicated the House may continue consideration of the bill today without any alternative proposals submitted by the committee.

Leaders apparently were mustering all possible strength for a final roll call showdown on the penalty proposal today, with Administration backing.

It was learned that the following alternative means of meeting possible losses in revenue were broached at the committee meeting, with wide disagreement on each:

A raise in the proposed undivided profits tax from a 16 to 20 per cent range to a graduated 17 to 21 per cent. The committee was told this would raise $63,000,000, double the amount believed heeded.

An increase in the undivided profits tax to a top of 22½ per cent.

An increase in Federal liquor taxes from the present $2 per gallon, to $2.25 per gallon, to raise an estimated $35,000,000.

Restoration of a long list of nuisance taxes repealed in the pending bill, to raise an estimated $30,000,000.

Individual Objections.

There were individual objections to each of these proposals, but Representative A. Willis Robertson (Democrat), of Virginia, announced he is going to put his own plan for a 25-cent-per-gallon increase in liquor taxes to a test in the House today.

Neither Representative McCormack, nor Representative Arthur P. Lamneck (Democrat), of Ohio, who joined in the assault on the

Whitney Takes Responsibility Of Firm Failure

Ex-Stock Exchange Head Assumes Blame for Wrongdoings.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 9.—Richard Whitney, five times president of the New York Stock Exchange, assumed full responsibility today for the failure of his brokerage firm and admitted wrongdoing in the transactions which led to the firm's collapse.

His statement followed the testimony of Robert J. Rosenthal, the firm's cashier, who declared Whitney, without authorization, so far as he knew, had caused to be turned over to him large blocks of securities belonging to others, without notification to them.

Attorney General John J. Bennett, in Albany, after being apprised of Whitney's statement, said the investigation by his office would be pushed to the fullest limit. Public hearings will be continued tomorrow, with further examination of Whitney's partners by Assistant Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall.

District Lagging Behind States By Requiring Trial for Insane

(This is the last of a series of five articles designed to throw light on new methods for treatment of mental illness and the size of the "insanity problem" in the United States. Today's article points to needed changes in lunacy laws of the District.)

Is mental illness a problem for the medical profession, or for the legal profession?

The answer would seem to be self-evident. In the District of Columbia, however, the law is that a mental patient must come into criminal court and answer to a charge of insanity before a jury—before he can be admitted to a hospital for treatment.

Although this was a common practice years ago—when insanity was judged not so much as a disease that might be cured as a lifelong sentence to an asylum—47 States of the Union have abolished the mandatory jury trial.

Only the District and Mississippi have retained the law which the Public Health Service terms "a strangely archaic legal phenomenon."

Since early treatment of mental disease is more important than almost any other phase of mental disturbance work, the legal barrier is considered probably the greatest hindrance to effective treatment in the District today.

"No legal barrier to early treatment could be better planned than the obligatory trial by jury," declares the report of the Public

Woodring Says U. S. Is Arming To Prevent War

Couples Armed Strength and Greater Trade for Defense.

Chicago, March 9.—Secretary of War Woodring said tonight another world war would "prove universally disastrous—to victor, to vanquished and to neutral."

The United States, like other nations, he told members of the Commercial Club, is building its defense, but at the same time is moving to preserve peace by rebuilding world trade.

"We are witnessing a swift increase in international political tension," he said, in a prepared address. "We observe a recrudescence of military spirt, which sees no goal in life except triumph by force.

Trade Is Best Defense.

"The clouds that gather on the international horizon are a threat, not only to our peace, but also to our own economic and political security. Another world war would endanger civilization."

The United States is engaged in a major program designed to strengthen national defenses, the Secretary stated, in the hope a powerful army and navy would discourage any military attack. He adde:

"However, our national defense is not confined to our military and naval establishments. A major factor in the preservation of peace and security is the maintenance of cordial business relations with all the world.

"Viewing the world scene, I am deeply convinced that the removal of excessive trade barriers and the restoration of normal processes of international commerce offer the most satisfactory basis for a return to a stable structure of business, of peace and of democratic government itself.

Lauds Hull Aims.

"Economic distress quickly translates itself into social instability and political unrest," he said. "It opens the way for the demagogue and the agitator, foments internal strife and frequently leads to the rise of tyrannical dictatorships. It breeds international friction, fear, envy and resentment and destroys the foundations of world peace."

But the lowering of tariffs and the encouragement of trade between nations, he asserted, would increase business and lessen the impetus toward conflict.

Secretary of State Hull is attempting to restore international commerce, he said, through reciprocal trade agreements.

"As an ever-growing number of nations join with us in the determination to establish a more stable and saner international economic order," Woodring continued, "we believe international tension will be lessened, international conflicts will be less likely to occur, and the foundations will be laid for a more enduring peace."

Politics and People

TVA Mess Typifies Weakness of Roosevelt as Administrator of the New Deal.

By Franklyn Waltman

President Roosevelt at last—at long last, it might be said—indicates he intends to take a firm hand in the internecine warfare which has been tearing the Tennessee Valley Authority apart and rendering it an impotent agency.

WALTMAN.

Except that it is characteristic of Mr. Roosevelt, it is amazing that he has permitted the controversy among the three TVA members to reach its present stage, where it verges upon a public scandal and makes a thorough-going Congressional investigation of that agency imperative. Mr. Roosevelt must have known for a long time what is now being revealed to the public.

The President disclosed himself that he had knowledge of the controversy last September. His only action was to suggest that Chairman Arthur E. Morgan cease saying sharp things about his colleagues and try to work in harmony with them. But he also must have had knowledge of this controversy almost two years ago when he reappointed, over Chairman Morgan's opposition, David Lilienthal as a member for nine more years. Even a novice in politics would know that after Mr. Lilienthal was intrenched in his job, against the background of all that had gone before, the situation would grow immeasurably worse.

But Mr. Roosevelt has an inability to face up to such situations until he positively must. This TVA mess—and it is that, without any effort to say who is right or wrong—is typical of the weakness of the New Deal. That weakness is and always has been in administration. When administration breaks down—as it so frequently has during the New Deal—the President has not the heart to throw anyone out.

Although there are a number of very capable men in the New Deal, it reeks with incompetence, from the Cabinet down. As Senator George W. Norris says, the TVA is one of the New Deal keystones. At best it was an experiment, albeit one that appealed to the imaginations of many people and angered many others. Any idea, no matter how good, can be wrecked by maladministration and now that seems to be the fate destined for TVA.

It is doubtful whether Mr. Roosevelt can save the reputation of TVA by his White House conference tomorrow, unless he throws out all three directors, names new ones and orders the reorganization of that agency. Even though most of the charges and counter-charges which have centered around the TVA are fanciful, it will take a Congressional inquiry to revive public trust and confidence in that undertaking.

If these charges are untrue, then a Congressional airing of them will do no harm. If they are true, remedial steps can be taken to eliminate abuses and reorganize the project. This is a job for Congress. It cannot be done by the Federal Trade Commission. Indeed one agency answerable to the President should not be asked to investigate another agency answerable to the President. There is no precedent for such a proposal and it would be unsound public policy to establish such a precedent.

Moreover, there are elements present in this situation particularly the concern of Congress which it should want to investigate itself. For instance, a member of the Senate is involved in connection with a claim against TVA that has been characterized as an effort to defraud the Government.

At least we know that in the view of a three-man impartial Federal commission the claim has no commercial value. But that should not close the incident. A question of ethics and propriety remains about which the Federal Trade Commission cannot speak. As a matter of policy Congress should prescribe a standard for all Government agencies regarding the propriety of entertaining privately, and without publicity, personal claims of members of Congress.

Still another question that the Federal Trade Commission could not handle has to do with charges that after almost five years the TVA production of fertilizer—one of the major purposes of the legislation—remains in an "embryonic experimental stage." At a time when American agricultural products, notably cotton, are facing the stiffest competition abroad in all history, low cost fertilizer becomes a subject of vital importance to this Nation—more important than cheap power.

Yet for some reason that part of the TVA program has been neglected. It has been placed exclusively under the jurisdiction of the 70-year-old Harcourt Morgan, while control over the public power aspects of the project have been handled exclusively by the youthful, energetic Lilienthal. Chairman Arthur Morgan was placed in charge of dam building. Under this arrangement, Mr. Lilienthal has done as he pleased about electrical power, and Harcourt Morgan has done as he pleased about the fertilizer end of the project—which, apparently, has not been much.

Fundamentally this division of authority within the TVA is at the bottom of the present difficulties. Instead of trustees or directors of the project, these three men have become administrators of various parts of it—responsible to no one but themselves. As Walter Lippmann so well expressed it, "they are a triumvirate, each supreme in his own province, each making his own policies, each the judge of his performance" so that "the board which was supposed to represent Congress, does not represent it; for it is composed of men who pass on their own actions . . . there is no board which is free or able to control the enterprise as a whole."

It may be suggested that the board is responsible to Congress. But that always is a slim reed on which to rely, until something like the present situation develops. Why, Congressional leaders do not even bother to read the Comptroller General's reports of irregularities in the TVA and other agencies. Even though that official on January 3—three months ago—filed with Congress his report containing references to irregularities in TVA accounts totaling $15,000,000, Senate Democratic Leader Barkley in the debate on Tuesday clearly indicated he knew nothing about such disclosures until he learned about them in the press that day. Indeed, he suggested the Comptroller General had released the report the previous day in order to embarrass TVA.

Anyway, men with widespread experience in Government and public administration tell me that the division of authority within a board of several members never works out successfully and should not be permitted. Let Congress remedy that defect in TVA—which would dethrone Mr. Lilenthal as a power dictator—and it will go far toward meeting the present difficulties.

Commercial Banks Decreased to 14,741

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board yesterday said the number of commercial banks in the United States decreased 227 last year to 14,741. Since 1933, the decline has been 1,502.

Fifty-eight banks failed, 53 were liquidated voluntarily, and 187 were eliminated by consolidations, conversions into branches and in other ways. These decreases were offset in part by the organization of 60 new banks, the reopening of 601, and the conversion of five private banks into commercial banks.

Housing Body To Allott All Its Funds to Cities

Remaining $200,000,000 to Go to Earmarked Slum Clearance Projects.

By the Associated Press.

Administrator Nathan Straus announced yesterday that the United States Housing Authority would allot the remaining $200,000,000 of its funds to "earmarked" loans for slum clearance and low-cost housing projects.

The move, he said, would permit the Housing Authority to put all of the $500,000,000 authorized by Congress behind the housing program.

At the same time, he said, he would take to the White House, probably next Monday, a number of contracts calling for immediate disbursement of cash loans. When approved by the President, they would be the first put to work by cities applying for Government funds.

50 Cities to Get Aid.

Straus said the authority to date had earmarked a total of $168,445,000.

Funds already earmarked cover 50 cities in 19 States. He said he expected the balance of the first $300,000,000 to be taken up in requests for funds now on file.

"The object of my action in extending earmarkings to include the last $200,000,000, not hitherto tapped," he said, "is twofold. In the first place it will enable the cities to make their plans now on the basis of a complete three-year program.

Will Boost Building.

"More important still, this action will substantially increase the amount of actual construction to be started within the next few months by enabling us to enter into a larger volume of loan contracts now."

He pointed out, for example, that while New York City alone wanted $39,000,000 in loans, the Authority had been able to earmark but $18,000,000, and that Philadelphia, requesting $20,000,000, has received only $12,000,000.

By using the entire $500,000,000 now, instead of spreading it over several years, Straus said he would be able to increase the earmarkings for all applicants for housing loans.

"Build America" Plan.

By the Associated Press.

Representatives of the "Build America" movement—organized in Cleveland to enlist private capital in the constructive field and increase employment—claimed Presidential indorsement for their campaign yesterday.

After a White House conference, James C. Caffrey, of Cleveland, head of the drive, quoted the President as saying "this will start things."

Senator Bulkley and Representative Sweeney, Ohio Democrats, were in the group calling at the White House.

Cotton Payment Under Farm Act Voided by Elliott

By the Associated Press.

R. N. Elliott, acting Comptroller General, declared inoperative yesterday a provision of the new farm act directing immediate payment of about $10 a bale to growers who surrendered title to loan cotton to the Government.

In an opinion requested by the Agriculture Department, the Comptroller General said Congress had not provided funds for such payments. He added that the expenditure could not be made out of the $130,000,000 fund appropriated last fall for "price-adjustment" payments.

The AAA announced, after receipt of Elliott's opinion, that it would proceed with arrangements made last fall for payment of the "price-adjustment" subsidy at a tentative maximum rate of 3 cents a pound on 65 per cent of each grower's base cotton production.

Vandenberg Asks Boost of RFC Funds for Industrial Loans; Would Aid Farms.

An increase from $300,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 in the amount of Reconstruction Corporation funds available for industrial loans was proposed yesterday by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan. He introduced an amendment to the existing law which he said would authorize the increase "specifically to make the new resources available for the immediate development of and greater industrial use of farm commodities."

The Michigan Senator declared that increased use of farm commodities provided "the largest and the most practical and most effective opportunity" for farm relief and unemployment relief.

A Congressional investigation of what he termed the Treasury's "diversion" of $1,569,000,000 from the social security reserve fund to "finance New Deal spending" was demanded yesterday by Representative Shafer (Republican), of Michigan. He introduced a resolution authorizing the Speaker of the House to name a committee of nine to conduct the inquiry.

Shafer asserted that although the Treasury had collected $1,662,000,000 from workers and employers in pay roll taxes under the social security act in the past 14 months, less than $100,000 had been paid to those "insured against the hazards of old age.

Robert Hula, of Chicago, speaking for the iron and steel manufacturers of his district, told a Senate committee that their approval of the Pettengill bill to repeal the long and short haul clause in the I. C. C. act would determine whether midcontinental steel producers increase employment or "further curtail production." F. B. McElroy, of the Illinois Commerce Commission, said his State also favored the bill, as did Lowe P. Siddons, of Colorado Springs, Colo., who represented Western beet sugar interests.

Senator Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia proposed yesterday that the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce inquire into the Nation's wire communications. An official version of Minister Hirota's speech issued in Tokyo by the Japanese foreign office, the Associated Press reported, after King had made his announcement quoted Hirota as saying, "American-born Japanese are in a very disadvantageous position owing to circumstances of their environment. Receivers Scored In Wabash Deals

By the Associated Press.

Senate investigators contended yesterday that receivers of the Wabash Railway Co. had used Government loans to promote the interests of stockholders as against the owners of other classes of securities.

Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, said that evidence before the Senate Railroad Finance Committee showed the Reconstruction Finance Coporation had "put tapayers' money into a program that was inconsistent with the fundamental objects of a railroad receivership."

Frank C. Nicodemus, coreceiver of the Wabash, and A. K. Atkinson, treasurer for the receivers, denied that the underlying bond interest was paid in order to promote the interests of the junior security holders.

Senator Backs D. C. Gambling, Woman Says

Rep. Sacks Tells Pine of 'Tip' Given Him, But Can't Find Source.

Representative Leon Sacks (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, and District Attorney David A. Pine last night were seeking a woman, "dark haired and stocky," who said she knew a certain Senator is protecting Washington's numbers racket and is being paid $3,000 a year for the job.

She dropped in on a hearing on a bill to strengthen District gambling laws yesterday, dropped snatches of her secret in one of Representative Sacks' ears and then disappeared with the only clew to her identity Sacks' remembrance of the somewhat athletic lines of her figure and the color of her hair.

Rushes Up to Pine.

The Pennsylvania Democrat, who during the hearing had suggested gambling in the District be legalized, rushed up to Pine, who was sitting with Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and Superintendent of Police Maj. Ernest W. Brown. Said Sacks:

"A woman just told me she had evidence a Senator is getting $3,000 a month to protect the numbers racket. Why don't you take her before the grand jury?"

The District officials looked embarrassed for a minute and then with a chuckle responded:

"Sure we will. Where is she?"

Sacks looked hurriedly around the room and in the corridors and then announced she had disappeared. He said she was dark-haired and of stocky build.

Pine Only Witness.

Pine was the only witness at the hearing, which marked the culmination of a long campaign to bring the anti-numbers bill before the full House District Committee over the opposition of its chairman, Representative Palmisano (Democrat), of Maryland.

The United States attorney indorsed the measure but suggested several amendments, chiefly aimed at enabling the prosecutor and the police to catch the promoters of the game.

He opened his testimony with the admission there is considerable gambling in private homes, such as bridge and poker, which the police never disturb. The numbers racket, he added, has a social significance, however.

At one point he admitted under questioning that bingo and keno are gambling and are in violation of the District laws.

Several of the committee members suggested that the bill be amended so as to provide a mandatory jail sentence.

Fines Objection.

"Otherwise," said Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, "they'll consider the fines just a license fee for doing business."

Palmisano and Sacks both criticized the measure on the ground that it would penalize the "little fellow" and fail to catch the promoters, some of whom it was said operate from nearby Maryland or Virginia.

The hearing will be resumed at 10 a. m. this morning in the caucus room of the Old House Office Building.

In the meantime, vice squad detectives arrested a colored man in a shoe shine parlor in the 1200 block New Jersey avenue northwest, and charged him with operating a lottery.

The suspect gave his name as Frederick Nash, colored, 26, 1500 block Fifteenth street northwest. He pleaded not guilty and was held for the grand jury when he was taken before United States Commissioner Turnage. Bond of $500 was asked for his release.

Seven other persons were arrested in the raid but were released to appear as witnesses against Nash.

Theft of Dark Chickens Brings Dark Days for 2

Sunday was a dark day for Gordon H. Taylor, colored, 25, and John Cotes, colored, 26, but yesterday was even darker.

According to testimony in Police Court yesterday, Taylor and Cotes were picked up Sunday on Douglas road southeast. They carried a bag containing nine chickens, all black, police said. They explained they had bought and paid for the birds, but investigation revealed several chicken thefts from residents of the vicinity.

Judge Edward M. Curran sentenced the men to 60 days apiece.

Ickes Referees Cabbie's Battle With Chauffeur

Secretary Separates Them in Traffic Dispute in Front of Mayflower.

Secretary Ickes, whose midday meal was delayed yesterday while he mediated a fist fight between his chauffeur and a taxicab driver, accepted the interlude philosophically. It was just "one of those interminable traffic difficulties," he stated.

The Secretary's version: He was going from the Department of the Interior Building to a Connecticut avenue restaurant when the congested condition of the street at Connetcicut avenue and L began engaging his thoughts. He was very attentive to how crowded the avenue was and how slowly the cabs were moving in front of the Mayflower Hotel.

He was jarred from the reflection by the mild impact of his car's front bumper against the rear bumper of a cab. His chauffeur got out of the car, and the taxi driver got out of his cab. The Secretary's car and the cab were locked, front bumper to rear bumper.

The chauffeur and the taxi driver began arguing and "one word led to another." Fists began flying and the two men, Leo Jones, colored, the chauffeur, and Woodrow Reeves, 45, of 1855 Mintwood place northwest, the cab driver, embraced violently and fell between the two locked cars.

The Secretary looked around for a policeman, and seeing none, sprang from his car to separate the combatants. At this moment Policeman C. S. Kalin approached.

Kalin's version: He noticed a crowd gathering and traffic being tied up. He didn't know whether they were engaged in violent encounter or whether they were trying to pry the locked cars part. They were up when he reached them, and he regarded the whole thing as a traffic difficulty.

Both drivers were asked to go to the Third Precinct Station to make a report, but the Secretary identified himself and said he would be responsible for his chauffeur's appearance when summoned, Kalin said that ended the matter.

Man Strangles Self in Cell as He Waits Trial

Victor C. May, 27, strangled himself with a pair of pajamas yesterday at the District jail after he had awaited trial on a forgery charge since September 20.

He was found lying dead upon the floor of his cell in solitary confinement by a guard making his rounds at 3:45 p. m. He had been seen alive by the guard at 3:10.

He had returned Tuesday from his second visit to Gallinger hospital for mental observation. He had been taken there December 13. Previously he had been observed from October 21 to November 12. Both times he was returned to the jail as of "sound mind."

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy District coroner, issued a certificate of suicide. May had been pronounced dead by Dr. C. C. Kissinger, interne at the jail, at 3:55 p. m.

Two prisoners in an adjoining cell said they heard sounds from May's cell, but thought he was ill. They paid little attention since May had been sent to solitary confinement in a basement cell because he continually yelled and created a disturbance.

May was arrested on September 14 for passing a forged check of $333. September 20 the grand jury indicted him on a charge of forgery and uttering.

David A. Pine, United States Attorney for the District, said last night that he had asked repeatedly to have May brought to trial. Each time, he said, he was told that if May stood trial he would have to be brought to court in a straitjacket.

John W. Jackson, Assistant United State Attorney assigned to the case, said that because of May's mental illness, he believed that the man should be turned over to authorities in Virginia, where he made his legal residence. Clarence W. Geiger, deportation officer of the Board of Public Welfare, had been negotiating with Virginia officials in an attempt to have May committed to an institution in that State.

Bandit Victims Fail to Identify 173 in Cleanup

Rep. Schulte Is in Group Called to View Those Seized in Raids.

With Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), Indiana, among the 70 spectators, all victims in holdups, 172 colored men rounded up in the past few days, appeared in a line-up at Police Headquarters last night.

None of the prisoners was identified, although Schulte said that one of them resembled one of the bandits who held him up last week near his home.

Schulte watched carefully during the two hours in which the prisoners were paraded across the screened-in platform with the bright lights beating down on them. There were so many prisoners that police were forced to line them up in the corridors to await their turn to appear on the platform. Then most of them were released.

165 Victims Invited.

At the conclusion, Schulte, the last to leave, told reporters that he considered the facilities for conducting such affairs to be inadequate. He said that he believed the Commissioners should hire quarters elsewhere for use in parading prisoners for identification.

Although 165 victims of holdups and pocketbook snatchings had been invited to attend the line-up, only about 70 appeared.

Continuing their mass roundup of colored persons suspected of taking part in the District's recent crime wave, police yesterday picked up 45 men in the Second Precinct, bringing the total number of arrests in the three-day drive to 143.

Among the men held was Charles Robinson, 23, who has allegedly confessed to 15 armed robberies. Robinson was brought back to Washington from Philadelphia last week. Police said Robinson is the brother of a man shot to death several weeks ago in a liquor store holdup at Sherman avenue and Harvard street.

Started Raids Monday.

Yesterday's raids, led by Lieut. Nelson Holmes, concentrated on cafes and hangouts in the Second Precinct, although some of the suspects were picked up on the street.

Police began the roundup Monday when the "pick-up" squad took 45 into custody and the robbery squad arrested 22 more.

Tuesday night, 30 suspects were taken on T street northwest, between the 1100 and 1800 blocks, and in a poolroom in the 600 block.

Before last night's lineup, all 143 were detained in the "bullpen" at Police Headquarters, which can comfortably accommodate about 50.

Meanwhile, five men seized Tuesday when police raided the Printers' Literary Club, 1306 I street northwest, were arraigned in Police Court and before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

The gambling cases also were continued, and were set for hearing March 24. Defense counsel contested the validity of the warrant used by the raiders.

Painless Drug Lures Many to Dentist's Chair

New Gas - Desensitizing Method Outlined to Dental Clinic.

It isn't laughing gas any more!

That anaesthetic, associated with the dentist's chair for decades since grandfather's day, has been modernized so that the patient remains conscious, but oblivious to pain while drills grind close to sensitive nerves and forceps extract infected teeth, Dr. James F. Henegan, of New York, told the closing session of the Five-State Dental Clinic at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday.

"Already the new method of administering nitrous-oxide-oxygen is luring tens of thousands of timid persons to take treatment for dental defects," Dr. Henegan said.

Method Demonstrated.

He demonstrated his new gas-desensitizing method at one of the 74 clinics and exhibitions which ended the convention, greatest in the history of the Five-State Clinic here.

"There is no reason to fear the dentist's chair today, even if the patient is too sensitive to submit to local anaesthetic, or has an infection, so that the needle administering the local anaesthetic cannot be inserted into the gum tissue," explained Dr. Henegan.

Yesterday's 74 clinics covered every phase of dentistry. They also illustrated plastic surgery and the work plastic surgeons do in co-operation with dentists to restore normalcy to faces injured by accident or disease.

Dr. Albert E. Moran, noted Washington surgeon, and his associate, Dr. Michael DeVoe, used several living models to show the work they had done with faces marred by mishap and disease.

Clinics Listed.

Among yesterday's clinics were those on oral tumors, by Dr. E. Eugene Covington; the surgical treatment of pyorrhea, by Dr. J. C. Wilcoxen, of St. Mary's, W. Va.; oral syphilis, by Dr. H. M. Robinson, and the relation of children's first teeth upon the permanent teeth which come in later life by Lieut. Col. Leigh C. Fairbank.

Kennedy Enters Race for Governor

Harrisburg, Pa., March 9 (AP).—Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy announced his candidacy today for the Democratic nomination for Governor, with the backing of C. I. O. Chief John L. Lewis, his long-time friend in the United Mine Workers.

Kennedy appointed Edward N. Jones, former WPA administrator in Pennsylvania, and close friend of Senator Joseph F. Guffey, as his publicity director.

Kennedy's entry, expected for weeks, brought four candidates into the field for the Democratic nomination, including Charles Alvin Jones, of Pittsburgh; Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti and former Mayor William N. McNair, of Pittsburgh.

Southwest Hails First Lady At Great Mother-in-Law Fete

By the Associated Press.

Amarillo, Tex., March 9.—The high cattle country acclaimed mothers-in-law today in a resplendent all-day celebration, with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as the guest of honor.

Five States joined in staging a 12-mile-long parade, which Mrs. Roosevelt reviewed after she was presented with the world's largest bouquet—5,000 matched roses which, with their framework and irrigation system, weighed a ton. Five Southwest Governors attended.

Addressing Gene Howe, Amarillo newspaper publisher who originated mother-in-law day five years ago, Mrs. Roosevelt said: "I am so happy to be honored in this manner. I am afraid I haven't been a very good mother-in-law because I have never thought a great deal about it.

"My relations with relatives have been somewhat on a friendship basis, but I feel I shall think more about mothers-in-law after this."

Howe's mother-in-law, Mrs. Nellie Donald, whose objections to a joke he wrote in his column led to inauguration of mother-in-law day five years ago, said, "This is the happiest day in my life."

The celebration attracted by far the largest crowd—an estimated 125,000 persons—ever to assemble in Amarillo.

In the parade was a ship-shaped float on which rode nearly 600 mothers-in-law. Fifty bands, dozens of Army officers and enlisted men, highway patrolmen from Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma, 50 plains sheriffs, Indians and hundreds of cowhands added color to the parade.

Mrs. Roosevelt gave a lecture tonight before leaving for Albuquerque, N. Mex.

House Rejects Tax Move for Family Firms

Tax

closely held corporation penalty, would admit that elimination of the penalty would result in any substantial loss in revenue.

"The loss, if any, would be insignificant compared to the $1,000,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 loss we are going to take anyway unless industrial earnings are speedily revived," commented Lamneck.

The abrupt adjournment of the House, following defeat of the "third basket" levy, brought excited inquiries from Republican leaders, who demanded explanations of Democratic intentions, but did not get them.

'Sent Word to Quit.'

"Someone sent them word to quit," insisted Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, assistant Republican leader. "They had planned to pass the bill today."

Chairman Doughton denied the White House had intervened. Ways and Means Democrats were told that House leaders felt the committee should agree on a course of action, before the House was allowed to vote on a host of alternative methods of raising revenue.

Doughton did not deny he was in telephonic communication with the White House later in the day, and reports persisted that the 74-year-old committee chairman would be called into conference by the President last night or this morning.

The so-called "1B" or "third basket" penalty section of the bill rejected yesterday would impose a surtax of 20 per cent on family-type corporations, or those controlled by ten or fewer persons. This surtax would be in addition to "normal" taxes imposed on other corporations.

Administration Rebuffed.

Only corporations which earned over $75,000 and failed to pay out substantial dividends would be affected. No closely held corporation that paid out over approximately 57 per cent of its earnings in dividends would be hit by the tax.

Defeat came as a direct rebuff to the Administration, as the proposal had the backing of both White House and Treasury. But Capitol sentiment was widespread against it, and an overwhelming majority of the Senate Finance Committee in a poll made by The Post had registered opposition. McCormack commented that Senate committee opposition recorded in this poll was a "contributing factor" in the House vote.

"The House rejected it because it was discriminatory, punitive, and an attack on a type of our business that needs to be encouraged, not discouraged—the independent, medium-sized business man," said McCormack.

Doughton Reconciled.

Doughton accepted the defeat good-humoredly. "This is a good bill without 1-B," the committee chairman said. "I have no criticism to make of the House or any individual member of the House.

But earlier the rugged committee chairman told members the bill faced possible veto if the provision was eliminated.

"If we strike out 1-B," he told members, "one of two things stares us in the face, to substitute an additional amount of revenue by increasing other taxes, or to have the bill fall short of meeting the request of the President.

"If it did not create an equal amount of revenue and meet the request of the President the bill would be vetoed, and in my opinion should be vetoed, because we need every dollar that can be raised under this bill."

"Party Politics" Charged.

Criticism by Doughton of McCormack and Lamneck for keeping "company with Republicans" in opposing the penalty, brought a hot retort from McCormack. The Massachusetts Democrat accused Doughton of "injecting party politics" in the discussion, and defended his own "loyalty" on other Administration measures.

Representative Fred Vinson (Democrat), of Kentucky, chairman of the Ways and Means tax subcommittee, told members the "President is unequivocally and whole-heartedly in favor of removing the discrimination between closely-held and widely-held corporations."

The ostensible purpose of the "third basket" levy when first proposed was to prevent tax avoidance by individuals who permit corporate surplus to accumulate rather than pay themselves dividends which could be reached by income surtaxes. Opponents said this purpose was "exploded" when the Treasury admitted only one out of ten of the companies affected apparently used surplus for this purpose.

Jury Absolves Policeman in Killing

Policeman R. W. Henry (seated) was absolved of blame by a coroner's jury in the slaying of Leroy Keys, 38-year-old demented war veteran. Henry holds a butcher knife with which Keys had threatened policemen. The jury failed to decide in the case of Policeman John W. Nally (inset) and another hearing date was set. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald is the third man shown at the hearing.

Inquest

I couldn't even see him when I shot."

Each policeman fired two shots into the house, the jury was told, but no guns were drawn until the enraged Keys had ignited draperies with a flaming torch of newspapers. Several other persons were in the house, it was testified, and the officers feared for their safety.

When Henry explained that tear gas was not used because air entering the smashed windows would nullify its effect, a member of the jury asked:

"Isn't it the same kind of gas that's used in the open to disperse mobs?"

"I'm not an expert on the subject," responded Henry, adding that he had never been instructed in the use of tear gas.

Neighbor Testifies.

Long before policemen arrived, said Henry B. Jackson, occupant of an apartment in the Keys' house, the crazed Keys came to his door carrying a butcher knife and demanded entrance.

"When I went to the door, Leroy said he wanted to talk to me," Jackson testified. "I told him I wasn't dressed and he said 'The Japs are coming—they're going to take over the city.'"

A few minutes later, according to statements of witnesses, Keys wandered into the street, still carrying the knife. It was then that he was seen by Policemen Henry and John W. Lewis, who were passing in a scout car.

Keys turned, they said, and ran into the house, locking the door behind him.

During subsequent attempts to force him from the barricaded room, Keys hurled wrenches, hammers, other tools and books through the windows, each object aimed at a policeman who happened to be in range.

When one officer reached in a window to grab him, according to testimony, Keys slashed at his arm with a knife.

"I'll kill myself if you try to take me—but first I'll kill you," Keys was quoted as shouting.

When his sister, Lottie Mitchell, tried to reason with the raging man, he reportedly screamed:

"The Germans are after me. I fought them once and I'll fight them again."

After Nally and Henry fired into the house, Keys apparently staggered to an upstairs bedroom, where he was found dead, a bullet through his chest. The blazing draperies and fire in an overstuffed chair were extinguished by firemen.

Dr. Marion L. Compton, chief of the psychiatric division of the Veterans Administration, testified Keys was discharged from the Navy in 1919 and sent to St. Elizabeths Hospital. He read from records showing that the man had been treated for dementia praecox at other institutions.

After the jury failed to agree, Nally, who had been in technical custody, was released to appear at tomorrow's inquest.

Heart Disease His Topic.

Georgetown University will bring its first series of weekly Public Health Forums to a close tonight at 8:30 o'clock in Gaston Hall, when Dr. James Esler, who is professor of clinical cardiology at the Georgetown School of Medicine, will deal with the most suitable employment for persons inflicted with weakened hearts.

CHARLES R. DENNY.

Charles Denny Kills Self Over Blindness Fears

Charles R. Denny, 52, retired wholesale wallpaper dealer, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling carbon monoxide gas in the garage of his home at 2929 Woodland drive northwest.

Relatives said threatened blindness had made him despondent.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Denny had lived in Washington for the past 30 years. He went into the wall paper business with his father, and at the time of his retirement last year operated a store at 639 New York avenue northwest.

Mr. Denny was a Mason and a member of the Rotary Club. Besides his son, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Walter L. Denny; his daughter, Miss Dorothy Byrd Denny, and his sister, Miss Mary Denny.

Senate Puts Off Action on TVA Investigation

TVA

to name a fair committee to investigate the TVA."

The latter suggestion somehow aroused Senator McKellar to almost aploplectic spasms of fury, so that he clawed the air as if reaching for words. In one of these moments he shouted:

"The Senator makes such utterly unfounded, such completely——" (and as he stuttered for a word, Senator Barkley, laughing, leaned over and whispered audibly "diabolical") "such diabolical charges that have no foundatoin whatever of fact . . ." and shouting incoherently, sank into his seat.

Bridges answered: "We don't raise jackasses in New Hampshire. We leave that to the Pacific Coast, particularly the State of Washington. In that connection, I might recall to the Senator that the emblem of the Democratic Party is, of course, the jackass."

"Stealth" is Denied.

Dramatic moments came when Bridges denied that he had introduced his resolution by "stealth," as Norris had charged, and further when he recalled that Norris, ten years ago, had opposed FTC investigation of the utilities in favor of a Senate investigation. Bridges shouted:

"I take the same position the Senator from Nebraska took ten years ago. Let the truth prevail. Let us not have a whitewash, with one Federal agency, responsible to the President, investigating another Federal agency, likewise responsible, but an out-in-the-open Senate investigation."

Norris repeatedly took the floor to urge his own good faith in seeking an FTC investigation. But much of the argument during the day centered around whether Bridges should be a member of a Senate investigating committee. After Bridges denounced TVA as "a rotten institution," Norris asserted that it was on that very basis he had sought impartial outside investigation, because "neither friends nor enemies of the TVA should investigate it."

FTC Held Too Slow.

Both Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, and Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, declared FTC investigations would be too slow. Vandenberg charged:

"In ordinary circumstances, when mere factual explorations is involved, I would favor a Federal Trade Commission inquiry. But when Chairman Arthur E. Morgan of the TVA, responsible head of a great half-billion dollar institution, charges 'lack of honesty,' the situation has totally changed since the day Senator Norris introduced his resolution."

Bridges piled up a serious indictment of the TVA during his four-hour address, but his more serious charges in the main went unanswered, as the Democrats focused their attack on the lighter phases of his assaults.

But action of any sort, by general agreement, was postponed until results of the White House conference, scheduled for 11 a. m., tomorrow, are available. President Roosevelt has indicated he will act as a judge, listening only to facts, not opinions, at the conference, when Chairman Morgan and Directors David E. Lilienthal and Dr. Harcourt Morgan must justify to him all their statements and counter-statements in the war which has pitted the chairman against the latter two.

Speaker William B. Bankhead, of the House, indicated yesterday that the President would make available stenographic transcripts of the conference.

In the House today attention will turn to the vital appropriation item of $2,700,000 for commencement of the Gilbertsville, Ky., dam, held by Norris to be the key to future development of the area. The House thus far has refused to include it in the $1,412,000,000 independent offices appropriation bill, and Norris and Barkley have asserted that much of the present TVA controversy is a "smoke-screen" for power company attacks on this appropriation item.

Morgan Charges "Clique."

Clermont, Fla., March 9 (U.P.).—Chairman Arthur E. Morgan of the Tennessee Valley Authority charged tonight that a "clique" within the agency is attempting to dominate its best engineers and is placing its vast construction program in jeopardy.

From his home here, Dr. Morgan issued a statement supporting the proposed $112,000,000 TVA superdam at Gilbertsville, Ky., but making thinly-veiled charges against the present state of affairs in the strife-ridden agency.

U. S. and British May Share Rule Over 2 Islands

By the Associated Press.

The United States and Great Britain may eventually exercise joint control over the little mid-Pacific islands of Canton and Enderbury, some officials indicated last night.

President Roosevelt has taken over the islands for commercial air bases, but Neville Chamberlain, British prime minister, told the House of Commons yesterday that the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, had been instructed to inform the United States that Britain "reserves her right over the islands."

He also announced that "proposals will be submitted in the hope of ending the controversy."

The British claim did not surprise Secretary of State Hull, who told reporters each government has a fairly accurate idea about the attitude of the other.

Japan Concerned.

Tokyo, March 9 (AP).—Britain's tolerant attitude over the planting of the United States flag on Canton and Enderbury islands in the mid-Pacific has aroused concern in official quarters here, where it is seen as evidence of Anglo-American cooperation.

In spite of the categorical denials of Secretary of State Hull, the belief persists here that some working arrangement has been effected between the United States and Britain.

Penguins at Zoo Still Waiting for A 'Blessed Event'

It's still "no news" from the penguin home at the zoo—where Mrs. Molly and Mr. Moe Penguin have been expecting two additions to their family for more than a week now.

Being a penguin is no fun when egg-hatching time comes around. Poor Molly and Moe have been taking turns sitting on their two eggs since February 1.

Science is no aid. It may be a month yet before little Molly and Moe break through the shells—or it may happen any minute.

Aeronauts to Open Conference Today

The problems of transoceanic air transport and the development of instrument flying and landing will be among the subjects discussed during a two-day national aeronautical meeting opening this morning at the Mayflower Hotel, under the sponsorship of three aviation organizations.

The conference will be under auspices of the Society of Automotive Engineers and its Washington section.

Health Service on health conditions in the District.

"St. Elizabeths Hospital," the report continues, "is one of the best hospitals in the United States for the early treatment of mental illness. It only needs the human changes in law and customs to make it readily accessible to those seeking treatment and to those who are required to go there.

"It is apparent that insanity is regarded by the law as a criminal offense.

"The tragedy of mental illness is further darkened by the obligatory trial of every patient who requires continued treatment in a mental hospital.

"Degrading Spectacle."

"This inhumane judicial requirement is beyond words of censure. Any intelligent resident of the District of Columbia who spends an hour in the court during the public inquisition of the patient and family must feel that he has witnessed a degrading spectacle in the Capital of a great Nation."

Practically all commitment laws of other years were intended to protect the public from the dangerous insane and to prevent the extremely remote possibility that a sane person might be railroaded to a lunatic asylum. Very little concern was given to the therapeutic welfare of the patient—who was not to be treated, but merely sheltered from the public eye.

Nor were the feelings of a family with a mentally ill member considered. Testimony of the most personal nature must be told to the jury.

The present attitude of the medical profession and of an enlightened public is that treatment for early cases of mental sickness should be provided for, and that the mental problem consists of more than merely providing custodial care for the so-called "dangerous insane."

Must Await Danger Point.

The District law concludes that the person must wait until he is dangerous to himself, or others, before he is committed to treatment.

As recommended by the Public Health Service, the laws dealing with mental illness in the District should provide: (1) Voluntary admission to hospital for treatement. (2) The presence of the patient in court of legal commitment. (3.) Certificate of the health officer. (4) Admission to Gallinger on emergency commitment basis. (5) Court commitment, without jury trial. (6) Trial by jury on rehearing at discretion of the judge. (7) Commitment should not be synonymous with loss of civil rights.

A bill which will abolish the mandatory jury trial of mental patients was introduced in Congress a year ago by Chairman William H. King, of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee.

Bill to Be Reported.

This bill will be reported favorably next week, Senator Royal S. Copeland, chairman of the Senate District Sub-committee considering the measure, said last night.

Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal is studying criticisms to certain details of the measure and will report them to the sub-committee, which will consider them in making its final report, Senator Copeland said.

Since five out of every ten persons who report to public clinics for treatment in the District have mental problems associated with their physical disorders, since the field of mental therapy is one in which great advances are being made, and since early treatment is so often essential to a speedy cure—

The change in the commitment laws of the District—as proposed in the King bill—would mark an auspicious step forward into the field where medical science doubtless will make great strides during the next decade.

2 Held in Slaying Of Federal Agent

Norfolk, Va., March 9 (AP).—United States Commissioner Harry A. Brinkley ordered two men giving their names as Bernard E. Royals, 20, and Joe T. West held on murder warrants today for preliminary hearing Monday.

Royals, a resident of Norfolk County, and West, who said he lived at Elizabeth City, N. C., were arrested last night in connection with the murder of J. W. Jackson, jr., 45, of Plymouth, N. C., an officer of the alcohol tax unit of the Treasury Department.

Jackson was killed when he and J. F. Estes, Norfolk policeman, approached to investigate an automobile they had halted on the George Washington highway near the North Carolina line.

Want to Know Why You're Constipated?

Would you give a million to shake off that dull, dopey, played-out feeling that often comes with common constipation? Then stop a minute and think.

What have you had to eat this week? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? Probably the reason you're constipated is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't entirely digested, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines which helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat some Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. This crunchy toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains both the intestinal tonic vitamin B1 and iron.

Eat All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. See if you don't get off your heels and on your toes! Kellogg's All-Bran is sold by every grocer.

Youth Still Must Be Served, Says Warner's Contract List

Out of 77 Studio Players, 35 Are Newcomers; Paul Green and Film Notables to Visit; Notes of the Current Theater

THERE seems, after all, to have been a bit of the old shenanigan in all of that hue and cry out of Hollywood that a newcomer has no chance of achieving recognition in the films. The youngsters seem to be moving up rapidly these days, reaffirming the old adage that "youth must be served."

Take the contract list of the Warner Brother-First National studios, for example. Hollywood can slip out of the implied indictment, if it wishes, because the Warner plant is in Burbank! But, getting back to the main issue, an examination of the Freres Warner contract roster will reveal a total of 77 stars and featured players. Out of that number, 35 are names of players who, up to a year ago, never had appeared on the screen or, at best, had been before the cameras only in insignificant "bits."

BELL.

From "Varsity Show," released last fall, the Warners acquired three players—Rosemary and Priscilla Lane and Johnnie Davis, all proselyted from Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, who costarred in the picture with Dick Powell. They have been going along nicely ever since. Fred Waring hated to lose them, but once confided to this column that he could not stand in the way of their progression without virtually becoming the "dog in the manger"—which he refused to be.

Gloria Dickson stepped from a Federal Theater Project into the leading role of "They Won't Forget" and Bobby Jordan came up from "Dead End." Dennie Moore, brash young comedienne, who was Allen Jenkins' "light of love" in "The Perfect Specimen," with Errol Flynn and Joan Blondell; Penny Singleton, who sang and danced in "Swing Your Lady," with Louise Fazenda and Nat Pendleton, and Babel Todd, from "Hollywood Hotel," are others on the list of "unknowns" who have come, or are speedily coming, to the front.

Warners also have a group of young players slightly over the one-year class who are still pretty safely—or unsafely, as the case may be—out of the veteran classification. These would include Wayne Morris, Jane Bryan, Marie Wilson, Jane Wyman and Mary Maguire.

With these lively personalities adding new interest to a form of entertainment always in quest of "new faces," there still may be hope for those who are sure they were born for the cinema, but never have been able to prove it.

But when you get out there, don't say it was I who sent you to Hollywood, or Burbank, or Culver City, or wherever it is you plan to go. I've got trouble enough!

* * * *

Speaking of newcomers to the arts of Thespis and Terpsichore—two, who, by and large, are pretty well thought of in the theater—the graduating students of the National Academy of Stage Training last night presented the first of two evenings of finishing performances in the auditorium of the school. "Jealousy Plays a Part," a comedy, enlisted the talents of Virginia Wesner, Jacques Kahn, Bessie Smurak, Virginia Palmatary, Jessie LeFevre, A. D. Matheson and Stella May Hulen. "The Aristocrats," a drama, was done by Ray Edwards, Isabelle Creer and Joseph Cochran. "Stolen Goods" was participated in by Tahmineh Irani, Stella May Hulen, Elizabeth Williams, Janet Hurt, Katherine Garrett, Gwendolyn Robertson, Ruth McCreary and Patricia McCarran. "Just for Justice" closed the bill, with Mabel Norman, Ioger Hoffman and Lucy Garton, aided by several already mentioned, carrying the leads. All were one-act plays. It might be well to keep an eye on these youngsters. Many before them have gone up to the professional stage from Washington's foremost professional academy.

* * * *

Paul Green, author of "Johnny Johnson," now in rehearsal by the Washington Civic Theater, will be a Washington visitor this week-end and will confer with Director F. Cowles Strickland, of the Civic group, and attend some of the rehearsals of his play.

Mr. Green, who lives in Chapel Hill, N. C., where he is a member of the State University faculty, has written to say that he will be glad to "sit in" on the play's preparation, since it also recently was produced by the University of North Carolina's dramatic group. This should augur well for the Civic's presentation, scheduled for Wardman Park, Thursday, March 24.

Mr. Green, in case you had forgotten, is author of the Pulitzer prize play, "In Abraham's Bosom," "Connelly's House," in which Franchot Tone was first seen in Washington, and other notable additions to the library of the American theater.

Comes another pretty postage card from Mr. and Mrs. (Butch) Bell—no relation—from the presumably sunny clime of Florida, where Mrs. Bell has been for some weeks and Ray for some days.

To Continue Second Week at the Palace

CESAR ROMERO, SONJA HENIE AND DON AMECHE, star and two male principals in the Twentieth Century-Fox production of "Happy Landing," which will be held over for a second week on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, beginning tomorrow. This is generally considered the best vehicle in which the Olympic fancy-figure skating champion has been seen to date. It will be followed by "The Goldwyn Follies."

It seems from the pictured scene on which their greetings are scribbled that they are spending their vacation in the Ringling Museum of Art, in Sarasota, Fla.—of all places! What's "art" got to do with selling moom pitchers?

* * * *

There will be other notables of the amusement world in town this week-end, too. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur de Titta will have as their guests, at Wardman Park, Truman H. Talley, producer of Fox Movietone News—of which Mr. de Titta is Washington manager; Harry Lawrenson, editor; Ed Thorgeson, sports commentator, and Lew Lehr, that completely daft dialectician, whose brief intervals on the screen always are as convulsing as they are crazy. These distinguished contributors to the eminence of short-reel screen subjects are coming down for the White House correspondents' banquet Saturday night. With Mr. Lehr present, there should be fun at the banquet. There usually is, anyway.

* * * *

Phil Lampkin, fork-handed conductor of the Capitol Orchestra, has gone and dug himself up another de luxe overture for next week. It will be a symposium of Irish melodies, aimed a little, one suspects, at the implication of Saint Patrick's Day, which will be coming along soon. Talbot Haslett, popular local singer will interpolate a vocal rendition of "Mother Machree," among other tuneful things.

* * * *

That new Silver Theater, projected for Silver Spring, Md., for which ground was broken yesterday, will be erected by Kemp Mohler, stalwart Varieteer, who designed the Variety Club rooms in the Willard and is performing a similar function for the new Variety Tent soon to be inaugurated in Baltimore. Baltimore, heretofore, has been affiliated with the Washington Tent, No. 11, but now is stepping out on its own.

Anna May Wong's Nails Get Guards

Anna May Wong's "Chinese" fingernails have regained their former length, and today she donned gold guards to protect them from breaking.

The Chinese star was compelled to cut off her treasured nails when she appeared in "Daughter of Shanghai" on account of the rough role she enacted.

Since then the famous nails have grown until they are full two inches long again.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., March 9.—Something will have to be done about Shirley Temple. She's become the "heavy" of Hollywood.

It's been tough enough trying to get a job in this town. After seeing "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," we might just as well give up. They have grand people in the picture, too. Randy Scott has always been a pet of mine. Helen Westley is good enough to star alone—she did all right with the Theater Guild for years. I've always loved her for taking in all the strays. When you visited Helen, you never knew whether you were going to sit down at the table with 1 or 20. The house was always so full, most of the time she slept out on the porch on an old broken couch. Bill Robinson isn't bad, either.

HEDDA HOPPER.

But you never look at anybody but Shirley. I'll let my friend, who went to the preview with me, express it. She is Mrs. Louis S. Levy, wife of one of the most brilliant lawyers in New York. She rented her house in Palm Beach for a couple of months at more money than I make a year to make her first trip West in 15 years. And the one person she wanted to see was Shirley Temple. All during the preview she kept exclaiming: "Oh, Hedda, isn't she wonderful! She's remarkable! Do you suppose there's any chance of my ever meeting her? She's a superchild, that's all." And I'm afraid she's right.

Coming out I met Mrs. Zanuck, wife of the producer. Mother of three children, she looked young enough to be one of them. Her children appeared recently at a fashion show for charity, modeling clothes. We were so amused at little Darryl, aged 4. When he got down to his pajamas and dressing gown, he wouldn't take off the dressing gown before the customers!

I went to a party at John McCormick's for Lotte Lehmann, which was crowded with me-mes and oh-oh-ohs. You could have cast an opera, ballet or what have you from the gathering.

Rosa Ponselle was there and carried the most beautiful solid gold vanity case with her monogram done in diamonds given her by her husband as a wedding present and especially designed by Paul Flato. I asked his assistant how they got all that gold when we had to give ours back to the Government, and he said, "Believe me, it's difficult; you're only allowed so much. A whole month's supply went into that vanity case."

The entire party looked like a bit of New York. Wish I could have stayed longer, but I was already late for John Roche's cocktail party. You know he's that good-looking actor who's turned his talents into making our male stars clothes-conscious. He also turned out perfectly tailored things for Greta Garbo, which she's now wearing in Italy. Wouldn't be a bit surprised if she'll be married in one of his suits. It's a red-letter day when Garbo comes for a fitting. John sends out for sandwiches, cookies and coffee. Fitters and everybody sit down and have a picnic. I've never been lucky enough to wander in at a time like that.

At the party Janet Gaynor told me how sorry she was that she had to miss three balls the night of the President's birthday. She's been on her feet so long they went back on her.

And Tyrone Power, just off the set of "Alexander's Ragtime Band," where he played the violin, said it was hard enough getting his fingering and bow going at the same time, but when they gave him new dialogue to speak at the same time, he felt like the old paperhanger with the hives.

Miss Barrymore Here Next Week In 'Whiteoaks'

Her Second Appearance of Season Awaited; Other New Bills.

Ethey Barrymore will make her second starring appearance of the season at the National Theater when she opens a week's engagement in "Whiteoaks" next Monday night. This is a drama of the famed family of Whiteoaks celebrated by Mazo de la Roche in a series of novels known as the "Jalna books." Miss de la Roche was responsible for the dramatization of her own story, which will be presented by Victor Payne-Jennings, London producer. In it Miss Barrymore appears in the role of the 101-year-old matriarch of the family. Prominent in the cast is Stephen Haggard, who made the outstanding personal success of the 1934 Broadway season in the role of Poet Thomas Chatterton in "Come of Age." The supporting cast is one of distinction.

Constance Bennett, Brian Aherne and Billie Burke, supported by a notable cast of screen artists, will be seen in the pivotal roles of "Merrily We Live," a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy, to be seen as chief feature of the screen bill announced for the week beginning tomorrow at Loew's Capitol Theater. This is another of those "goofy" creations that falls into the same category as "Topper," in which Miss Bennett scored a recent personal triumph. The stage bill at the Capitol will be headlined by Harry Burns, Italian comic, who will be supported on an imposing program of living artists by Allen and Hoover, Jeanette Hackett and her Dancing Girls, Talbot Haslett, Washington singer, and others of note.

"A Slight Case of Murder," Warner Brothers' picturization of the stage play by Damon Runyon and Howard Lindsay, will bring Edward G. Robinson to the screen of the Earle Theater, for the week beginning tomorrow, in one of his most amusing characterizations. Mr. Robinson is cast as Remy Marco, a beer baron, who tries to become an honest business man when prohibition is repealed. Jane Bryan, Ruth Donnelly, Allen Jenkins and John Litel lead the supporting cast. On the stage, "The Showboat Jamboree" will present Buck and Bubbles, featured in the George Gershwin folk opera of "Porgy and Bess," as headliners, with The Mississippians, eight young Southern singers; The Variety Gambols, "a cycle of art and speed;" Allen and Kent, dancers; Paul Kirkland and Detmar Pepper, importantly spotted.

The Belasco Theater will reopen next Tuesday with first Washington presentations of the French, award-winning film, "Mayerling," in which the costellar roles are played by Charles Boyer and Danielle Darrieux, both now under contract in Hollywood. This will oe the first attraction in a series designed to restore the Belasco's former policy of presenting high-class foreign "art" films. While "Mayerling," which has run for six months on Broadway, is in French, complete English subtitles have been provided.

"Unusual Occupations," a scenic subject devoted to the Bahamas and "Water, Water Everywhere" will be the outstanding short subjects on the new bill at the Trans-Lux Theater, opening tomorrow, with "Horse on the Merry-Go-Round" providing the interval of cartoon nonsense. The bill will be based, as usual, on a 35-minute newsreel coverage of the world.

W. C. Fields, Martha Raye, Dorothy Lamour, Shirley Ross, Ben Blue, Bob Hope, Lynne Overman, and all the rest of the oversize cast, will resume their downtown popularity in "The Big Broadcast of 1938," when that enlivening subject reopens as chief feature of the new week's bill at the Metropolitan, beginning tomorrow.

Sonja Henie and her inspired skates will occupy the screen at Loew's Palace Theater for a second consecutive week, beginning tomorrow. In this engaging subject, Miss Henie has as her leading men Cesar Romero and Don Ameche, with Jean Hersholt and Ethel Merman also in the cast.

Having already smashed every attendance record at RKO-Keith's Theater, Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will enter its fifth consecutive capacity week tomorrow. As a supplementary attraction for the fifth week there will be presented a new reel depicting the Dionne Quintuplet as they appear at the robust old age of 3½ years. One of the most interesting sequences is that in which the "Quins" take up skiing!

The Columbia Theater announces "A Yank at Oxford" as its chief screen offering for the week beginning tomorrow. This is a repeat F street engagement of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, made in London, in which Robert Taylor appears in tthe title role. Maureen O'Sullivan, Lionel Barrymore, Tully Marshall, Claude Gillingwater, Vivien Leigh and a considerable supporting cast of British players, including Edmund Gwenn, add greatly to the film's effectiveness.

Charlie Chaplin is coming back to a local screen! Beginning Sunday and continuing through next week, the Little Theater will present a revival of his last film, "Modern Times," in which Paulette Goddard is seen as the world-famous comedian's leading woman.

McKinley High Wins Military Strategy Award

Second Regiment, Under Lieut. Col. Weiss, Judged Finest.

Cadet Lieut. Col. J. R. Weiss and staff teammates from McKinley High School's second regiment were judged the best military strategists in District High School cadet corps in an annual city-wide map competition conducted yesterday in the Franklin Building.

Weiss, captain of McKinley, won a medal for his team's first place achievement, and the team won the coveted cup awarded by Col. Wallace M. Craigie, professor of military science and tactics in the public schools.

The McKinley team won with 89.5 points. Second place went to Company G of Roosevelt High School. First Sergt. Gordon Calvert, captain, which earned 88 points, and third place to Company A of Central, Corporal Charles P. Gray, captain, which scored 80.5 points. Teams representing six high schools participated.

The contest, first of a series of city-wide events leading up to the annual competitive drills in May, was formed on a problem of a company in attack. Contestants worked from a map of Gettysburg.

Capt. James Regan, jr., of the Army Infantry Corps, umpired the competition, and Col. Craigie directed the event.

Forgery Is Laid By D. C. Jury to Former Teller

$9,000 Fraud Charged to George E. Koplin, Jr.; Other Indictments.

George E. Koplin, jr., 41-year-old erstwhile assistant secretary and teller of the Montgomery Building and Loan Association, the directors of which are now seeking its dissolution, yesterday was indicted by the District grand jury on twelve forgery charges, all of which were contained in a single indictment.

The teller is alleged by investigators to have taken about $9,000 over a period of more than two years. Since he was covered by a bond, the association lost nothing through the alleged defalcations. The indictment alleges twelve instances in which withdrawal slips allegedly were forged by Koplin. Ten of the slips involved the name of Carl Chappell, of Arlington, Va., and totaled $1,446.

Accused in Fatality.

An accusation that he was the driver of a car that struck and fatally injured 74-year-old George W. Sutton was placed against Martin L. Bray, 30, of Arlington, Va., in an indictment charging him with manslaughter.

The grand jurors also alleged James Leonard Beck, colored, was guilty of assault with intent to commit robbery when he attempted to hold up a couple in a parked automobile on Franklin street northeast. Charles A. Phillips and Viola B. Brown were sitting in their automobile listening to the radio when Beck pointed a toy pistol at them and then got into the back seat of the car. The automobilists said they grappled with Beck, who escaped. He was captured later.

Others Indicted.

Others indicted were:

Robert L. Jones, receiving stolen property; Theodore R. Harris, William H. Smith, Augustus Carrington, William A. Robinson, Eugene Bowman, Williard P. Harris, Spurgeon Anderson, Henry Mitchell, James A. Frank, David Dorden, Robert Owens and Samuel Porter, housebreaking; Otto S. McKay and Joseph F. Kash, grand larceny; Albert J. Loeffler, Lorenzo Ranson, George F. Fletcher, Henry G. Burdett, George Drake and Robert L. Richards, joyriding.

William Gold, Claude M. Jones, Fannie Grimes, Joseph S. Bruce, George Carroll, Henry L. Sullivan, Myron H. Wells, Nannie Moorehead, Myrtle Crawford, James Mace Moore, Arthur O. Brown, William T. Bullock, Florina Blake and Mack Story, gaming charges, and Norris William Dutch, second degree murder.

Standards Or Standardization.

As a subtitle to his essay on "Goethe and Tolstoi," Thomas Mann, who lectures at Constitution Hall tonight, chose the words: "A contribution to the problem of humanity." Here is the key to all the thought and action of this great German author. Everything that he has written is at bottom a contribution to better understanding of the great and mysterious problem of human destiny.

Mann has now taken up the defense of democracy against authoritarianism, but not as a propagandist attacking the government that has exiled him. His plea is that of the humanitarian, in the simple yet deep significance of that word, who realizes that in the educational values of democracy lies the hope of a future civilization.

Above every other form of government, democracy owes its justification to belief in the perfectibility of mankind. It seeks the development of ideas whereas authoritarianism would force thought into a single pattern. The one seeks standards, the other standardization. Because democracy believes in perfectibility it forwards progress, and because Thomas Mann knows this he, like many lesser artists, today does battle for those values which alone give dignity to man.

Nearly 2,000 years ago Caesar noted in his Commentaries that the German character contains an element of violent emotionalism which may be either a tremendous asset or a fatal menace to its political and cultural development. When that passionate force is unrestrained, its results have often been disastrous. When it is controlled by intellect it produces mental giants such as Frederick the Great and Bismarck, in the political field, or Mozart, Goethe, Beethoven, Kant and Nietzsche in the cultural domain.

Thomas Mann exemplifies the heights which can be reached by the German temperament when it is guided by highly developed moral and mental qualities. He is, indeed, a symbol of all that he is fighting to maintain, for he personifies those qualities of integrity, reason and love of justice without which the savage instincts reign triumphant. This visitor to Washington thus becomes much more than a distinguished literary personality. And he is honored not merely as an artist but as a powerful exponent of those broad human sympathies from which all forms of art and progress spring.

Equality Under Law.

Commissioner Hazen's forthright order for the arrest of all traffic law violators, regardless of official position, should bring a speedy end to the petty abuses which have complicated law enforcement here recently. The "you-can't-arrest-me" attitude was always a bluff. Now that it has been called the difficulties of the police in this respect should be history.

Congress as well as the general public will approve the Commissioners' policy. For the great majority of Senators and Representatives are scrupulous in their observance of the traffic laws. They have been properly annoyed by that negligence of the few which has tended to bring criticism upon Congressmen as a group. No doubt the great majority will welcome a tightening of law enforcement, to the detriment of the small minority which attempts to take advantage of official position.

From the viewpoint of numbers involved the violations of traffic rules by officials has been a minor problem. But the effect of such violations upon the police and the motoring public has been very demoralizing. If a policeman is subject to rebuke for the "mistake" of arresting a Congressman, he has a powerful incentive to ignore other infractions of the law. He must constantly work under a severe handicap.

Dislike for special privileges under the law may be traced to the very roots of American history. If legislators or other officials assume an immunity to any category of laws, citizens are inclined to take a similar attitude. Contending they are "just as good as any Congressman," motorists are likely to keep within the law only so far as observance is forcefully compelled.

All irritation on the subject will soon be water under the bridge, however, if Commissioner Hazen's order is vigorously carried out. A few Congressmen may still try to bulldoze the police. But if local officials are willing to face a showdown, they cannot possibly lose. They will receive all but unanimous support on any clear-cut issue of impartial law enforcement.

Inadequate Rate Relief.

In view of the uncertainties regarding the future course of railway earnings and operating expenses, experts find it more than ordinarily difficult to estimate the additional income resulting from the rate increases granted by the ICC. Indeed, the Commission itself asserted that it would be "futile" to essay such an estimate, in view of the many factors affecting railway income and outgo which are subject to constant change.

However, it is generally conceded that the extent of the relief accorded will prove much less than is needed. That was admitted or implied in separate concurring opinions by a number of the commissioners.

Commissioner Mahaffie, who objected vigorously when the ICC short-sightedly refused to extend the emergency freight surcharges beyond 1936, is the only outright dissenter in the present instance. He declares that "the increases authorized will not permit, under existing circumstances, the adequate transportation system contemplated by the law." And he further comments that "in this proceeding the carriers are seeking an opportunity to earn their living. Whether they generally can do so at any level of rates may be open to question. But so long as the country requires and utilizes their services they should have that chance."

The majority based its refusal of the requested 15 per cent general increase in freight rates on the opinion that it would be "such a deterrent to traffic as to stifle movement." Furthermore, the opinion stated, such an increase "based upon a normal volume of traffic, as proposed, is for a larger amount than is reasonably necessary to meet the purposes of the increase, if realizable." That, however, is an assertion not supported by proof. And so long as the railways remain under private ownership and management, their judgment as to the necessity of the rate increases in relieving their financial need should not be set aside except for compelling reasons.

Last fall, when the petition for a rate increase was presented, the roads estimated that wage increases, social security taxes, and higher prices of materials and supplies would raise their annual operating costs $665,000,000 above 1933 levels. Against that great increase in costs the sole offset was an estimated annual addition to revenue of $50,000,000 from rate increases authorized in October. The 15 per cent freight rate increase was expected to yield not over $470,000,000. Hence even if the ICC had conceded everything for which the roads asked, the returns would not have covered the estimated additions to operating costs.

The rapid shrinkage of the volume of traffic toward the end of the year has of course thrown all these computations out of line and made the financial plight of the roads increasingly desperate. Naturally some companies are in much better position to benefit from the limited rate increases accorded than others. But with average earnings in January for all class I roads amounting to less than one half of 1 per cent on property investment, on an annual basis, not much comfort is to be extracted from contemplation of a few relatively bright spots.

If the ICC is unwilling to grant needed relief in the form of rate increases it is the more imperative to seek alternative solutions of the railways' problems with a minimum of delay. The President has already called a conference which will no doubt discuss proposals for railway consolidation, financial reorganization and elimination of duplicate facilities. But these are long-range plans. Unfortunately they do not afford the quick relief needed to preserve some still solvent carriers from bankruptcy.

District Income Taxation.

In its search for new sources of revenue the House sub-committee on fiscal affairs has again turned to the income tax as an alternative to some form of sales taxation.

With moderate rates of taxation, and assurance that exemptions will not be so numerous and generous as to work undue discrimination, the income tax appears to provide the best possible means of meeting the District's need for increased revenue and enabling it to dispense with the discredited tax on intangible personalty. The latter tax works excessive hardship upon many conscientious taxpayers while permitting others to escape their just share of local tax burdens.

But the proposed scale of income tax gradation is extreme compared to the limited income tax levies imposed by the neighboring State of Maryland, with its flat rate of one-half of 1 per cent, and Virginia, with rates varying from 1½ to 3 per cent. The maximum rate of 10 per cent proposed would, no doubt, influence persons in the higher income groups to change their residence to avoid the tax. Since income earned in the District would be taxable in any case this method of evasion would, moreover, work in favor of the recipients of funded income drawn from sources outside the District.

A further objection to the sharply graduated scale of taxes lies in the fact that Federal income taxes in the upper brackets are already excessively high. To add to those burdens by imposition of local levies rising to 10 per cent would result in a particularly oppresive kind of double taxation, wholly undesirable from the viewpoint of the Federal as well as the local government. A flat rate income tax or a moderately graded tax levied upon all residents and all individuals, Congressmen included, whose income is earned in the District would be more equitable. Also, in all probability, it would be a much better revenue producer than the graduated tax indorsed by the House subcommittee.

Chautemps As Sisyphus.

One of the most tragic figures in Greek mythology was Sisyphus who, in punishment for his sins, was condemned to roll to the top of a high hill a huge boulder which constantly rolled back. In the budgetary field this is much the same unhappy situation in which France has been for some time.

Shortly after the formation of the present Chautemps government in January it began to look as though relative budgetary stability might be achieved. Some of the capital which had taken flight from France was beginning to return. Some improvement was taking place in the economic situation. A greater readiness was noted by both capital and labor to bury the hatchet in the interests of social and economic peace. A hopeful symptom was that the first loan of the new regime—for 1,000,000,000 francs—was oversubscribed in four days.

But again the stone of Sisyphus had been rolled up the hill only to roll down again. The sudden intensification of international rivalries during recent weeks has forced the French government to contemplate increased armament expenditure to the tune of some 20,000,000,000 francs this year. And where is the money to be found?

To be sure, rearmament is not the only factor threatening utter collapse of the French budget. The rising cost of living, the adverse disparity between exports and imports, the fears of French capital in the face of the uncertain political and economic situation, increased labor costs coupled with diminished productivity—these and other factors have played their part in keeping the French financial situation chronically acute. The mounting costs of rearmament are now the additional burden tending to break the camel's back.

Now a new effort to keep the budget at least normally balanced, while providing the large additional sums needed for war preparation purposes, is being made by the Chautemps government, Parliament is asked to grant the cabinet the power to deal with the financial problem by means of decree laws. It is a power which has been granted to other French governments of the past, but always reluctantly. And it is not at all unlikely that a prior condition this time may be the broadening of the cabinet representation to form a government of national union.

Such a development is the more likely because France today faces two very grave, international crises: an internal crisis involving the financial and economic situation of the nation and an international crisis whose influence on domestic affairs continues to be profound. In the face of similar threats to national stability in the past the French have always closed their ranks. There is a real possibility that they may do so once more. But whether the stone of Sisyphus will thereby be laid to rest at the top of the hill remains a very open question.

High Road Or Low Road.

The Minstrel Boy, you remember, tore asunder the strings of his harp rather than have them sound in slavery to the Sassanach. In similar spirit Mr. Leo J. Fitzpatrick, general manager of WJR, Detroit, cut off his station from a Columbia network broadcast because the ballad "Loch Lomond" was being sold into swing by Tommy Dorsey's orchestra. Mr. Fitzpatrick, in the face of indignant protests from hait the dancers in Detroit, has announced that never again will his station be an accessory during the fact to "the murder of all the decent things in music."

There are thousands who think precisely as Mr. Fitzpatrick does, and other thousands who feel that swing is the biggest achievement of the musical mind since the invention of counterpoint. Neither side seems exactly clear as to what it is talking about.

We have it on excellent authority, however, that swing really means a kind of freedom that permits each player whatever improvisations on the theme he may feel inspired to make and that the tune is thus "swung" from one instrument to another with much the same skill and nonchalance that a baseball is tossed around the infield after a strike-out, although this has little or nothing to do with the rules of the game. What Mr. Fitzpatrick speaks of reverently as "decent music," the kind played strictly according to score, is scornfully described by swing performers as "academic in A flat."

It would seem then that the whole point of the question is whether the object of "Loch Lomond" is, as the opening words of the ballad imply, to see who can get there first in the prescribed melodic gait, or whether it is to see how many monkeyshines can be accomplished on the way and still get there at all.

This of course hinges on the question of what, if anything, you want to do after you get there. If all you desire is to wander with your true love by the bonny, bonny banks Mr. Fitzpatrick's stand is sound and well taken. But if what you want is a series of epileptoid contortions cheek to cheek on the dance floor, then, of course, "it don't mean a thing if it ain't got the swing."

Still that doesn't altogether explain why so many people put nickels in these automatic phonographs between the soup and the spaghetti.

"Unfortunate Omission."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Allow me to congratulate you most heartily on your splendid editorial appearing in The Post on March 7, under the caption "An Unfortunate Omission."

It seems almost unbelievable that a Congressional committee should so utterly ignore the sound recommendations of such an able public servant as former Chairman Kennedy of the Maritime Commission and barter "safety at sea" and the welfare of our American merchant marine for fear of losing a few radical labor votes in the next election. There are many thousands of splendid American seamen who would be once again restored to their rightful standing and respect by the passage of the proposed laws and win the protection of the American Government from those radicals whose only aim is to control our ships.

This organization, maintaining offices on the Pacific Coast during the last maritime strike, has full knowledge of conditions existing on our ships and in the maritime unions. Aside from all other connections and affiliations the personal and political ambitions of radical leaders was and is the foremost consideration of the leaders of these unions. The last strike was precipitated by political issues coming out in the open when Harry Bridges urged that the question of a strike be put off until after the national election. Lundburg, grasping the opportunity to show the union members that they were being openly used for political purposes, urged an immediate strike vote.

Now Lundburg, according to newspaper reports, has let the real "cat out of the bag" by stating that the maritime unions are opposed to the measures suggested by Chairman Kennedy "because they would promote loyalty to the United States Government instead of to the unions." Isn't this a most remarkable demonstration of American patriotism and devotion to country? And a Congressional committee refuses to report the measures that "would promote loyalty to the United States Government ahead of the unions."

The "Pinafore" Group.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Pinafore Group, which came on board the Ship of State some five years ago as the guests of the new pilot, but otherwise without papers, has developed a "plan" to rearrange all of her timbers.

"I know that many others like myself will be fully reassured by the message of The Pilot that "the old Ship of State is on the same course." Even though he does not tell us where we are bound, or why we have not yet arrived, it is something to know that he still regards the vessel as the one, not yet wholly taken apart, which came under his control.

Midshipmen At Navy Yard.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your column "Excerpts From Our Letters" of March 6 I noted the following paragraph attributed to Mr. John Riggles, of Seabrook, Md.:

"It seems like a waste of the taxpayers' money to spend millions training naval cadets at Annapolis to man ships and have 92 of them on shore vacations in the Washington gun factory trying to supervise building of guns, in which craft they are not qualified."

May I point out that every midshipman is required to visit the navy yard here to learn how guns are made. The midshipmen who came here recently were not placed in supervisory positions, as Mr. Riggles says, but were on the customary tour of instruction.

Veteran's Proposal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We can't eat objectives and all this continued talk about them only makes things worse.

Here we are back where we started in 1933, with the New Deal bogged down and billions of dollars more of debts piled on our backs.

It's time for the powers that be to stop talking and do something for business and the utilities so that there will be more jobs.

More Holder-Uppers?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The immediate response to the hold-up of a Congressman ought to contain an idea for the District. Select sufficient "holder-uppers" to insure a majority and each Congressman experience a holdup and loss of property and it's almost a foregone conclusion there will be more police and more drastic laws.

Filipino Freedom.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The presence of High Commissioner Paul V. McNutt in Washington is rather bewildering to the Filipinos. Some say that he is here to report his findings and observations in the Philippines to President Roosevelt. Others declare that he is here to satisfy the wishes of his friends who would like to buy him a new pair of shoes destined for the White House.

Meanwhile, the Philippine problem remains a dodged issue on Capitol Hill.

The Tydings-McDuffie law does not, and cannot, guarantee the real future of the Philippines. Its trade provision will ruin the economic structure of the islands and will provoke chaos among the Filipino people. A better understanding and agreement is needed to give the Filipinos a chance to realize their absolute and complete independence.

Congressmen In Traffic.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I, with other citizens, want to commend The Post on its activity in insisting that members of Congress obey the traffic laws they themselves handed to the residents of the District of Columbia.

It is amusing when one of them is handed a ticket for parking in a restricted zone to hear him squeal about having important business at the White House or at one of the departments. Some of those guys don't know where the White House is.

It is about time that these hick Congressmen are brought to realize that they may be big splurges in the sticks, but in the Nation's Capital they are just ordinary persons and have no license to disregard the traffic or any other regulations.

Apartment Garages.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Washington is trying its very best to solve the parking difficulty, but we are planning this same difficulty for Maryland. People are building large apartment houses on the main road from Bethesda to Washington and allowing automobiles to be parked all night on this thoroughfare.

Land is not so valuable in Maryland that the apartment-house builders couldn't afford to provide parking space for each apartment. Those tenants who didn't have a car could be given the privilege of renting this space.

Calendula, Not Tulip.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Twice your columns have declared the tulip the national flower of the Kingdom of the Netherlands but, unless changed since I was there, it is the calendula.

It was on the way to Edam that I declared to my host: "I love your national flower, the tulip."

"The tulip is not our national flower," was the reply, "it's the marigold, not the ruffled kind but the daisy kind."

The "daisy kind" is the "calendula."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of the last beautiful magnolia trees in Lafayette Park is being cut down! Trees cannot be encased in asphalt and thrive, strange as this may seem. Surely, a child would know this!

My solution: To have the Garden Club put in charge of the parks, and have them supervised by women.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: By what stretch of a snobbish newspaper fiction can the commoner sisters of a self-made King be transmitted into "royal princesses?"

Objections To Lunacy Law Revision.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial of March 7 entitled "Lunacy Law Revisions" refers to the pending Senate bill proposing to substitute a three-member commission for the present jury, in trying lunacy cases. Such proposals have been before Congress for many years, and have been, after careful analysis, rejected.

You speak of "the barbarous, not to say inefficient, practice of airing questions of sanity in public and deciding them by the judgment of laymen," which statement assumes that under present practice, sanity, a medical question, is passed on by a jury of laymen. This is not quite correct. In nearly if not every case, the great preponderance of testimony is given by professional mental experts. In most cases there is no other testimony. Properly, a jury judges the accuracy of such testimony.

The proponents of the pending bill object to having their testimony "aired," and submitting to cross-examination before a jury. That is the reason the jury practice is so obnoxious to them. The promoters of this bill widely proclaim their humane objectives in seeking private inquisitions.

The public, and probably members of Congress, are unaware of certain other changes in the law, hidden in this bill. Under present law, only "persons of unsound mind" who are either "indigent or possessed of homicidal or other dangerous tendencies," are subject to apprehension and detention. The "mental hygienists" have long been irked by this restriction, which prevents the extension of their beneficence to all persons who do not measure up to their standard of mental "soundness;" and have sought its removal. Congress has not seen fit to change this, evidently feeling that even though persons might be afflicted with some peculiarities it was not the public concern, providing such persons were harmless and not in need of public support.

The bill carries other provisions of extremely doubtful constitutionality. It provides that a victim may be subject to a lunacy inquisition on very short notice, or, in the discretion of the commission, notice may be dispensed with entirely. And, believe it or not, it is also provided that judgment may be rendered against relatives of the victim, for the amount of the costs of commitment, and for his care and maintenance in the asylum, and, if they do not pay such judgment they may be proceeded against "as in the case of a decree for alimony in divorce."

The opportunities for injustices would, under the proposed revision, be manifold.

Look Homeward.

SUNUP is bedtime to the boys who work at night, but of Tuesdays they get down pretty early in the afternoon. Because, on Tuesdays, so do the pay checks. When they get them cashed they slink off at once to the gloomier corners of restaurants and lunch together in gloom, damning the daylight without speech.

Thus we did, my friends off the night staff and I. It was a pleasant restaurant and waitresses were always cheerful. One came to learn what "we all" would have. We told her and she scuttled away.

"Georgia," my friend commented.

(There is an old myth about a Southern man who came North and failed to discover that he was expert in all dialects of Dixie, able to place people by their inflections as neatly as a geologist does rocks by their markings. This tale is strictly the baloney. No such Southerner has yet been born.)

"Carolina," I corrected.

"Possibly South Carolina, the river counties," he yielded slightly.

We asked her. It was Virginia.

"I thought so," my friend helped himself to my triumph. He squinted at her. "Didn't you come from Hopewell?"

Her face really brightened. "Well, I worked in Hopewell. But my home was Bowling Green."

"Bowling Green!" My friend ought to be damned. Such rapture simply had to be genuine. "Why I went to school in Bowling Green."

"I did, too, about eight years ago."

"I was there ten years ago." My friend leaned forward. He waved his fork at her. "Saay! I'll bet you know Joe Doakes!"

She smiled. "Nooo. Wait, didn't he have a brother?"

"His brother was Charlie. A tall guy, with a square head. He looked like a tenpenny nail."

"Why, I know him. I think I do. He used to take me to dances. Well, what do you know about that? And I'll bet you know Jake Williams. They used to call him Babe, remember him? He had a Ford cut down into a two-seater."

My friend knew Babe well. He had enjoyed a ride in the Williams cut-down two-seater. They decided it was red. It was a sort of orange red anyway.

The little waitress buzzed off to attend other customers. But when things slacked up she returned. They roved up and down the census list of Bowling Green. There was Fanny So-and-So, that fat girl with the black boyish bob. My friend brought her up. The little waitress remembered her, too, vaguely, of course; she had never known her very well.

And there was that little night club on U. S. Highway Something or other, they couldn't get the number quite straight. But the parties the youth of Bowling Green had had there! There was the fire at the high school the night of the gym dance! There was this excursion when everybody got tight! And that dance when Lefty Whatizzname kicked through the bass drum. One or the other of them remembered these things clearly, the other vaguely. Or didn't remember himself, but had heard about them.

They wondered what that Smith girl is doing now. "I heard she got married to a traveling salesman. She lives up North somewhere. They have two children."

They chattered and chattered and laughed over these old dear times. Finally, they depressed me, who was just another newspaper man. Here, there . . . and I never meet anybody to chew over old times with. My friend, how lucky! Even the waitresses remind him of his youth, of follies that were merely gay.

I thought his tip was rather generous. My own was closer to our unhappy salaries. His wrist snapped as he laid it down, his fingers flickered. There, by his plate, was a dime. Here under my plate was his quarter. Ah, a rare, tactful gesture, that. My respect rose for my friend. A fellow of sensibilities.

We paid and left.

"Odd world," he commented. "I hope you didn't mind being a little neglected. It isn't often you run into somebody like that."

"Not at all. Not at all." I was expansive. I was enthusiastic. "I'd have done the same thing. You know, I kind of envied you."

"Yes. Hmm. You know, I wonder . . ."

"What?"

"I wonder if there might not be such people somewhere. I mean people with those names, who did those things, and so forth . . ."

I didn't get him. I said so.

"Well, you know perfectly well I've never been farther into Virginia in all my life than Alexandria. Until today the only Bowling Green I ever heard of was in Kentucky. . . ."

I liked that restaurant. But I'll not be eating there any more. He will. He will go back there and chin some more about those happy high-school days in Bowling Green.

Something ought to be done.

Fair Enough

Protecting $1,750 A Week.

Los Angeles.

ALL THIS cruel strife between opposing groups of rich writers in Hollywood dates back to a time during the bank holiday in 1933, when a group of moving picture magnates pulled a fast one on the authors.

At that time the contract writers were persuaded to halve their salaries on the plea that if they refused to make this sacrifice many members of the lower classes in the movie industry would be fired.

Executives also made the noble sacrifice of half their salaries, but a little later the writers discovered that the executives' bonuses were undiminished and were, in fact, increased by the saving on their literary pay roll. The executives were richer than ever.

This was a great disillusionment. The authors had taken the magnates' word without demanding access to the books, and they were not only hurt but terribly angry.

The authors formed a union, got back their accustomed scale and went on to compel other concessions in the way of screen credits, or ballyhoo, and an end to certain forms of brain-picking. It was no longer possible for someone's precocious nephew to put his name over the work of an obscure hireling toiling in a bleak and lonely cell.

• • • •

NEPOTISM, it should be known, is not a White House monopoly, and there are relationships in Hollywood which make it possible for a family reunion to achieve the ends of conspiracy without affront to the Sherman law. It would be a terrible thing indeed if a group of relatives and in-laws couldn't have a family dinner or poker game without someone present from the Department of Justice to see that business was not discussed.

One demand which did not fail, however, would have given the writers the right to complete "artistic integrity," which is a resounding phrase meaning the opposite of "don't kid yourself." A lot of rewrite men, reporters, sports men and copy readers and one-book novelists wanted it understood that their work must not be changed at all, so that their dramas should reach their public as they had conceived them in their soul. That one was out quickly and has now been forgotten; but, considered in relation to the literary artistry of the standard housewife drama of the screen, it shows what can happen to a man's sense of proportion here.

Substantially all that the writers fought for through the Screen Writers' Guild has now been won by the Screen Playwrights, the Guild offshoot whose members now view the Guild itself with alarm as a potential censor and Communist propaganda society. Mr. Dudley Nichols, the president of the guild, admits that the Screen Writers have achieved the ends for which his guild continues to struggle.

"Now, don't distort my meaning," Mr. Nichols said, and went on to say again that the Playwrights had won the very points on which he is willing to fling his body. Mr. Nichols is unwilling to join the Screen Playwrights or make any compromise to unite the groups, because, he says, the Playwrights deserted the guild in the midst of a fight. The Playwrights, on their part, insist that there is no need to fight for a victory already won and oppose the guild on the ground that it has too many Communists or Communist sympathizers and regimental tendencies.

• • • •

IN THE MEANTIME a bill has appeared no bigger than a man's hand which will require all distributors to furnish the exhibitors complete, unerring descriptions of all plays, under penalty of a fine of not more than $5,000 and one year in prison for each offense.

This is a new one, placing the unhappy producer at the mercy of the man hired to write the synopsis, who might be just cad enough, with his sense of old wrongs and a bred-in-the-bone hatred, to drop in a trick word falsely describing the mood or dialogue and send the boss to the chain gang or the rock pile for no real fault of his own.

How would the boss know the difference between "ingenious" and "ingenuous" or "militate" and "mitigate" or "flaunt" and flout?"

Once more in Hollywood the terrible whisper is heard that the party is over and that anyone with a dollar ought to save it because the European markets are shot and the exhibitors here at home have to run gambling games and give away groceries to lure the customers in.

But the rich writers seem unimpressed.

"Listen," goes the standard approach of the hot-eyed crusaders for human rights. "Out here values are different. Now I get $1,750 a week, but wait till I tell you why we must have a union to protect ourselves."

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Trail's End . . . And A New Vista.

The mind and hand and judgment that guided the best this column offered down through the years are now of another world. The spirit that made possible whatever was worthy, well done and contributory to the spreading of amusement and joy is, however, here and will continue so, steadfast, kindly, tolerant and courageous.

• • • •

Mary Gallagher Phillips is gone, missed and mourned by all who ever knew the magic of her friendship, devotion and unyielding love. The assurances of science are that she stepped into the Great Beyond as in a sweetly tempered slumber and we so believe. For such was her life and such was her faith in the mercy of God; and so true was she to the principles of her religion that it is unthinkable that this could be otherwise.

• • • •

She was of this earth's truly great in character. Her courage was incredible in its depths, and it will always seem to us that this quality so cherished by the gods found its reward in the peaceful drawing of the veil for which all humans hope.

• • • •

We believe this as sincerely as we believe in the rising and setting of the sun and that is why we are able to pick the threads and go on, knowing that a great lady is still at our side, imparting to us those qualities of human sympathy and judgment without which all effort becomes worthless.

• • • •

We know that she is giving to us that certain mystic something of which she gave so freely from the moment our oaths crossed on the summer afternoon of a golden day.

• • • •

It will be a column of better things reflecting clearer and more charitable judgment . . . inevitably.

• • • •

All that has ever appeared in our work that has seemed unkind, intolerant or bitter found origin, we now know, in those moments when for a fleeting moment there were temporary breaks in the strand that held our hearts and minds together down through the years.

• • • •

Maudlin comment and stuff calculated to bring tears would now fill her grand spirit with loathing, if she were capable of such a feeling. But we feel that thousands of readers must have somehow sensed her presence and have come to know her; that they would be glad to know that she is away only in the earthly sense. We know they would be cheered to know that whatever of this column's comments brought happiness was inspired and directed by this noble woman, devoted wife and unfailing counselor.

The drawing of a curtain cannot efface such influence. It will not.

We feel her beside us at this moment in an even more magnificent sense. We know full well one thing: from this moment the writings of this writer shall be more compassionate, more tolerant and more truly instrumental in the spreading of happiness until he shall cease to be worthy of her great love and magnificent character.

Showdown In Europe

Paris Observer Sees Reorientation Of French Democracy In Crisis Which May Save Peace Of Europe.

By Europax.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Paris.

THE EUROPEAN poker game is moving slowly but steadily toward a showdown. Not that any of the democracies has yet fully and finally decided to call the hand of the dictators. But all the same, after the recent Austro-German affair, the three-hour speech of Hitler to the Reichstag, the resignation of Eden and events in France, there are enough cards on the table to enable one to see more clearly than ever before just what the real stakes are, how the game is going and where it is taking Europe and the rest of the world.

Viewed from Paris, all these developments seem to indicate, not that war is imminent as some alarmists think; not that peace is dawning, as a few optimists believe; but that the stage is being cleared for the climax of this dramatic effort to get through a period of world readjustment without a world conflagration.

• • • •

French Saw Future Of Austria Sealed.

AS SEEN BY the French, Chancellor Hitler's conversations with Schuschnigg at Berchtesgaden and the political changes in Vienna that followed these talks mean only one thing: The beginning of the end of Austrian independence.

It is not an exaggeration to say that this Austrian "coup" caused hardly less commotion in France than in Austria. It was difficult for the Viennese to discern just what it meant, while the French jumped immediately to the conclusion that it meant the end of France's diplomatic hegemony over eastern and central Europe. This impression was confirmed by Hitler's speech, which made it clear that the Reich, under cover of "protecting" German minorities in neighboring states, was going ahead rapidly with its traditional policy of pan-Germanism and "Mittel Europa"—in other words, the setting up of a central Europe dominated at least indirectly by Berlin.

For France, this implies two main consequences, one immediate, the other more remote. The first is the threat to Czechoslovakia. France has an alliance with Czechoslovakia, loosely linked to the Covenant of the League of Nations, obliging it to come to the aid of Prague in the event of an attack by Germany. With Austria under Nazi control, the strategic problem of aiding the Czechs would become exceedingly difficult.

• • • •

Split From Czechs Means French Alone.

YET IF France does not support the independence of Czechoslovakia, this will mean that the complete isolation of France by Germany, in accordance with the plans of "Mein Kampf," will be well under way. It is impossible to convince any Frenchman that Germany, once it had become supreme in central Europe, would be content with that. Every Frenchman believes sincerely that France has but two choices: Either to fight Germany with the aid of Czechoslovakia and if possible of France's other friends—Poland, Russia, Rumania and Yugoslavia; or to wait until these allies have been detached from France and then fight a greatly enlarged Germany alone with only the help of Britain.

Thus over-simplified, the problem naturally admits of only one solution from the French viewpoint. But there are, of course, other factors in the problem and other possible solutions. First of all there is the possibility that the present situation may be preserved, in its essentials, indefinitely—or at least that the balance of power in Europe may be maintained and a conflict thereby avoided. And there is the alternative that the shift from French hegemony on the Continent to German hegemony may, under the influence of Britain, be made peacefully.

This is the view prevailing in Britain at the moment. The resignation of Eden means, primarily, the triumph of the small but influential group in England who feel that Germany—if separated from Italy—could safely be allowed to gain a certain amount of ascendancy over central Europe, provided the forms were respected and there was no open invasion. For Neville Chamberlain and the majority of the English cabinet, Germany is bound to become dominant in the Danube, and Britain has no intention of going to war to prevent this. But an expanded Germany would become a menace if the Rome-Berlin axis persisted and Italy could count on German aid for its imperialistic ambitions in the Mediterranean.

Britain Seen Weaning Mussolini From Berlin.

THAT IS WHY Britain, with Eden overboard, is pushing ahead its negotiations with Italy. Britain hopes that, once Anglo-Italian tension has been removed by granting Mussolini prestige points such as parity in the Mediterranean and recourse to British credit, Italy can be persuaded to abandon the Rome-Berlin axis and line up once again with London and Paris, thus re-establishing what the French call "the European equilibrium."

Unfortunately there are indications that Italy will not be so easily bought off the Rome-Berlin axis. Just what terms Italy would accept remains to be seen, but it is certain that Mussolini is deadly serious about his African empire, and that he wants to expand it, westward by the inclusion of Tunisia, and eastward by replacing England as the protector of Egypt.

These are big bites, of course, and Italy will be in no hurry to take them until she is sure she can chew and digest them. More immediately she is concerned with the "security" of Ethiopia, by which she means her communications with Ethiopia. She wants to be dominant in the Mediterranean to be able to assure the safety of these communications by sea, and she covets a "corridor" through Anglo-Egyptian Sudan that would link Lybia and Ethiopia.

• • • •

FACED WITH these developments, France has seemingly been inactive, preoccupied with her internal situation, which economically is getting worse rather than better, and socially is far from settled.

But the recent debate in the French Chamber of Deputies was vary significant. It showed that France is, to use a homely phrase, "getting its back up" over international affairs. There is a tendency here toward a government of genuine "national union," including the Communists on the extreme left and the Conservatives on the right.

The program of this cabinet—which is being actively organized "behind the scenes"—would be included in the simple slogan "Defense against Fascism," and it would unite the country on a foreign policy of firmness toward Germany and Italy, combined with a willingness to conciliate on a basis of one strong country to another.

This trend is still too new for one to draw any final conclusion, but it holds out hope that French democracy is on the verge of a reorientation that will be decisive for peace in Europe.

Senate Told U. S. Must Continue Aid To Plains States

By the Associated Press.

The Government must continue to help distressed farmers in the Great Plains drought area, H. H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service, said yesterday.

Need is acute, he told the Senate Unemployment Committee.

W. H. Brokaw, director of the Nebraska Agricultural Extension Service, testified that Nebraska farmers had manifested an antipathy to subsistence grants, preferring Government loans.

But the time consumed in ironing out the details of loans and setting up the machinery for their repayment is so great, he said, that many direct grants must be made to prevent starvation.

The witness said he believed the solution of the agricultural problem of the Great Plains States lay in the production of more livestock on individual farms.

Austria's Ajax

By Barnet Nover.

Schuschnigg Defies The Lightning.

IN CALLING a plebiscite of the Austrian people to determine whether they are with him or against him in his fight to preserve Austria's independence, Chancellor Schuschnigg may possibly be opening wide the doors of doom.

No one knows this better than he. He has not guided the destinies of the little Danubian state for nearly four years without realizing how very perilous is its plight. He knows that one false move on his part may plunge Austria into the abyss of extinction. But he also knows that without great risks there can be no great gains.

So now he has decided to gamble his country's future and his own political fortunes on one throw of the dice. But since he is a man who has demonstrated that he knows what he is doing the presumption must be that he firmly believes the odds are on his side.

• • • •

NOW AS AT all times since it became a football of international politics in central Europe, Austria's fate depends only in part on what the Austrian people have to say about it and mostly on what the outside powers do.

In 1934 the Nazis constituted but a decided minority of the Austrian population. Had it not been for Italy's threat of armed intervention Austria might nonetheless have been the victim of the Third Reich's steam roller. Since then and particularly since the creation of the Berlin-Rome axis, Austria has perforce played the role of uneasy buffer between the Fascist partners.

The role has been increasingly irksome since the axis has tended to be weighted more and more at the Berlin end while becoming lighter at the Rome end.

• • • •

FEARFUL of this development which foreshadows a renewed attempt by the Third Reich to make Austria a National Socialist outpost, Schuschnigg tried to strengthen Austria's independence by cementing new ties of friendship not only with Hungary but also with Czechoslovakia and through the latter country with the democratic powers of western Europe.

Hitler's veto blocked that development and at Berchtesgaden on February 12 the Fuehrer laid down the law to the scholarly chancellor. The result was the inclusion of several Nazis in the Austrian cabinet and the release from prison of a large number of Nazis in the Austrian cabinet who were serving terms for plots against the Austrian state.

It looked like the beginning of the end for independent Austria, since the presumption was, and with good reason, that Schuschnigg would not have capitulated to Hitler had he been given any reasonable measure of support by the democratic powers and Italy or even by Italy alone. Apparently such aid was not forthcoming.

• • • •

BUT SCHUSCHNIGG'S reluctant capitulation coupled with his efforts to save what could be saved of Austria's sovereignty created a great stir of pro-independence feeling on the part of all those Austrians—Socialists, Catholics, liberals, Jews—who had no desire to be offered up as sacrifices to the Nazi Moloch.

This outburst of public opinion in Austria encourages Schuschnigg to hold the fort a while longer. And it encouraged governments abroad who feared the spread of Hitlerism to the Danube Valley and to the Brenner Pass to take a stronger stand in favor of Austrian independence than they had been willing to do previously.

Since then all the anti-Nazi elements in Austria have shown a disposition to forget old grievances and join forces behind Schuschnigg. As the inheritor of the mantle of Engelbert Dollfuss, Schuschnigg had no reason to expect any friendship from the Socialists. The latter still remember, and bitterly, the bloody events of February, 1934, when the workers of Vienna were shot down while defending their homes. Yet to the more realistic among them, Schuschnigg is certainly considerably less of an evil than Hitler. The Austrian chancellor, for his part, has more and more come to realize that the only way the Nazis in Austria can be fought to a standstill is by winning over the Socialists. He has therefore shown a readiness to meet them half way.

• • • •

PRESUMABLY Schuschnigg now believes this coalition of Socialists and the Fatherland Front (government party) is, or is about to become, an effective reality. Which means that in any free election in Austria the present government should get an overwhelming majority, particularly if the question at issue asked of the voters is whether they favor Austrian independence and sovereignty. The consensus is that the Nazis constitute not more if as much as 30 per cent of the population.

Will the election be free? It should be plain that the German government will not stand by idly and see a German people, one over whom the Fuehrer on February 20 extended a moral protectorate, repudiate Hitlerism. There is every reason to believe that every form of pressure known to the Third Reich will be employed in Austria to make the vote of March 13 a resounding victory for the Nazis.

• • • •

IF IT IS, the jig will be up for Schuschnigg—and for Austria. It will then be argued and with a show of reason, however the results may have been achieved, that the Austrian people want union with their brethren of the Third Reich.

But if the Austrian people by a substantial majority or by any majority at all vote for the continuance of their nation as an independent and sovereign entity the effect this may have on French and British, not to mention Italian, policy regarding Austria may be decisive.

In Great Britain the sentimental feeling exists that Austria should never have been kept from uniting with Germany at the end of the war. That feeling has tended to inhibit any strong British action on behalf of Austria's independence. But should the Austrian people now demonstrate that they do not, at this juncture, favor union, the British—who after all believe in democratic processes—may take a different tack on the Austrian problem.

In any event the Austrian plebiscite will occur at a moment when Anglo-German and Anglo-Italian negotiations are in their opening stages. Schuschnigg has chosen his time well. He may go down to defeat. But there is at least a good chance that victory may rest with him and Austria's independence be saved.

At a time when statesmanship and courage rarely go together, Dr. Schuschnigg is manifesting a refreshing combination of both.

Boise In Transition

By Vardis Fisher.

Between Frontier And Salon.

BOISE, IDAHO, population 25,000, is in a transition period between the frontier and the salon, and has about it the atmosphere of both.

But Boise is not different from hundreds of Western cities in the almost abject deference it pays to the East. The whole matter is a vicious circle. New York and Boston defer to Europe and ape the Duchess of Windsor. Feelings of social inferiority induce a blatant patriotism, and Western cities only ten jumps from the frontier boast of their hardy forebears and at the same time feel shamefully apologetic, and fasten greedily on every foible and fad produced by the vulgar sophistication of those States which were fathered by the Winthrops and Baltimores.

If the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were to visit Boise, I think the city would be paralyzed; it couldn't support in one sudden vision so incredible an imprimatur of its social worth.

• • • •

LUGUBRIOUS ironies derive from the fact that Boise has no golden mean in it; it is either piety, solemnly oppressive and corseted, or it is the profane lustiness of the frontier convalescing behind dark doors. It is a clubwoman protesting that the library should not buy serious modern novels, or it is so many slot machines that there seem to be more of them than there are trees.

After Boise has achieved the transition from a pair of overalls to a frock coat and has learned the etiquette of wines, it won't put hands into its pockets and look gawky and apologetic every time an Easterner comes to town. It won't shout loudly that Idaho is the greatest State in the Nation and believe deep in its heart that nothing good can come out of it except potatoes—of which it is perhaps privately dubious. It will be more civilized, but it won't be half so interesting as it is now.

French Bolster British Drive For Placation

By the Associated Press.

London, March 9.—Great Britain's efforts toward European appeasement were bolstered today by a concession from France to meet Italian demands on nonintervention in Spain.

The government informed Italy and Germany of the concession and awaited their replies in the hope the nonintervention deadlock might be broken, removing this obstacle from the path of Anglo-German and Anglo-Italian agreements.

This development came as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain invited German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop to talk with him across a luncheon table Friday.

Von Ribbentrop, former Ambassador to Great Britain, arrived here this afternoon ostensibly to take leave of that post. He already had arranged to talk with Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, tomorrow.

Plebiscite Stirs Interest.

Chamberlain told the cabinet he and Lord Halifax would try to determine in the conversations with Von Ribbentrop whether now is the best time for negotiations with Germany.

France consented to re-establishment of nonintervention control of her Spanish border as soon as international commissions begin counting foreign fighters to be withdrawn from Spain. Italy had insisted that border control start as soon as the commission entered Spain.

While following this situation closely, diplomatic circles also were intensely interested in the decision of Kurt von Schuschnigg, Austrian chancellor, to hold a plebiscite Sunday and were speculating as to why he should take such a daring step.

Some quarters felt that he feared further Nazi pressure was imminent and wished to forestall it.

Three Hurdles Outlined.

Chamberlain and Lord Halifax were known to feel that it would be foolish for Britain to attempt to maintain status quo in Austria, but both would welcome any Austrian move which might bring stability.

The principal hurdles standing in the way of an accord between London and Berlin were:

1. Germany's insistence on her absolute right to colonies, with no promises in return.

2. Her reported demand that the British press change its attitude toward Nazism.

3. Her apparent decision to regard her action in central Europe as an affair of concern to Germany alone.

The British government let it be known, in seeming confidence, that it would recommend to the League of Nations Council in May that Italy's conquest of Ethiopia be recognized if the Anglo-Italian talks being undertaken in Rome were successful.

[Australia and New Zealand have warned Chamberlain that there may be grave repercussions throughout the empire if the government decides to restore any of the post-war mandated colonies to the Reich in satisfaction of Der Fuehrer's demands, the United Press reported.—Editor's note.]

Japanese Thrust Anew at Crossing Of Yellow River

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, March 9.—Screened by artillery fire, Japanese troops fought desperately today to establish a base on the south bank of the Yellow River at Szeshui from which to sever the Lunghai Railway.

Field artillery on the north bank at Menghsien and Wenhsien laid down a terrific barrage on Chinese forces while 100 truckloads of Japanese reinforcements with pontoon boats moved up to support the crossing movement.

The 900 Japanese holding Szeshui were in a precarious position. Thousands of Chinese troops battled grimly to drive them back across the river.

The Chinese cut dikes around Szeshui to flood the area. Twenty tanks ferried across by the Japanese were reported handicapped.

Severe fighting was in progress along the river to the west in Shansi Province.

Chinese said they had 300,000 men strung along the river trying to prevent the Japanese from gaining control of the Lunghai line—jugular vein of the Central China Transportation System.

Pushing down the Peiping-Hankow Railway, the Japanese were trying to establish a base at Szeshui, within striking distance of Chengchow, strategic rail junction only 25 miles to the east. The East-West Lunghai crosses the Peiping Hankow line there.

Reports on the fighting in southeastern Shansi Province credited both the Japanese and the Chinese with victories in scattered encasements.

New Cruiser Savannah To Be Commissioned

The new 10,000 ton cruiser, Savannah, to be commissioned today at the Philadelphia, Pa., navy yard, will be commanded by Capt. Robert C. Giffen, former director of the department of athletics at the Naval Academy.

The Savannah is the third of her class to be placed in commission. Her sister ships are the Philadelphia and the Brooklyn, both commissioned last September.

Fiji Kiss Kills Sharks, Missionary Declares

New York, March 9 (AP).—The Rev. Arsine J. LaPlant, Catholic missionary, told here today a story of Fiji islanders killing man-eating sharks by kissing them, and changing the courses of rivers by socery. He had a sound movie to prove it.

"No, nature cannot account for it," said Father LaPlante. "There was some preternatural force at work. Call it the devil, if you will, or the spirits of their dead, but it was no natural power."

Duce May Put New Legislature In Place of Pre-Fascist Body

Calls Grand Council to Consider Report on Substituting Chamber of Guilds and 'Fascios'

Rome, March 9. (AP).—The pre-Fascist Chamber of Deputies, twice ordered abolished in the last four years but still kept in existence, appears to be on the verge of being transformed.

Premier Benito Mussolini has summoned the Fascist grand council to the Palazzo Venezia for 10 p. m. (4 p. m., E. S. T.) tomorrow to hear a special commission's report on substituting for it a Chamber of Guilds and "Fascios," units of the Fascist party.

The new governing body would give Italy a legislature in which the people would be represented through their economic categories. Committeemen have been working for years on the exact form and Italians generally believe Il Duce really intends this time to kill the Parliament whose end was ordered four years ago.

The guilds council, where Fascist party men sit with capital and labor spokesmen, has been taking over most of the functions formerly vested in Parliament.

Under the expected new set-up, observers believe, the guilds council will become the legislative body or another body will be created on economic lines to dovetail with the council.

In the council now are 22 guilds covering every branch of industrial production. In addition, capital and labor are divided into nine general confederations, each covering a phase of Italy's industrial life.

Fascism contends that capital and labor, meeting in these forms under the tutelage of the authoritative, one-party government, best solve all industrial disputes and avoid the necessity for strikes.

The grand council was expected also to discuss the international situation, Italy's finances, the progress of the drive for economic self-sufficiency and Il Duce's campaign for more babies.

Killed for Love, Ex-Police Head In Soviet Says

seventh and sixty-eighth Psalms, including the line:

Paid No Attention to It.

"I paid no attention to it," Rosengoltz pleaded. "I carried it for three months. Only after my arrest I found out about the prayer it contained."

The Rosengoltz incident and further confessions in the "medical murders" of Maxim Gorky, his son and two others ended the examination of the defendants in open court.

Dr. D. D. Pletnyeff, famous heart specialist, testified Genrikh Yagoda, fallen secret police chief who yesterday admitted "full guilt" in four murders, had threatened action "to retaliate on my family" unless he and another doctor should cause the death of Gorky and Valerian V. Kuibisheff, first head of the 5-year plan.

Dr. I. N. Kazakoff, another defendant, declared it was fear of the "sinister Vagoda's almightiness" that caused him to discontinue treatments to keep alive Vyacheslaff Menzhinsky, former secret police head.

"Bloody Cur" Assailed.

V. A. Maximoff told the court he was ordered by Yagoda and Avel Yenukidze, who was shot for treason last year, to aid in the death of Kuibisheff.

Yagoda meanwhile was called a "bloody cur" in the press for his ruthless reign as police head.

A statement issued after the closed session of the court said Yagoda fully admitted he "organized" the killing of Gorky's son.

The court also announced it had established the identities of "several official representatives of several foreign governments" with whom four of the defendants testified they had "treasonable spying connections."

At the same time, belatedly following the lead of the Communist Party, the Young Communist League called a halt in the mass purging of its ranks.

The newspaper Pravda said 969 persons, described as mostly "innocent victims of overvigilance," had been expelled from the organization in the city of Yaroslavi alone.

One of these, it reported, was a boy whose grandmother was a nurse in the home of "an enemy of the people."

Church Leaders Assail Detention Of Rev. Niemoeller

By the Associated Press.

London, March 9.—British, American and other churchmen, in a telegram signed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, told Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today they "deplored the further detention of fellow Christian Niemoeller."

The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, militant leader of Protestant opposition to German Nazis' efforts to dominate the church, has been held prisoner by the secret police since a court in Berlin set him free a week ago.

Beside the archbishop, primate of all England, signers of the telegram included the chairman of the foreign affairs department of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the primate of the church of Sweden, the president of the Protestant federation of France and the archbishop of Thyateira, representing the Greek Orthodox Church.

Calif. Legislature Will Hear Mooney

San Francisco, March 9 (AP).—State officials decided tonight to produce Tom Mooney before the State Assembly tomorrow in connection with a new move by legislators to bring about a pardon for the convicted parade dynamiter.

Mooney's presence before the legislative body was asked in a resoultion presented by Assemblyman Paul Richie, who said the assembly wanted to hear Mooney in person regarding a "legislative pardon" for the labor organizer convicted of setting a bomb which killed 10 and injured 40 persons in 1916.

come and strengthen national defenses. Conservatives hold this means a temporary halt in social reforms and abandonment of the 40-hour week in key industries.

4. Leftist opposition to following England in a "deal" with Germany and Italy, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's new policy that caused Anthony Eden to resign as British foreign minister.

Immediate problem which brought the situation to a head was the projected floating of a 10,000,000,000 franc ($320,000,000) defense loan next Monday.

The premier held investors would be slow to subscribe unless they were assured the cabinet was in a position to administer the nation's finances firmly.

Deladier Forces Delay.

In a statement outlining his position, Chautemps denied he wished to call a halt in the reform program instituted in 1936 by the People's Front and declared he suggested only modification of certain parts of the program including old-age pensions and the 4-hour week to make them dependent on the state of the treasury.

Defense Minister Edouard Daladier forced his fellow Radical Socialists, who draw their support largely from the middle-class farmers and small shop-keepers, to withhold their resignation until tomorrow.

He asserted it was necessary to explain the resignation to the French people, "putting the blame where it belongs," apparently meaning the left wing parties.

According to present plans there will be no debate in the chamber session tomorrow. Chautemps will give his reasons for resigning first and then Deputy Albert Serol, leader of the Socialist bloc, will present his side of the crisis.

Trip to Europe Boosts Hoover's Faith in Liberty

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, March 9.—Former President Herbert Hoover asserted tonight that his conversations with German and other European leaders had "even more reinforced" his belief in democratic principles.

He promised, however, to talk on "American Relations to the European Scene" upon his return to the United States.

In a statement issued after his two-day visit here, which included a 45-minute talk with Reichsfuehrer Hitler, he said:

"I am even more reinforced in my belief that the progress of America rests in the principles of intellectual liberty and spiritual freedom, a system of free economy regulated to prevent abuse and popular government."

The former President emphasized that while he had talked with many European statesmen and will have more such discussions, "I never discuss the character of such private conversations."

"One cannot but sympathize deeply with all these peoples and the different groups within them, their hundreds of acute problems, their inheritances from the World War," he said of the peoples he has visited.

Hoover will go to Warsaw tomorrow.

Wife Sues Ralph Capone.

Chicago, March 9 (AP).—Mrs. Velma Capone, 28, filed suit for divorce today against Ralph Capone, 32, brother of Al Capone, charging cruelty. She charged him with having "beaten, struck, pinched and choked" her.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Man Is Desolated Because Girl He Loves and Planned to Marry Arranges to Return to School.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I don't like to classify myself as an invalid, but I suppose it amounts to that. I was unable to finish school because of a heart condition, but with the aid of tutors, completed the regular academic studies to my own satisfaction. Having read extensively I soon found myself writing, too, and marketing. I found I could sell a bit, but made no particular effort to do so, for I doubted that I could make a living at it.

* * * *

Two years ago I met a girl with whom I have everything in common. We read together, went to concerts together and were happy only when we were with each other. We finally admitted our love, though we knew marriage was impossible—for a while, at least. Her family was partially dependent upon her earnings and the income I receive from a trust fund is scarcely enough for my own support.

* * * *

She was clerking in a store and I could see she hated it. I tried to think of some way out. Then I took a job at manual labor, but just as the doctor had warned, I was soon suffering an attack. While recovering, I formed a plan that I thought would be the answer to our problem. I decided to write a book about which we often talked. I knew it would require a great amount of reference work and research, which she is particularly fond of doing. She was proud and excited at the idea of our working together. But I hungered for what its financial success would mean to us.

* * * *

Then quite suddenly her family found the way clear to send her to college, where, according to their plan, she is to take a particular course and then return to fill a certain position they have mapped out for her. She had been disappointed years before in not getting to go to college, and although the course her family stipulated was repellant to her, she accepted the offer, telling me it was her duty and at the same time professing her love for me. I was utterly dismayed and bewildered. She admits her family regards it as an investment. Doesn't she see, then, how eternally obligated she will be?

* * * *

Can she love me as much as she says and leave me for this? When we might have known independent happiness through our own efforts? Yet she cannot see it as affecting "us" in any way. I realize I've been indulging in the sin of self-pity and have been trying to work my way out of it. I could not, it is true, offer her anything at present and this is a chance for her own betterment. But I am still deeply hurt and believe if she really loved me she would have wished to stay here and work out our happiness together. I shall be deeply grateful for any light you may be able to give. I am tormented daily with the fear that she may find someone at school who will replace me in her heart. TOM.

* * * *

What to Believe.

DEAR TOM: In my opinion, the girl's family has arranged, at some sacrifice, to send her away to college for the deliberate purpose of putting an end to this rather hopeless engagement. They probably feel that almost any other disposition of her future is to be preferred to marriage to a semi-invalid whose financial prospects they regard as dubious in the extreme. They probably do not think that such a book as you propose to write would, even if written, provide a lasting or even a temporary solution of the money problem. Furthermore, they probably look askance upon your willing exploitation of her time, energies and intelligence, in an effort to overcome a personal handicap.

* * * *

Looking at the situation through your eyes, I can see how you might, through sheer wishful thinking, visualize it as a mutually worthwhile investment, potentially productive of mutual profit; that you might regard it as the inspired answer to your desire to marry this girl. And yet, there is something extraordinarily naive about a man's supposing, nowadays, that his authorship of a book is going to put him in the assured-income class. (As I heard our own book page editor say recently, "Authors are a dime a dozen today. Everybody, apparently, is writing, has written or is about to write a book.") Writing a book because you have something to contribute, artistically or instructively, to the sum total of culture and knowledge, is one thing, and writing a book in order to make money is something else again. Because a book is good of its kind, it does not necessarily follow that the author shall be repaid in hard cash for the effort expended. The only repayment he can count upon is the sense of personal satisfaction he achieves through having placed, his knowledge or thought on record.

* * * *

Now, let us consider the girl's side of the question. If you are wretched over the turn of events, it is possible she feels equally unhappy. After all, the burden was upon her to make a hard decision and she found the courage to make it. Time alone (as she probably realizes) will tell whether she chose rightly or wrongly. However, inasmuch as she has seen fit to fall in with her family's plans, you are justified in questioning the quality of her love for you. Frankly, I doubt that she knows her own mind fully, in regard to you. Consciously or subconsciously she may sense the fact that she has not yet found herself, in relation to life and love; and may hail this proposed course of study as opportunity for enlarging her social horizon, as a means of escape from a hated "clerking" job, and as a chance for testing the authenticity of her interest in you.

* * * *

As a girl with an intellectually inquiring mind, hungry for a college education, fond of reference work and research, it may be that her interest in you has been more that of a student in her professor than that of a maid in a man. No doubt she found with you a mental stimulus and a cultural companionship which, compensated in some measure for the college education she thought she was never to have. Her pride and excitement at the thought of collaborating with you on a book may not have been rooted in sentiment. She may have been intellectually gratified to suppose that you, her guide and mentor, thought her capable of making a valuable contribution to literature. Her emotional interest in you could be, without her consciously realizing it as yet, more maternal than sweethearting. A man's semi-invalidism and complete dependence upon a woman's social and mental companionship make a powerful appeal to her sympathies. I can see how such a girl, frustrated professionally and socially, might fall into close companionship with such a man as yourself, think herself in love with him, and yet not be really in love with him at all. She could be as sincere about it as she was mistaken, until a change of circumstance conspired to show the relationship in its true light.

* * * *

On the other hand, of course, it could be that the girl's very love for you impels her to try to increase her earning capacity, knowing while she does it that you cannot understand her motives or trust her loyalty. Since your earning capacity is variable at best, the girl would be wise indeed—if marriage to you is what she plans—in becoming a specialist in some line of endeavor which would make her comfortably self-supporting. If she has no aptitude for department store work, she is certainly buried in a dead-end job today, and you would be selfishly inconsiderate in encouraging her to remain in it.

* * * *

I take the best attitude to take toward the turn of events is the philosophical assumption that "what is to be, will be." Bid her godspeed in her educational undertaking; show the most sympathetic and encouraging interest in her plans; take the burden of writing the book upon your own shoulders, where it rightfully belongs, and so plan that by the time her schooling is finished, and she is ready to return to the business or professional world, your book will be on the market. Try not to be jealous of the new acquaintances and friends she will undoubtedly make in the new environment; be glad for her that she has this opportunity for finding herself anew; and develop such self-respect, and such reasons for respecting yourself, as to know that while she may meet men who are not burdened with your particular handicap, she can never meet a finer man than yourself, nor one who would more seriously or unselfishly devote himself to making her, in all ways, happy.

* * * *

If it should eventually develop that this is but the beginning of the end of your association; if new friends and new interests and new educational and social opportunities take her altogether away from you, then remember that it is for the best. I am sure you would not wish, as a sweetheart or as a wife, a woman who accepted you simply because she had no alternative.

Pink and Black.

Paris (AP).—Pink and black are a smart color combination. Strawberry pink pique makes a three-quarter swagger coat with wide-cut elbow-length sleeves to top a black crepe dress with pink pique collar and belt.

A First Lady and Some of Her Mementoes

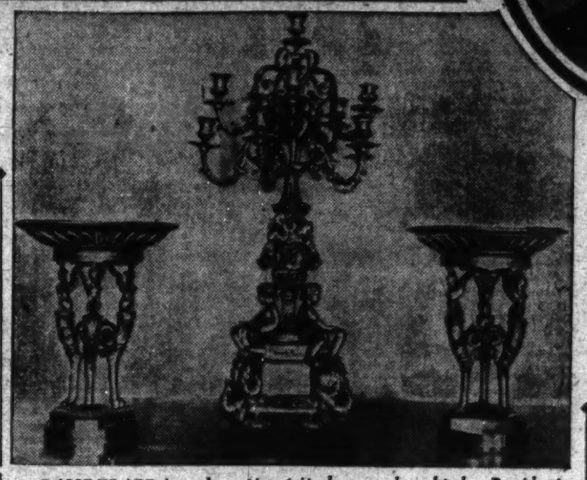
THE INFLUENCE of Mrs. Elizabeth Kortright Monroe, wife of the fifth President, is strongly felt in White House atmosphere today. Some of the beautiful furnishings selected by Mrs. Monroe for the White House, when it was rebuilt after being destroyed by the War of 1812, are among the most interesting pieces at the mansion.



CANDELABRA and empire tripod vases bought by President and Mrs. Monroe for the White House are shown above. These are part of the furnishings purchased and put in the mansion after it was rebuilt following the War of 1812.

Mrs. Monroe's Influence Is Most Apparent of Them All.

By Vylla Poe Wilson.

WOMEN who have presided at the White House have contributed their part toward the preservation of the atmosphere of the old mansion. From Mrs. John Adams, first chatelaine, to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt these First Ladies have been faithful custodians of the traditions of the home of Presidents of the United States.

Evidences of the contributions of these women in keeping the White House in its original character are seen in the furniture decorations of historical significance which are scattered through the stately rooms, adding mellow accents to modern improvements.

Silent witnesses of the days when Mrs. John Adams worried about the supply of wood for the fireplaces, when Thomas Jefferson had his own ideas of White House etiquette, and when Dolly Madison held levees that made social history are the mantel pieces in the Green Room and the Red Room. These and the large mahogany doors so widely admired are among the few fittings of the White House before the War of 1812 still in existence. The mantel in the Green Room is chipped and cracked in places. The marble slab is supported by two classic figures with cushions of marble on their heads. The Red Room mantel is much the same type

A Minor Relic.

Another relic of the very early days which some authorities say was in the White House in the John Adams period is a small wall mirror.

The most interesting, perhaps, of the historic relics are those that formed part of the elaborate furnishings provided or ordered by President and Mrs. James Monroe when they moved into the rebuilt White House after it had been destroyed by the British in the War of 1812. These are of special significance because they represent a theme of simplicity and elegance. This has had a direct bearing on the plans for the White House ever since.

The story of the Monroe furnishings and the furore they caused in those days is an important part of White House history.

President Monroe had served as Minister to France, Spain and England. As wife of the Minister of France, Mrs. Monroe had purchased furnishings befitting the dignity of the Legation of the United States of America. It is said that some of the furnishings were purchased from the effects of unfortunate Marie Antoinette. This has never been fully authenticated. The Monroes brought their furnishings back to this country with them and many of them were placed in the White House. Many others were ordered from France later.

Among the Monroe furnishings now in the White House are the Minerva clock and vases of bronze gilt which used to be in the Red Room but are now in the Blue Room, and the Hannibal clock and vases now in the Green Room. The gilt is wearing off both clocks and vases but the figures of Minerva and Hannibal guard them quite as effectively and they tick off the minutes and hours.

Also, in present-day use at the White House on state occasions is the surtout de table which was included in the French furnishings of the dining room by Monroe. It is of gilded bronze with handsome carved classic figures of women, garlands of flowers, fruits and vines and figures of Bacchus and Bacchantes. This elaborate centerpiece with its companion candelabra, fruit baskets and flower vases and magnificent mirrored plaque cost 6,000 francs. The judgment of Mrs. Monroe is justified although there was a loud outcry about the price in that day. This handsome table ornament is as suitable and stately today as it was when distinguished guests were invited to dinner at the White House in Monroe's day.

Other articles of the original Monroe furnishings are the sofas and chairs which belong to the Monroe room on the second floor, two vases decorated with views of Bassy and Franklin's home; standing candelabra of a design used as a guide for all the standing candelabra ordered for the White House.

The Gilbert Stuart portrait of Washington, saved by Mrs. Madison when she fled from the White House as the British invaded Washington, is important as a White House historical relic.

Mrs. Hoover's Search.

Mrs. Hoover searched through the mansion and the records and restored the room used by Mrs. Monroe as a sitting room to much the same character it had during Mrs. Monroe's regime. Mrs. Roosevelt wanted to use this room as a family living room so the valuable furniture that belongs to the White House was placed in the corridor outside to protect it from wear and tear. The portrait of Mrs. Monroe, which Mrs. Hoover had copied from one owned by Mrs. Monroe's great granddaughter, the late Mrs. Rose Gouverneur Hoes, still hangs in the Monroe room.

It is said that Miss Nellie Arthur, the schoolgirl daughter of President Arthur, who was too young to be her father's hostess, really selected the handsome mahogany clock at the end of the state corridor near the door of the State Dining Room which plays such an important part in the routine of White House state functions.

Recent First Ladies have also left their mark on the White House. Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt's good taste was responsible for the restoration of many features of the mansion to their original form at the time the White House was remodeled during her husband's term of office.

The kidney shaped mahogany desk she used is in the upper corridor of the White House. Mrs. Coolidge is responsible for the restoration of the Green Room to its early character. She also found the handsome silver ship now used for luncheons and informal dinners, blackened and forgotten in the attic of the White House. The first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson rummaged about in hidden corners of the White House and found many treasures. She was responsible for the replanning of the White House gardens, the rose garden and the President's walk. Rosebushes grown from clippings of bushes planted by Dolly Madison and other historic personages were carefully preserved.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, March 9.

THE ARRIVAL of the three princesses of Albania in our city has, up to this moment, utterly confused and baffled the ever-helpful press. The Fourth Estate, in fact, now feels like the eighth or ninth! Our complete frustration, up to now, is entirely due to those pesky cable stories which said frankly that the young ladies were coming to the great Democracy of the West to look over its marriageable young men. There was no fiddle-faddle about negotiating trade agreements. So we are thrown for a very serious loss, in a business way.

No doubt these advance notices were most distasteful to the bachelor-girl sisters of Zog I. They certainly showed it when the Comte di Savoia slithered to a stop at quarantine. It was a bitter afternoon on the waters, and for three hours we were held at bay until Myzejen (eldest and spokeswoman), Ruhie and Maxhide came forth to face the questioners and the cameramen. Incidentally, one local genius, weary of the struggle with the names, has already called the girls "Winken, Blinken and Nod," which may start a war with their homeland. But they did emerge, finally, and made no bones about their dislike for the whole vulgar ordeal. I found them somewhat less chic, but a great deal more regal, than I had anticipated. The cross-examination began. Naturally, there was only one question that mattered. We didn't care a moan in a gale what they thought about international politics. Finally one sturdy professional soul popped it—were they really here to seek spouses, preferably well-heeled?

* * * *

No dice—not even one die. Minister Konitza, their greeter and interpreter, batted this one back immediately, and with great force. Whereupon the last shutter clicked, and the princesses were whisked to the Ritz. I only know that they want to see Yellowstone Park and our Girl Scouts, and have no interest in night clubs. Well, the young ladies will miss a lot of fun, then, whatever the purpose of the royal visit!

* * * *

Those who saw the unhappy plight of Miss Jeanette MacKelvie on a Hudson Pier the other day say it was one of the most gruelling ordeals they've ever shuddered through. But think of her! She had to unpack trunk after trunk of a gorgeous trousseaux—purchased abroad for her marriage to George L. Sclater-Booth. It cost her 4 hours, $1,256, and no doubt a gallon of tears. These customs lads will stand no careless monkeyshines!

Vogue of Skirts Restores Blouses To Peak of Chic

New York (AP).—Blouses have hit a new high on the barometer of chic.

The fashion world has launched more of them this spring than it has in years, because of the vogue for suits and for the "skirt and blouse" mode. There are as many different kinds as there are frocks.

First comes the lingerie blouses of crisp white organdy or batiste with short sleeves and high frilly necklines, often touched up with Valenciennes lace. There is also a set of smart but prim designs reminiscent of the ninteen hundreds, made of handkerchief linen or silk pique and cut with long sleeves and high collars accented with a tailored bow.

One of the most important designs is known by many names. It is the high necked, full sleeved, "bloused blouse," which the fashion world has dubbed "balloon," "Gibson Girl," "Gaucho" and a half dozen other catchy titles. This is made of dull white or pastel colored crepe and is the one chiefly chosen to wear with separate pleated skirts to make the popular skirt and blouse team.

Intriguing New Cotton Due to Appear Soon

New York (AP).—Some of the most intriguing cottons the fashion world has produced in years are scheduled to appear on the summer fashion scene. Among the amusing novelties are bed ticking twill and bed sheeting splashed with gay floral prints. There are new piques—cloques with raised designs such as fish and leaves, and printed ones with such bright patterns as Mexican hats. Corded and ribbed cottons, which are scheduled for an important play, and new glazed sports chintzes splashed with designs which suggest Cezanne paintings are likewise seen.

The Casual Mrs. Brown

(An Interview.)

"Mrs. Brown, your friends speak of you as 'so delightfully casual.' How did you ever—that is, were you just born that way?"

"No, indeed. I was born very formally. I spent years learning to be casual."

"How did you happen to take up the study?"

"Well, for one thing, I observed that no woman ever arrived socially until she became known as 'casual.' For another I found that being casual made life much easier."

"How do you mean?"

"Well, if you are known as 'casual,' no one expects you to—well, be on time, keep engagements, write thank-you notes, put guests at their ease, bother to talk to bores at parties; in short, do any of the innumerable things you ought to do."

"That sounds fascinating. How may a woman become casual?"

"It is a great help at the start if she is a little nearsighted. Then she will never see a lot of people she doesn't want to see."

"But if she isn't nearsighted?"

"It is still very simple. You see, the truly casual woman never looks at anyone very directly—certainly not with any hint of personal interest. An excellent way to acquire the casual look is to practice training your eyes as distant vistas."

"What else is necessary to be casual?"

"Being a little hard of hearing is a great help. Failing that, it is well to cultivate absent-mindedness. That will save the necessity of answering a lot of perfunctory questions."

"What other defects—I beg pardon, assets—should the casual woman have?"

"She should by all means have a poor memory. She should never remember the face of anyone she meets until after at least seven introductions. She will find this comparatively easy if she will glance at every newcomer with a glazed eye and a faraway look."

"Doesn't the casual woman ever converse?"

"Oh, yes, of course, but casually. She should address everyone as though she were either talking to herself or giving an offhand opinion to a salon group. Of course, it goes without saying, she never asks any questions."

"What is that?"

"Someone might answer them and create another center of interest."

"But when nobody is talking—how does she start conversation?"

"She doesn't start it. She blows smoke from her cigarette and gazes into the distance."

"But doesn't the casual woman ever show any interest in anything?"

"Oh, yes, certainly. When the conversation revolves about herself, her eyes will light up and she will speak with great animation and charm. Remember—one of the first rules of being successfully casual is never to profess an interest in anybody except yourself."

"But, Mrs. Brown, when the casual woman is a hostess, doesn't she—well, have to be a little less casual?"

"Not at all. She is then a casual hostess. In fact, she prides herself on her casual entertaining. She doesn't bother about her guests. She knows the more aggressive ones will take care of themselves and the others don't matter anyhow."

"But suppose she is a guest herself—doesn't she feel any obligation to her hostess?"

"Certainly not. Hostesses like casual guests because they always look out for themselves so successfully."

"But isn't the casual woman considered rude?"

"On the contrary, she is considered a woman of mystery and poise."

"What does she get out of being casual?"

"She saves herself a lot of the dirty work of life; she feels that she is very modern, and she gets written up in the society column as 'the delightfully casual Mrs. So and So.'"

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

Smaller Women Have Tendency to Pick Up Weight Easily.

By Ida Jean Kain.

SIXTY-FIVE per cent of American women are less than 5 feet 4 inches tall, with the majority bordering on buxom.

The relation of height to weight determines the amount of food you can eat without gaining, and it's the "little woman" who has the greatest difficulty in controlling her weight. Let's compare two girls of the same weight with different heights. Take one girl 5 feet 3 inches tall, the other 5 feet 6, both weighing 130 pounds: The tall, thin girl will lose weight on the same amount of food that causes the short, stocky girl to gain weight.

If you are the short, stocky type, you burn comparatively few calories per pound body weight. Besides having a small surface area, in proportion to your weight, you have less active tissue, more fatty tissue. The active tissue uses calories; the fatty tissue does not. On top of all this, more than likely, you love to eat, loathe exercise and, long before you are 40, are a little dumpling, not a stylish stout.

Nerves Nicely Padded.

On the other hand, there are compensations. There is every probability that you also have a genial disposition and get a lot of fun out of life. Your nerves are nicely padded, so that you are not easily upset, and a boundless vitality protects you from being tired out and worn to a frazzle.

While your type would have to be emaciated to look ultra-streamlined, and good dispositions are too rare for you to take chances with yours, there are three alternatives which, in combination, will obviate the middle-age spread.

Compare the two figures; both can be stylish.

The eye is quicker than the diet; so we'll take up clothes first. Learn to choose the clothes which give the optical illusion of height and slimness. Best for you are up-and-down lines, narrow belts, dull-finish material and straight skirts. The V neck gives height and is more flattering than the round or square neckline. On the taboo lists are shiny belts, excess padding at the shoulders, puffed sleeves and sleeves that stop at largest part of the bust, and skirts with braiding, ruffles or crosswise stitching to break the length. To look tall and slim try a dress buttoned all the way down the front with V neck and fitted sleeves, straight not more than 13 inches from the floor, dull-finish fabric and smooth material. With it wear a hat with turned-up brim or trimming that takes the eye upward. You will be amazed at how much slimmer you look.

Protective Foods Should Be Used in All Reducing Menus.

Change Food Habits.

Change your food habits from fattening to slimming in order to keep within your low calory requirements. If you would make it a rule to take only fruit for dessert, you would do more for your figure than by any amount of haphazard dieting.

Keep your muscles in good tone and your waistline well defined with daily stretching and twisting exercises. It is better not to go in for violent exercise; you might increase that appetite.

Jules Henry, Retiring French Aide, Feted

Counselor Will Be Wined and Dined Right Up to Time of Departure, Day After Tomorrow; Carries Testimonial Loving Cup.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Sports Editor.

The most widely feted person around these parts is Jules Henry, retiring counsel of the French Embassy, who has been guest of honor at as many parties as his calendar would hold in the last week, and will be wined and dined right up to the time of his departure . . . day after tomorrow.

Going along with him—probably in his very best suitcase—will be the handsome silver loving cup presented to him at the "bon voyage" tea given yesterday afternoon in his honor by Representative and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon at their home on F street. The memento distinctly is not one of those you win three times before it's really yours. Inscribed on it are the words, "To Jules Henry from his Washington Friends, 1938" . . . which makes it a trophy with no ifs, ands or buts attached.

HOPE R. MILLER.

Below the inscription are names of 60 of Mr. Henry's local admirers engraved in facsimile handwriting. Representative Bacon made the presentation speech; and later the loving cup, bubbling with champagne, was passed around to the guests, who took a sip for luck and auld acquaintance. Most of those whose names appeared on the gift were on hand for the party that preceded and followed it.

Once Mr. Henry has a chance to settle down after his farewell parties, he will be able to find among the autographs on his cup those of many of his friends who have known him for many years, plus a few of his newer acquaintances.

Cup Bears Signature of Many Social Notables

Among the signatures are those of Mrs. Truxtun Beale, Mr. and Mrs. F. Lammot Belin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. Merriam Curtis, the United States Minister to Switzerland and Mrs. Leland Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. William McKee Dunn, Mrs. Tracy Dows, Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Garrett.

Also, Senator Vandenberg, Senator Millard Tydings, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Laughlin, the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mrs. Ingalls Sard, Mme. van Kaathoven, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Arthur Krock, Mrs. Granger Blair and many, many others.

The Bacon tea was hardly over when M. Henry rushed away for his next social engagement. He was guest of honor at a stag dinner given last night by the Swiss Minister, Marc Peter. All the 14 men who sat at the table were very old, very close friends of M. Henry. Three of them—the Argentine Ambassador, Felipe A. Espil; the honorary attache of the British Embassy, Harold H. Sims, and the host—were members of the Diplomatic Corps in Washington 18 years ago when M. Henry was an attache.

Remaining social "dates" for M. Henry before his departure on Saturday include luncheon today with M. and Mme. Lucet, of the French Embassy; a luncheon tomorrow, given by the Overseas Writers, and a dinner tomorrow evening given in his honor by Mr. and Mrs. George A. Garrett.

Of Social Note Here and There

Mr. and Mrs. William Phelps Eno have cards out for a reception on Thursday, March 24, from 5 to 7 o'clock . . . Mme. Eero Jarnefelt has invited a few friends to luncheon tomorrow . . . When Mrs. Donald Richberg and Mrs. Arthur Henning give their joint birthday musicale tomorrow, Mrs. Henning will sing a group of Schubert songs and Howard Mitchell, cellist for the National Symphony Orchestra, will play . . . Mr. and Mrs. Edward Karrick Morris have returned from a month's vacation in Florida. Most of their time there was spent at the Mountain Lake Club, near Miami . . .

Among visitors dropping by the Corcoran gallery yesterday afternoon to see Miss Elizabeth Poe's exhibition were Mrs. Benjamin Rogers, of New York, who recently has become an artist herself. Three years ago, she had never put brush to canvas; had never, in fact, entertained the slightest desire to paint. In Paris, a display of modern art, which was worse than most, gave her and several of her friends the idea they could do as well, at least, as the painter who was exhibiting. Elsa Maxwell urged them to try. A bowl of poppies, painted soon afterward, was Mrs. Rogers' first attempt. Acclaim of not only her friends, but also some well known critics, inspired her to stay at it. Her home in New York has a studio on the top floor. She spends much of her time abroad, and wherever she takes a house, she manages to turn a room into a studio before she stays there long. According to present plans, she will be off to France in a few weeks and will spend the spring and early summer in Grasse—painting away. Accompanying Mrs. Rogers to Miss Poe's exhibition were Mrs. J. W. Alsop, of New York, and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth . . .

William Draper, of Boston, is visiting his aunt, Princess Boncampagni, at the Mayflower . . . The Misses Mary and Elizabeth Howry will entertain at luncheon today for Mrs. Hugo Black . . . The Canadian Minister and Lady Marler will give a dinner tonight . . . The Chinese Ambassador has cards out for a dinner on Tuesday, March 22 . . . Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone will have dinner guests on Wednesday, March 23.

Capt. Isaac L. Kitts will also give a demonstration on his Olympic dressage mare, American Lady, and a new surprise feature will round out the event.

French Envoy Is Guest At Mrs. Robbins' Dinner

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

A CERTAIN MEMBER of the Diplomatic Corps is even more amazed than most foreigners have reason to be at American publicity methods.

DUDLEY HARMON

Several weeks ago she went to a Northern resort for the skiing. As the weather was bad, the party spent most of its time indoors. What was her amazement to see, on her return to Washington, a picture of herself dashing merrily down a mountain on skis. The face looked familiar, but there was something definitely unrecognizable about her sports outfit. Suddenly she realized that the publicity director at the resort had pasted a picture of her head onto somebody else's body dressed in ski clothes! Lacking such a photograph, he had invented one for adve tising purposes.

THE CHICAGO OPERA COMPANY, now playing at the Rialto, is attracting a number of well-known Washingtonians, although it is not by any means ballyhooed as gala-gala, and few bother to dress. Among those in the audience the other evening were the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, Ralph Snowden Hill, Senator Theodore F. Green (he came alone) and Mrs. Frank Letts.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Sayre are extremely fond of music. In their library they have a notable collection of entire operas and a victrola which plays all the way through the album without the records having to be changed.

NOT ALL FOREIGN WOMEN think Americans are stupid to have "ladies luncheons," which are comparatively unknown in England and on the Continent. Several ladies of the Diplomatic Corps entertain frequently at such affairs, and one of these, Frau Blankenhorn, wife of the Second Secretary of the German Embassy, did so yesterday.

Her guests included the Marchioness of Sant' Orsola, Mrs. Hamilton Bryan, wearing a tweed suit with a fur piece and a brown hat with the longest feather seen in Washington; Mrs. L. M. C. Smith in a becoming "between-the-season" outfit of navy blue; Mrs. William T. Mann, and Mrs. Morris Clark. Also there was Mrs. F. J. A. Coleby, wife of the assistant naval attache of the British Embassy. She returned only a few days ago from a two weeks' flying trip to England, hurrying back because she missed her family and "the friendliness of Washington."

Largely owing to her efforts, building of the new German Embassy, which was to have been postponed for a year, is expected to start almost immediately . . . Marquis Capomazza, of the Italian Embassy, hopes to leave in a week or so for a visit of several months in Italy . . . Mrs. Henry C. Rowland is back in Washington again after a successful visit in Hobe Sound, Fla., with her niece, Mrs. Gene Tunney. She reports that nobody in Florida seems to have heard of the depression, and says everyone is going in for modern architecture . . . Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde is on a lecture tour and, when last heard from was wowing them in Texas.

Sherman Mittell Reception Host

With Lowell Mellett as guest of honor, Sherman Mittell, head of the National Home Library Foundation, held an informal reception yesterday afternoon at the Cosmos Club. Mr. Mellett is chairman of the board of directors for the foundation.

Representatives of Washington's diplomatic, official and residential circles, plus a sprinkling of writers and journalists, made up the guests. The presence of the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Alexander Troyanovsky, coupled with the fact that the former was glimpsed in conversation with the guest of honor, gave rise to mention over the cocktails that Mr. Mellett might be the next United States Ambassador to the Soviet Union.

Earlier, however, when someone asked him, point-blank, about whether he was slated as envoy to Moscow, he declared he was not. "In the first place," he added, "no one has asked me. And that's only one of the reasons there is no chance of my being appointed." He said, however, he did enjoy his recent trip to the Soviet, and found the country "quite interesting."

Among other guests were Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Frank and their daughter, Miss Barbara Frank; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, the latter seen chatting with Senora de los Rios, wife of the Spanish Ambassador; Miss Ella O'Day, Mrs. Roberta Martin, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Blair Bolles, John O'Rourke, Mrs. Helen Halloran, and Miss Ann Touhy.

Paul Sherer, pastor of the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church, officiated.

Miss Hildred Morris, of Washington, the maid of honor and only attendant was attired in a gray two-piece suit with which she wore black accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses. E. Graham Yates, of Raleigh, N. C., brother-in-law of the bridegroom was best man.

Bill to Locate School In Danger Area Scored

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

The Woman's Safety Committee of the District of Columbia Motor Club, together with the Southwest Citizens' Association, is on the warpath against a rider on the house appropriations bill for the District, restricting the location of the proposed new Jefferson Memorial School to a section notorious for the number of casualties to school children.

Mrs. George C. Thorpe, president of the Safety Committee, reported yesterday at its joint luncheon with the men's advisory board of the Motor Club that the rider on the bill appropriating $200,000 for a new school building provides no property west of Seventh street or south of K shall be selected as the site. This restricts the location to the present site of the old school or one within a block of it—a section particularly dangerous from the standpoint of juvenile welfare. Mrs. Thorpe named as the hazards the railroad track, the viaduct at the intersection of the tracks and Sixth street and the cars of hundreds of employes of the Procurement Division of the Treasury Department, who drive to work at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Thorpe appeared before the sub-committees on appropriations of both the Senate and the House protesting the rider. It was repealed by the Senate committee, but still is to be acted on by the House.

In 1935, more than half of the accidents to children in Washington were in census tracts 61 and 62 in which the present school site is located, and in 1936, three-fourths of all casualties to children occurred in that area, Mrs. Thorpe asserted.

The original appropriation was voted last year with a rider providing it could not be used for the new building until April, 1938. It was reapproved this year, but carried the rider restricting the location, when it came out of the House sub-committee.

The Southwest Citizens Association and the Women's Safety Committee, with others interested in changing the site to a more suitable one, favor a location between Seventh and Ninth and H and I streets, which the rider cuts off by its restrictions. This area has the advantage of being centrally located for the children, Mrs. Thorpe pointed out. It is already cleared and is flanked by clean, modern buildings in contrast to the dilapidated rolling stock of the railroads. When the triangle is cleared fronting it, the site will command a view of the proposed new boulevard along the waterfront and of the river.

There are 625 children attending Jefferson School and the purchase of a site is of vital importance for the future as well as now, Mrs. Thorpe declared.

Mrs. Llyod W. Biddle, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, who was among those at the luncheon, pledged the co-operation of the federation in efforts to repeal the rider. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, is a member of the Woman's Safety Committee.

Finland's Traffic Solution Discussed

The luncheon at which Mrs. Thorpe made her report was held at the Sulgrave Club and was the first occasion on which the Men's advisory board and the Women's Safety Committee had met together. Traffic regulation in Finland was discussed at the morning session by Mme. Jarnefelt, wife of the Minister of Finland. John Ihlder, executive executive officer of the Alley Dwelling Authority, spoke at the luncheon, urging a comprehensive traffic survey for the District.

Mme. Jarnefelt, using Helsinki (Helsingfors) as an example, said the number of traffic officers there is increased with the growth of the town and they are strictly trained and enforce regulations rigidly.

The surveillance and direction of traffic belongs to the ministry of communications and public works which also has to do with everything concerning railroads—government owned in Finland—canals, waterways and postal and telegraph communication. The country is divided into districts each of which has a vehicle inspector who must have passed the examinations of a highest class motor engineer in the Technical University of Helsinki. He also must be thoroughly acquainted with traffic laws and himself have a clean driver's permit.

When a new car comes into his district, he is required to go over it and make a detailed description of it for the files. Every year, before the end of September, if he thinks the condition of some of the older cars is questionable, he calls them in for inspection and indicates repairs which are to be made. If his orders are not followed the license of the owner is revoked.

The vehicle inspector also arranges the first examinations for the drivers' permits, Mme. Jarnefelt said, and this is in sharp contrast to the simple process here. The applicant brings a certificate from a driving school and, if he wants to be a taxi or a bus driver, must know the mechanism of his car and be able to make repairs himself. He must also present a certificate of birth, good character, a doctor's certificate and photographs of himself. If he passes driving and oral examinations and knows his traffic rules, the inspector gives him a card indicating the inspector's opinion of his fitness as a driver. With this, he must apply to the police department for a permit. He must have also a physician's certificate as to his health and certificates that he does not drink, that he leads a clean life and that he has not been convicted of any criminal offense during the past five years.

Must Look to Future In Traffic Planning

Mr. Ihlder, urging a traffic survey of the District, asserted it should not be made with a view to correcting present ills only, but should look ahead to the needs in years to come. He suggested a study which would take into consideration the points of origin and terminals for traffic as well as the street system and regulation. City planning is necessary to handle it in the future he pointed out, suggesting that parking places be provided in areas where they are essential, thus making the property around them more valuable because more accessible. The plan of a survey has been urged for some time by the motor club.

Mrs. Thorpe, who presided at the luncheon, introduced as guests of honor both the Minister of Finland and Mme. Jarnefelt, Mr. Ihlder, William Phelps Eno, the world's pioneer in traffic regulation; Mrs. Eno, Mrs. Golden Bell, wife of the assistant Solicitor General, and Mrs. H. I. Quinn, wife of the president of the District Bar Association.

Washington Cleveland, manager of the District of Columbia Motor Club, sat beside Mrs. Thorpe at the luncheon. Members of the men's advisory board who attended included Russell E. Singer, general manager of the A. A. A.; Richard M. Ham, safety director for the District of Columbia division; Richard Tupper, of the public relations staff; Edward S. Brashears, Isaac Gans, of the Alcohol Beverage Control Board; Stanley H. Horner, Pyke Johnson, vice president of the Automobile Manufacturers Association; Thomas E. Lodge, past president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; David C. Book, manager of the Alexandria Advisory Board of the A. A. Women Voters Plan Convention American principles of government and traditional American thinking about them will be the theme of the biennial National League of Women Voters' convention at St. Louis April 26 to 29, it was announced at national headquarters here.

In three "Behind the Issues" symposia, crucial questions of the present day, "What Do Americans Want Government to Do?" and "What Will They Equip It to Do?" will be presented by distinguished authorities as preparation for intelligent participation in the Congressional elections of 1938 and the Presidential campaign of 1940.

The first symposium, "Form of Government in the United States," will be devoted to a discussion of checks and balances, the relation of the executive and the leigislative branches and the power of judicial review. In this, the aim is to scrutinize democratic institutions peculiarly American in the light of the practical effects of our system of checks and balances.

The second symposium, "Scope of Government in the United States," will raise questions of increase and limitations of government enterprise in social and economic fields.

The third symposium, "Nature of Government in the United States," will compare American democracy with fascism in a way to bring out the essential nature of Americanism.

"We are anticipating that there will be presented to the delegates certain aspects of government principles and structure and of the political mind of the American people designed to be helpful to us in the work that we undertake for the next two years," said Miss Marguerite Wells, president of the league. "Americans are not always willing to equip their Government to do the very things they want Government to do.

"Traditional enthusiams about 'checks and balances' often conflicts with the need for fixing responsibility recognized as necessary to the increased burdens modern conditions put upon government."

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne.

FRIENDS of Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, candidate for first vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and its present chairman of education, were concerned yesterday to learn she was ill with tonsilitis in a hospital in Houston. She has been on a speaking tour in Texas and was to have addressed a club in St. Louis yesterday, on her way home.

Her illness will mean disappointment for the Roland Park Woman's Club, which had planned a reception in her honor tomorrow. Officers and members of the board of the Maryland State Federation and all Maryland delegates to the triennial convention in Kansas City in May were to have been entertained. On Monday, she also was to have spoken before the Kensington Woman's Community Club and from there to have gone to Roslindale, Mass., to address the Roslindale club.

Mrs. Whitehurst's illness has been the first interruption in a series of speaking engagements which has taken her throughout the country discussing the federation's education program.

MISS MARGUERITE MERIGOLD, president of the D. C. Branch of the League of American Pen Women, expressed the wish the other day that there could be occasional school programs and radio programs designed to teach appreciation of old furniture and other antiques and the importance of preserving letters from people in public life who some day may be called great.

"Most of us learn to appreciate the value of these things too late to save much that can never be replaced," she said. For many years I have bemoaned the destruction of a trunk full of letters from Henry Clay, written to my great great grandparents, the Norths, and my great grandparents, the Bedfords, to whom he was related. Vitally interested in Transylvania University (Lexington, Ky.), and a member of its board for many years, Henry Clay had young John North educated there for the medical profession.

"The husband of one of my great aunts decided one day to have a bonfire of everything around the place that he considered superfluous. When my aunt found he had burned the contents of a particular trunk she reproached him for destruction of the old letters it contained. 'Just a lot of useless old letters,' he said, but they were letters from Henry Clay, valuable from many angles aside from the family's sentiment about them."

125 D. C. Girl Scout Leaders Mark Order's 26th Birthday

Guests at Annual Dinner See Films of Camp May Flather and Discuss New National Program Now Being Drawn.

More than 125 members of the Girl Scout Leaders' Association, council members and chairmen of troop committees, last night attended the annual dinner of the association at Barker Hall of the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Christine Gawne, new president of the leaders, presided and Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, national president of the Girl Scouts of America, stopped in for greetings.

The occasion marked the twenty-sixth anniversary of the national Girl Scout organization which is being celebrated throughout the country Saturday. There were no formal talks on the program but two films of Camp May Flather were shown and explained by E. C. Canova, of the Natoinal Geographic Society, who is a member of the public relations committee of the Girl Scouts of the District, of which Mrs. Proctor L. Dougherty is chairman.

The first picture showed ceremonies in 1930, when Hoover bridge at the camp was dedicated with Mrs. Herbert Hoover, then national president of the Girl Scouts, present. The second film was taken last summer at dedication of the new swimming pool, given by Mrs. Henry Alva Strong.

Miss Gawne introduced Mrs. Maury Middleton, chairman of program for the District, who has just assumed her new duties.

The local program will be reorganized this season in line with a plan being worked out at national headquarters. Requirements for badges and other awards, which have not been changed since they were established, are to be broadened.

The new requirements will encourage a more thorough study of subjects in which a girl is interested and carry it through from her Brownie Scout days to the age when she "graduates" from the organization. The new program is planned especially to interest older girls and offer activities which will appeal to them.

Among others present at the dinner were Mrs. W. F. Crosby, commissioner of the District; Mrs. Gerrit S. Miller, jr., former commissioner and now Juliette Low representative for the District; Mrs. N. R. Ellis, chairman of the Brownie Scouts; Mrs. W. R. Chapline, a member of the council and of the camp committee; Mrs. G. E. Bowman, hostess at the National Girl Scout Little House; Mrs. LeRoy Barton, a member of the council and also a troop captain; Mrs. O. G. Hankins, chairman of training and personnel; Mrs. Edward Johnston, of the council, and Mrs. C. W. Waters, chairman of District 3.

Daughter Is Born.

Lieut. and Mrs. Herbert B. Thatcher, of Lake Field, Hawaii, announce birth of a daughter March 3 at Kapiolani Hospital in Honolulu. Mrs. Thatcher, it will be recalled, is the former Frances Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brooks, of Chevy Chase.

Delta Gammas To Hold Banquet

The Delta Gamma Alumnae of Washington will have their annual founders' day banquet and program Saturday night at 1200 Sixteenth street. Miss Cornelia Cotton is chairman of general arrangements.

Mrs. Chilton Wright will preside as toastmistress, and an elaborate program has been planned. Miss Margaret Moses is chairman of entertainment; Miss Ethel Whitlow, of decorations and menus; Miss Margaret Adams, of the program; Mrs. Oscar Sells, of costumes; Mrs. Lois Bowen, of dances; Miss Betty Yaeger, of reservations, and Miss Harriett Parks, of other arrangements.

Others participating in the program, the nature of which is not to be announced in advance, include Miss Helen Dyer, Miss Hazel Kirk, Miss Kathryn Heath, Mrs. Elizabeth Heller, Miss Anita Clark, Mrs. Francis Smith, Mrs. Harold Jacobs and Mrs. Lucille Hollister.

Those who will represent the active chapter at American University are Miss Mary Curry, freshman; Miss Ruth Dewey, sophomore; Miss Helen Palmer, junior, and Miss Kathryn Taylor, senior. Miss Olive Adams will represent local alumnae on the program.

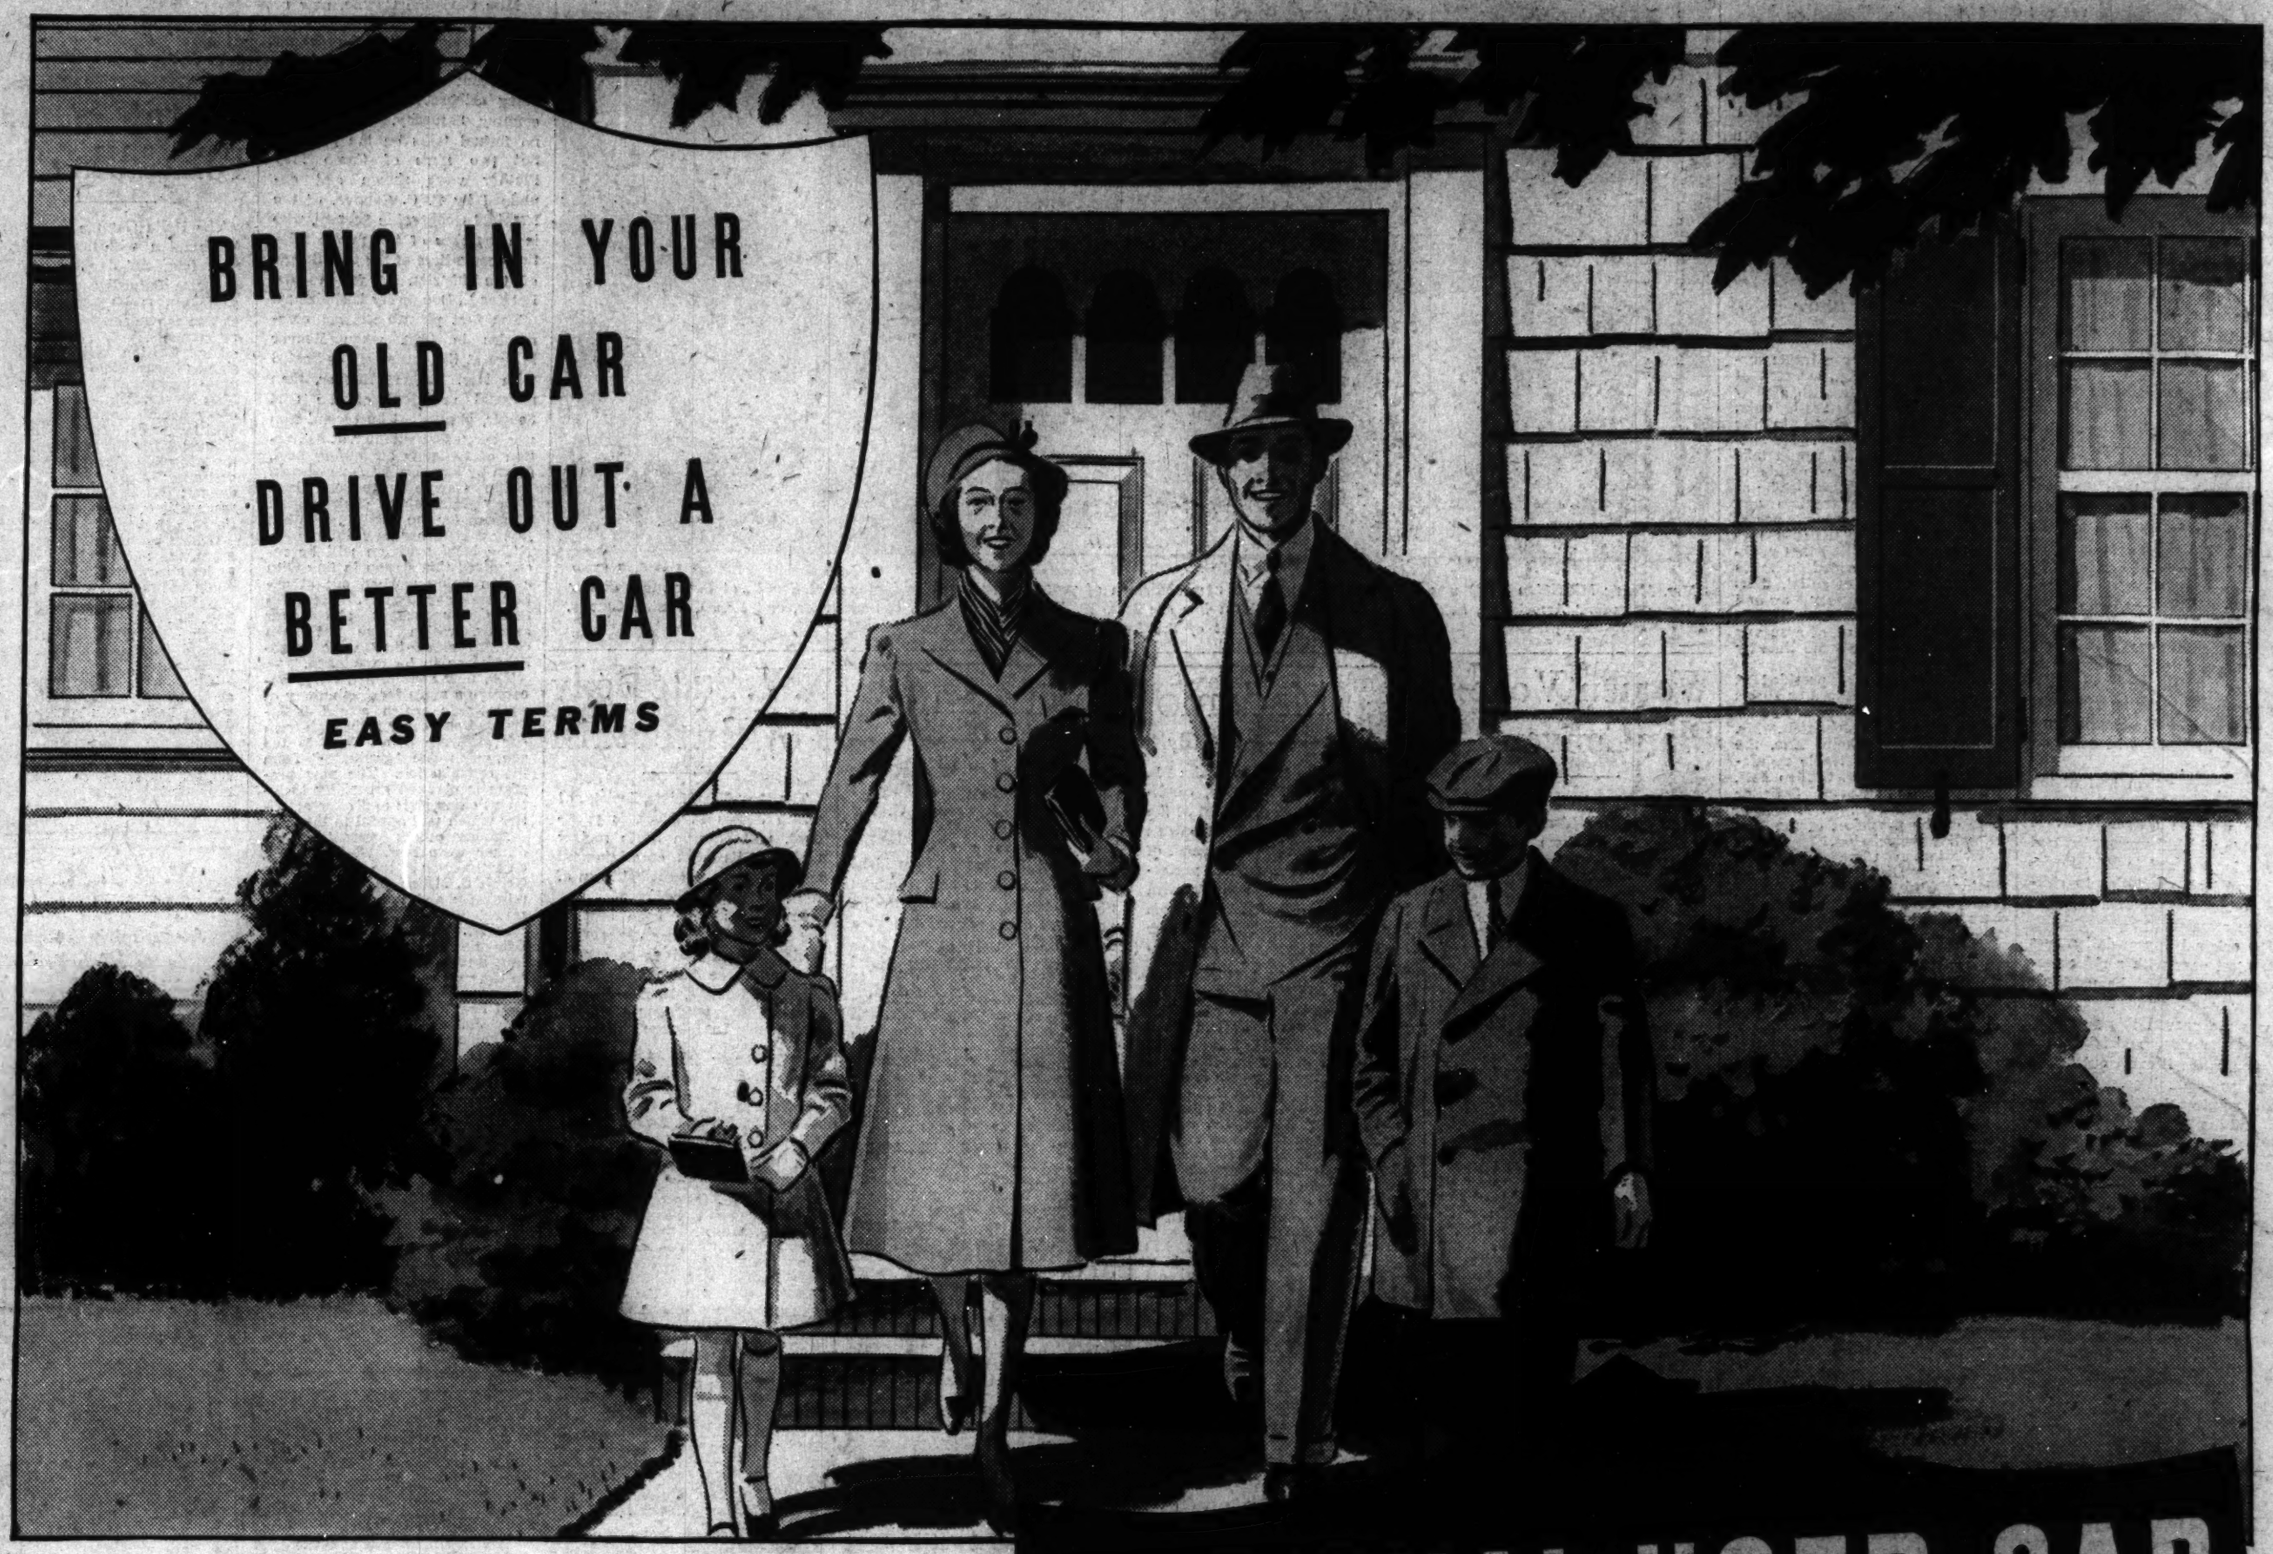
GET A CAR YOU'LL BE PROUD TO OWN AND DRIVE



THINK WHAT IT MEANS TO SAVE SO MUCH MONEY ON A BETTER LOOKING, SWEETER RUNNING, MORE MODERN CAR

Outside of the actual cash savings which National Used Car Exchange Week offers—the genuine opportunities to buy at rock-bottom prices—what's the outstanding news angle of this great event? Undoubtedly it is the discovery by owners of old cars that cars built in the last few years have improved more than they dreamed!

It's a real thrill to take the wheel of one of the many 1937, '36 or '35 cars included in this sale—and discover how a modern car handles—how much more pleasure it offers. Get ready for spring with a car that brings real pride of ownership—modern style—smooth, powerful performance—roomy bodies and luggage space—safe brakes—quieter operation—better economy—big tires—modern riding comfort . . . all yours at prices far below those of several months ago! Many of these cars are backed by dealer guarantees. You'll find a wide variety of great bargains on display—thoroughly reconditioned, clean and attractive—offering thousands of miles of first-class modern transportation.

This is no ordinary sale. Car dealers, stocked with these good used cars, have joined in a great, nation-wide co-operative movement to "get things moving."

You may not even need cash to make the switch. Your present car may cover the down-payment on the car you want. Balance on easy terms. If you have no car to trade you can still take advantage of the low down-payments and easy terms during this sale.

These bargains are GOING FAST. DON'T DELAY UNTIL THE BEST SELECTIONS ARE SNAPPED UP! National Used Car Exchange Week ends this Saturday night, March 12.

For Smart Dinners

Upswept Coiffure

Colorful

Silk marquisette is the effective medium for the gracefully simple lines of this dinner dress, for semi-formal occasions. The "little girl" bodice of purplish-blue tops a swirling skirt of shocking pink, poudre blue and red; forming a petal-like appearance. A dress for the youthfully slim, although it is an ageless creation. The tiny collar, buttoned-up bodice, short sleeves and narrow belt are interesting features. For a paradoxical touch—the heavy looking bracelet of gold lapis lazuli.

Printed Taffetta

In a silk dinner evening suit designed by Danelle; navy blue with unique white motif; worn with white organza blouse. The revere treatment and below-the-elbow sleeves are distinctive style notes. A many-purpose spring and summer suit of maximum smartness. The white straw hat with navy trimming and navy veil, by Mme. Suzy, Paris.

Cire Lace

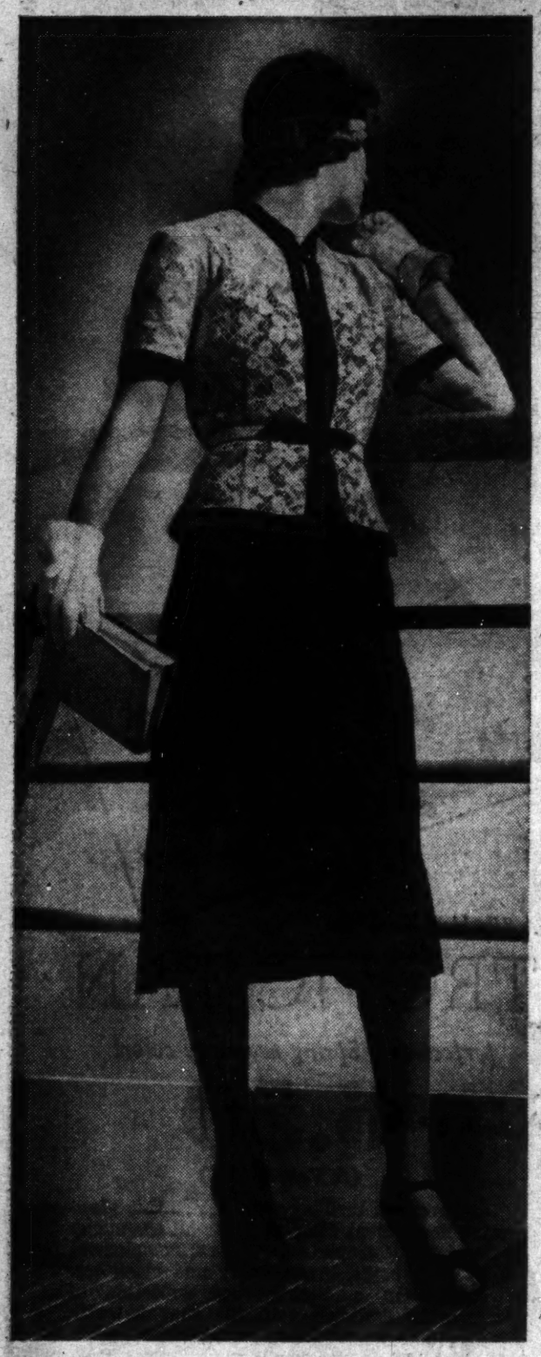
Smart Individuality

On Your Lapel

An amusing pelican of glittering stones—for the feminine touch and to add dash to your tailleur or sports clothes. Lapel decorations are a "must" this spring.

Quaintly Smart

If you are wearing a long bob of the paige boy type for daytime and want to change the effect for evening, without cutting your hair, the coiffure above is an excellent suggestion; not everyone can wear this style well, however, you have to be the right type. It also requires clothes of the "portrait" classification—quaint off-the-shoulder models with bouffant skirts and small waistlines.



Red and White

An all-over print frock in red and white, with bows and loops instead of buttons down the entire front. The short boxy jacket of red rayon suiting distinguished by large pockets.

Effective Stitching

The tailored hat goes complicated this season, with odd crowns and smart trimming; it is definitely younger in styling. Available in all of the new spring color tones with contrasting band and stitched pattern.

Linen Lace

Simple, yet appropriate for smart afternoon engagements — linen lace merged with uncrushable linen. The jacket-like top is bound with linen matching the skirt in color.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Washington, March 10.

OF THEE I SING: Of Secretary "Honest Hal" Ickes and Brain Truster Ben Cohen with their heads together over a tableful of French cooking at L'Escargot at noon . . . Of the termites which Chief Justice Hughes' engineers have routed from his big house on R street . . . Of Senator "Smarty" Smathers' triumphant pompadour.

• • • •

Chandler Roosevelt . . . cute buffer

Diplomatic dignity has been just a trifle ruffled here by recent literary revelations . . . These dished up two unconventional situations at the British and Russian Embassies in bygone years.

• • • •

First, Authoress Sackville-West dwelt fondly in her novel "Pepita" on the fact that her mother, an illegitimate daughter of the British Ambassador, was (in the time of Presidents Garfield and Arthur) his official hostess at the British Embassy in Washington.

• • • •

Recently the Countess Cassini spotlighted in print that she was the illegitimate daughter of the Russian Ambassador to the courts of McKinley and Roosevelt I, and acted as embassy hostess, while her mother was housekeeper.

"—the Capital's No. 1 balcony."

None of this, of course, involves the present British and Russian embassies, which are the souls of respectability and sedateness . . . And the time has long passed when a foreign government would dare confront our Government with such an equivocal household arrangement. They no longer regard us as a barbaric land.

• • • •

By just an eyelash Candidate McNutt missed being summoned to tell the Naval Affairs Committee of the House his view that this country must hold on to the Philippines a while to stave off war in the Far East . . . His name came up an hour or two after the committee had voted to call no more witnesses. It would have been a swell place in the spotlight for a candidate.

• • • •

When Thomas Mann, the novelist, most formidable critic of the Hitler regime, speaks at Constitution Hall tonight, observers will be present from the German Embassy. . . . At all events, Ambassador Dieckoff has tickets.

• • • •

PAJAMA PORTRAITS.
SENATOR BORAH.

Idaho's sage gained new laurels with his speech against the anti-lynching bill—the best speech of the current session . . . He is the foremost of America's elder statesmen . . . Much smaller than his head-and-shoulders pictures would indicate, his appearance is leonine, and he is a parliamentary lone wolf . . . Last week he celebrated 31 years in the Senate—two years more than any Senator. Jealous colleagues call him a prima donna and a spotlight seeker, but they fill the Chamber when he speaks. Extemporaneous singing by Senator Dennis Chavez (dove of friendship to Latin America) and his party entertained guests at the Raleigh the other evening even more than the floor show. Quinn Quits As Recreation Body Member

School Board Schedules Conference Next Wednesday.

To expedite co-ordination of the District's recreational activities the Board of Education yesterday fixed the date for a conference with representatives of all recreation agencies, and accepted the resignation of Henry I. Quinn, board member, as its representative on the District recreation committee.

Quinn turned in his resignation to the committee, on which he has served for the last two years, as a climax to a board discussion on its part in the co-ordination movement.

Quinn said he wished to retire from the recreation committee in the interests of co-operation.

"My frank and outspoken opposition to various efforts by outside agencies to interfere with, or weaken control of this board over school properties and personnel, may have given some the impression that it was not possible for me to discharge any duties as your representative on the recreation committee in a real spirit of co-operation" he announced in a statement to the board.

Scored Recreation Board.

Quinn emphasized, however, that such an impression "was not justified."

In a recent report on the Recreation Committee's work to the Board of Education Quinn criticised several of its activities and objectives. He has been particularly adverse to the Senate bill proposing a Recreation Board as the agency for directing all recreational activities in the District of Columbia. Quinn has contended such a board might interfere with the Board of Education's control over school buildings, and with its own recreational program.

In submitting his resignation Quinn asked that Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, be named in his place. He also asked that three school administrative officers be added to those representing the schools in the co-ordinating project. The three are: Mrs. Elizabeth Peeples, director of the Community Center Department; Birch E. Bayh, director of physical education, Divisions 1 to 9; and E. B. Henderson, physical education director in Divisions 10 to 13. The board agreed to both requests.

The board previously accepted a joint report from its legislative and community use of school buildings committees, approving Quinn's stand against the Recreation Board bill before a meeting of the Recreation Committee last December.

Recreation Parley Set.

Declaring that its purpose now was to "seek information" about the possibilities of co-ordinating recreation in the District, the board scheduled a conference of recreation leaders for next Wednesday afternoon.

Sybil Baker, director of municipal playgrounds; C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks; Lewis R. Barrett, coordinator of recreation, and others representing recreational agencies, will be invited, the board announced.

Dr. Ballou informed board members that union labor disputes over installation of seats in Eastern High gymnasium had prevented opening the new gymnasium. The dispute, which grew out of union charges that nonunion labor was used to install seats in the gym, has been placed before the U. S. Department of Labor.

The superintendent announced a total of $11,750 has been made available by the Government for vocational school expansion as provided by the George-Deen act.

Opening of a new sight conservation class for junior high pupils in Langley Junior High School next Monday was announced.

Woman Hurt in Crash; Motorist Is Accused

She was taken to Casualty Hospital by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad. Cecil T. Red Cross Service to Be Expanded From 15,000 to 25,000

International Situation Arouses Need of Change.

The "first reserve" of the Red Cross Nursing Service, comprising nurses eligible for military service, soon will be expanded from 15,000 to 25,000, if a current enrollment drive is successful, it was learned yesterday.

The gravity of the international situation, according to Miss Ida F. Butler, director of the service, has convinced the Red Cross that an enlarged corps of nurses is needed. This Saturday's celebration of the birthday of Jane A. Delano, wartime director of the Red Cross nurses, will be to stimulate interest of young women in the service.

"This is the first Nation-wide movement to enroll young nurses since the World War," Miss Butler said.

Only this week, she added, the Navy Department inquired of the Red Cross how many nurses were available for naval duty. Regularly about 1,000 young women trained especially for shipboard service are included in the "first reserve," she said.

Miss Butler emphasized that in wartime the Army and Navy can draw from the "second reserve," which includes married women and those who have passed the age limit of 28 set for first reserve nurses. The third reserve consists of totally inactive members who cannot be called on for war duty.

While recruiting new nurses for the Red Cross has been made part of the week preceding Jane Delano's birthday during the past 10 years, enrollment efforts are being intensified this year, Miss Butler explained.

They are: Mrs. Edith T. James, of St. Helena Sanitarium, Calif.; Miss Carrie Gordon, Miss Mildred Valk, of Emergency Hospital; Miss Ruth Compton, Presbyterian Hospital in Chicago; Miss Elise Le Mans, and Mrs. Lila Olson Roemer, of the Army School of Nursing, and Miss Mary Nelson, of Garfield Hospital. They received their badges from Miss Butler, National Red Cross Nursing director.

Miss Florence Blanchfield of the Army Nurse Corps, outlined the career of Jane Delano, who mobilized 20,000 women for overseas nursing duty during the World War.

Following her review of the wartime demands placed on the Red Cross, the peace-time activities of the organization were pictured in playlet, "On Call" presented by senior nursing students in District hospitals; and by a one-reel film, "Flood Headlines." More than 600 persons, 350 of them student and graduate nurses, attended the ceremonies.

Citizens Ask Tax On Nonresidents To Meet Tuition

The Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association voted last night to urge legislation to compel nonresident school children to pay the cost of their tuition in Washington schools.

Members held that bearing the cost of schooling of nonresident children is an unfair burden to District taxpayers. The association, traditionally opposed to local suffrage, appointed three delegates to attend the District suffrage meeting here March 18.

Speakers at the meeting were Henry I. Quinn, Board of Education member, and Miss Pauline Oak, director of the Langley Community Center. Quinn spoke on the recreational program in the schools; Miss Oak, on activities at the Langley center.

Waldron Faulkner, president of the Cathedral Heights-Cleveland Park Citizens Association, and Mrs. Clara Wright Smith, a former president, were named delegates to the District suffrage meeting when the organization met last night. S. G. Lindholm, local zoning expert, explained the proposed new zoning regulations to the members.

Reorganization Talk.

The reorganization bill before Congress will be discussed at a meeting of the Association of Non-Classified Federal Employes at 8 o'clock tonight at 1500 Rhode Island avenue northwest. The association is interested in legislation which will make non-competitive examinations possible for Federal employes who have no civil service status. George E. Blandford is president of the Washington chapter.

Action Is Sped On District Bill By Conferees

By James D. Secrest.

The $48,000,000 District supply bill was sent to conference unexpectedly yesterday, and the first parley of Senate and House managers was scheduled speedily for tomorrow afternoon.

Chairman Collins, of the House sub-committee, who returned to the Capitol earlier than was expected, predicted the appropriations total would be whittled down substantially and the entire House sub-committee and five members of the Senate sub-committee were named conferees.

Besides Collins, the House group comprises Representatives Caldwell (Democrat), of Florida; Starnes (Democrat), of Alabama; Casey (Democrat), of Massachusetts, and Engel (Republican), of Michigan.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, heads the Senate managers. Others are Senators Glass (Democrat), of Virginia; Copeland (Democrat), of New York; King (Democrat), of Utah, and Nye (Republican), of North Dakota.

Collins indicated he would go along with the Senate on the relief investigation outlined in the Senate bill. He said that Lawrence Westbrook, former aid to Harry L. Hopkins, had been recommended to him for the job of chief investigator.

Early enactment of the District supply bill will insure completion of the inquiry in time for any additional funds recommended to be included in the final general deficiency bill.

More than $2,000,000 in controversial items remain to be adjusted by the House and Senate conferees, with the highway fund appropriations farthest apart.

Collins would not say yesterday that he would accept the parking meter amendment, although Senator Thomas had stated that he had the assurance that the House would not oppose it.

War Psychology Prevails In Soviet Trials, Says Writer

Jewish Community Group Told Courts Consider Public, Not Individuals in Those Accused Crimes Against Government.

Press and people in Russia are convinced that the defendants in "treason trials" of the past 18 months are guilty, asserted Laurence Todd, Washington correspondent of the Telegraph Agency of the U. S. S. R., in an address on "The Soviet Press" at the Jewish Community Center last night.

Todd said, in reply to a questioner, that he "assumed" the Russian newspapers had carried no intimation that a minority opinion favorable to the defendants might exist in the U. S. S. R.

A war psychology has existed in Russia virtually since the Revolution, Todd declared. "Under such circumstances," he maintained, "minority opinions are not allowed a hearing. In the United States, for example, they received little expression in the World War."

In the present trials, "individual rights" are deemed less important than "the safety of the whole people from Fascist attack," Todd said.

Public ownership of the press in Russia does not imply that editors are less imaginative or socially minded than editors in countries where the press is "free," Todd stated.

"There is no certainty that the publicly owned press is narrowing to the human mind, or deprives the people of full freedom to share the best in modern culture," he declared.

The "type of people" who have grown up in the U. S. S. R. in the last 20 years "justifies the argument for a publicly owned press," Todd held. "They will be most intent on serving cultural values when the world is restored to sanity," he observed, adding that Russian journalism" will serve the world as the most useful press yet developed," by building up resistance to "backward movements."

Todd characterized Soviet papers as "very serious" and "functional," in that each industry or profession has its own newspaper expressing its desires and needs. Considerable attention is devoted to self-criticism," he stated.

Auto Testing Stations Cut From 3 to 2

None in Northwest Area; Southwest, Northeast Sites Selected.

Establishment of two automobile inspection stations in the southwest and the northeast sections of the city were recommended to the Commissioners yesterday by a special committee of District officials, under authority of recent action by Congress.

Cost for construction, equipment and personnel, estimated at $190,000, will be met from the special highway fund.

District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, chairman of the committee, said the proposed sites are the northeast corner of District-owned property at Twelfth and E streets southwest and the District-owned property on West Virginia avenue northeast just north of Mount Olivet road.

The southwest site is the lot now occupied by the wholesale farmer's market. The northeast location is now being used by the WPA as a woodyard and by the highway department.

In making the selections the committee investigated eight locations, Donovan said.

It formerly was proposed by the committee to recommend three inspection stations, the third to be in the northwest section. Donovan said that the northwest area had no available property which would be suitable for one of the stations.

Initial Fee $1.

The stations as proposed by the committee will have four traffic lanes each. The buildings will be 150 feet by 70 feet. The northeast station, it is estimated will cost $66,000, the other $60,000.

Every automobile owner in the District must have his car inspected once each year, under the new law. The initial cost to a private owner will be $1 and the succeeding cost will be 50c a year. District and Federal government cars and cars belonging to foreign government representatives will be inspected at no cost. Government cars must be inspected semi-annually.

The $1 fee will be paid at the time of registration next year, Donovan said. In event that Congress authorizes a pending proposal to move the date for tags to March 1, inspections may be completed before the date for tag issuances occurs, he added.

Jobs for 52 Persons.

Inspection of cars will begin about January 1, 1939. Gummed windshield stickers will be given owners of cars passing the tests.

Donovan said the project will employ 52 persons, 48 of them inspectors. For the one-half fiscal year beginning on the first of next year, it is estimated personnel cost will be $40,000.

Equipment will cost $20,000, and miscellaneous expenses are placed at $4,500. The entire initial outlay will be repaid the first year, when the estimated 180,000 District car owners pay their $1 fee. Thereafter the 50-cent fees will be placed in the special highway fund.

The Commissioners have indicated they would approve the committee's recommendations.

No Fight Movies For District, Say Commissioners

Previously they had instructed Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal to draft a bill which would legalize showing of fight films made in other States.

Seal drafted the bill, but informed the Commissioners it would necessitate repeal of a Federal law which prohibits transportation of fight films across State borders.

Edna Ercole, Frank Parker Heard in Composition at the Rialto.

The tragic love of Violetta Valere and Alfred Germont, set against its background of Paris salons of the last century, was re-created last night as the Chicago Opera Company presented "La Traviata."

As Violetta, Edna Ercole gave one of the best performances of the week. Her voice, with its rich, bell-like loveliness, brought rounds of applause, particularly when she sang "A Bumper We'll Drain" and "Ever Free I Shall Wander," in the first act.

As Alfred, the serious young Parisian of noble birth, who falls in love with the wayward Violetta, Frank Parker was pleasing.

As Giorgio, Mario Cozzi was excellent. Particularly noteworthy were the voices of Vivian Currier, Louis Sartori, Lodovico Olivieri, Nan Gooding and Douglas Crawford. Fulgenzio Guarrieri again drew applause as director of the orchestra.

Business Group To Seek Place In Federation

Newly Formed 7th St. Association to Ask for Membership.

Washington's newest business group—the North Eleventh Street Business Men's Association—held its first post-organization meeting last night and voted to petition for membership in the Federation of Business Men's Association.

Gathering in the Abbott School, the merchants and professional men of the arear praised the police drive on crime, and agreed that their district was rapidly becoming one of the best-policed in Washington.

Members were urged to observe Seventh street. Strict observance, and perhaps less parking of their own cars by business men, will encourage customers to visit the market and the stores, they said.

Lieut. Clarence Lutz, of the Second Precinct, told of the advantages of the parking limit. The members decided to put themselves on an honor basis as regards parking for at least a month.

The drive of the group for a membership of 300 or more was speeded up by the issuance of questionnaires to businessmen in the area. Besides Lieut. Lutz, speakers included Milton R. Vollmer, secretary of the Federation of Business Men's Associations, and A. J. Driscoll, president of the Midcity Citizens Association.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Fixations.

Preconceived notions, or fixations, are very bad at the bridge table. Of course if declarer's only chance for success depends on one hoped-for lay of cards, he should usually proceed as though he knew that condition to exist. But whenever there is a margin of safety, declarer should reverse this philosophy: He should, in short, visualize an unfavorable distribution and plan his play accordingly.

North, dealer.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's three spade jump rebid was distinctly shaded in honor tricks but, with the near-solidity of his spade suit and fair heart support, North was naturally reluctant to make a mere two spade rebid.

West decided against opening the unbid suit in favor of leading a low heart. Dummy played the seven, East the ten, and declarer immediately formed the fixed idea that East originally had held both the king and ten. Hence, on winning with the heart queen, declarer did not trouble to safeguard his contract, by taking immediate discards on dummy's spades. Instead, he made the miserable play of leading a diamond to the ace and then playing the heart jack through East, for the finesse about which he felt so confident. He was shocked when West pounced on the trick with the king, and shifted to a low club. East's ace won and, having a healthy fear that dummy's spade suit might be solid with the addition of a possible jack-small in declarer's hand, West hastened to cash the diamond king for the setting trick.

Declarer's fixation about the position of the heart king had been very costly. After winning the first trick with the heart queen, several different lines of play would have been successful. One of them would have been to cash the heart ace, then lead a spade to the ace and discard two clubs on the king and queen. West could trump the third round but dummy would now have the heart jack and the diamond ace for entries with which to establish two long spade tricks for diamond discards. Declarer would have made an overtrick, since he would concede only one diamond and the heart king.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

They Also Help.

While Washington strives to save its Symphony Orchestra, there comes to light a group of employes in the Biological Survey that has been devoted to the symphony's cause since 1933. Calling itself the Biological Survey group, these workers in May of 1933 banded together to raise funds for the orchestra and the original group—which numbered five—has now grown to 20.

This group operates separately from the enterprise of Dr. W. W. Stockberger, the personnel director, who sends around envelopes to all Agriculture employes on behalf of the orchestra. Since the establishment of the group in the survey, other agencies of the Government have taken up the idea, notably the Weather Bureau workers and employes in the National Archives.

The keystone of the survey group is Mrs. Jane S. Elliott who is as interesting as the movement she heads. The Government loses her at the end of this month—but she has promised the group to return for a short time next year to aid in the collections for the orchestra.

Mrs. Elliott retires after 27 years service, spent in the Biological Survey. She entered the Bureau when it employed only four women, and now the number has increased to the point where even a woman—even one with Mrs. Elliott's knowledge of the Bureau personnel—can't keep track of them all.

It's too bad that everyone doesn't feel as kindly to work as does Mrs. Elliott. "I've been fortunate in having to do the most interesting work anyone ever did," she said yesterday, "and whoever succeeds me will love it, just as I have."

She executes the maps on which the Bureau scientists note the various game fields of America, makes the maps for all of their work. It might seem tedious, this daily routine of drawing lines, accurate to the fraction of an inch, and the placing of small black dots to suit the exacting eyes of scientists.

But the truth is, Mrs. Elliott loves to travel. And she has the facility of traveling on those maps under her pen. She says she can feel, sense the places she draws; if the map is of Cape Cod, the great brine of the ocean fills her senses; if the map is of the plains she captures the great sweep of the prairie winds.

"I am very much like the Scotchman; when I want to take a trip I just let my mind wander," she said.

And, by way of postscript here, she is a native Washingtonian; in fact, a third generation Washingtonian, which is rare.

Artist Visitor.

Add one of the most interesting visitors to town recently: William H. Jackson, the artist, who is Uncle Sam's great-great-great-grandnephew. Jackson, who is 94, and who painted some of the Western scenes in the new Interior Museum, is so related to Samuel Wilson, who was the lanky person you often see cartooned as Uncle Sam. Jackson, incredibly spry for his age, attended the press preview of the museum this week. They asked him a lot of questions, but thoughtfully spared him the time-worn one of "To what do you attribute your longevity?" He might have answered that he is too much interested in all that's going on around him to get old, or even to think of age.

"The News has just come to my hand, and I notice with some irritation that one of the hardest working members of the association still is without the recognition of her services that she so justly deserves. I refer to Mrs. Eleanor Reid, who as chairman, or secretary, or president or what have you of the I. D. R. A. And if you think that organizing and keeping the life in a 12-team bowling league of girls without the slightest friction or dissatisfaction is an easy job, you are wrong."

Mann to Talk On Democracy

'Coming Victory' Subject of Noted German Exile's Lecture.

Thomas Mann, noted German author who is a voluntary exile from the Third Reich, a Nobel prize winner and one of the world's leading champions of liberty, will speak at Constitution Hall tonight at 8:30 o'clock on "The Coming Victory of Democracy."

Mann arrived in America last week for a lecture tour which will include leading cities of the Nation. Often called the world's greatest living man of letters, his arrival was marked by release of "Joseph in Egypt," the third volume of the Bible Story of Joseph and His Brothers—with which he has occupied himself in recent years.

At 63, exiled and traveling on a Czechoslovakian passport, Mann believes in the ultimate victory of democracy and turns toward America as the main bulwark against the destruction of liberty and freedom.

"Fascism claims to be youthful," he declared last week, "but it is democracy which has more youthful strength because it incorporates in its system man-old traditions and is so deeply rooted in mankind's search for freedom. Fascism is a lie, and dictators play a farce."

Mann and his writings always have had an eager welcome in America. Especially since his exile has he become a popular favorite. The New Yorker recently declared that his criticisms would eventually give the Nazi its only immortality.

Military Road Bill Reported in Senate

The Senate Commerce Committee yesterday reported favorably the Copeland bill authorizing the closing of Military road so Washington Hoover Airport may extend its flying field at its own expense.

While similar to a measure passed by Congress last year and vetoed by President Roosevelt, the new bill does not include the Agricultural Department's experimental farm or the lagoon in the deal.

The Copeland bill provides for payment by the airport owners of $25,000 to Arlington County for building a substitute highway and for leasing of the portion of Military road near Arlington Cemetery by the Secretary of War at $1 a year.

Nats May Surprise by Finishing Up High.

By Shirley Povich.

Orlando, Fla.

There seems to be a noticeable lack of enthusiasm in the reports of the correspondents assigned to the Washington Club's training camp and I am wondering if we are not a bit too hasty in consigning the Nats to the second division without a longer look.

POVICH.

Perhaps we scare easily. Each time we begin to wonder if, perchance, the Nats of 1938 are a first-division ball club, the ugly memories of 1937 and the Yankees and the Tigers and the White Sox and Cleveland raise their heads. Then the disposition is to write the Nats into the second division without much further thought in the matter.

Perhaps it's the logic of the burnt child. Every year, since 1934, the chances of the Washington Club have been described more or less glowingly from the South, but only one in those four seasons has the team finished in the first flight. The team that won the pennant in '33 was a poor seventh in '34, you remember. The team that was to do a comeback in '35 finished fourth and the teams which appeared well fortified in '36 and '37 were sixth-place clubs. Thus it is no pipe to work up another case of enthusiasm as the 1938 season approaches.

But I am wondering if in our hesitancy to overestimate the 1938 Washington Ball Club we are not underestimating it. That can happen. The pennant victory in '33 came as a tremendous surprise to the Washington correspondents, in case you've forgotten.

Not Bad Ball Club.

The suspicion is growing with me that the Washington team is not a bad ball club. It may even be a surprisingly good ball club this year. One thing is certain. It has a dozen good ball players. That infield of Kuhel, Myer, Travis and Lewis not only needs no apologies, but merits a paen of praise. That outfield has two ball players who measure up in Johnny Stone and Mel Almada. Rick Ferrell could catch for any club in the league and Wes Ferrell and Jimmy DeShong are proven pitchers. The Nats seemingly have the nucleus.

Briefly, the Washington Club is gambling that it will have, not a team, but a sensational team. The one spot in which they may be the weakest they also may be the strongest—pitching. The fate of the Nats seems to rest securely with two rookie pitchers—Ken Chase and Joe Krakauskas.

It is against all big-league tradition that one club can come up with two rookie southpaw stars in one season, but it can happen. Chase and Krakauskas may be a pair of flashes in the pan, but they also may be startling successes. If they justify all the promise they offered last season, then the Washington pitching staff will not be the worst in the league—it will be the best. And with that kind of pitching the Nats would be not only a first-division club but, indubitably, a pennant threat.

Youngsters Showed Well.

Somehow, it's hard to discount what Chase and Krakauskas accomplished last year. In winning four of his seven starts, Chase beat the good clubs of the league. He licked Red Ruffing, of the Yankees, twice by 2-1 scores; he outpitched Bobby Feller, and he won impressively from the White Sox. Krakauskas checked in with five victories against one defeat in those waning weeks of the season.

And don't let anybody confide in you that the hitters are not as tough late in the season as they are in midsummer. If you want the truth, they are tougher. Those two rookies were in there throwing against guys who wanted their hits to show when contract-talking time rolled around at bit later.

Chase has been trifling around Washington training camps for four years and Krakauskas has been in and out of the Nats' camps for three. Clark Griffith never would give them their outright release. He liked the hard ball they threw. They were left-handers, he reasoned, and left-handers never develop as quickly as right-handers. That's axiomatic. Perhaps Chase and Krakauskas have ripened. If they have, you'll like this Washington Ball Club.

The 1937 season was blighted for the Nats last season at the outset. They met up with the Athletics when those morning glories were the hottest thing in the league (they led the race until mid-May) and dropped their first four games with the Philadelphia Club. In fact, the Nats lost seven of their first eight games last year and were virtually out of the race before it began.

Second-Basing Mediocre.

And they never did have adequate second-basing. Buddy Myer was a sick man and a distinct handicap to the club. His substitute Johnny Mihalic, was no big leaguer for all his spring success. Well, the suspicion here is that Myer has completely recovered his health and a Myer in good health is a powerful asset to a ball club. The old Myer would look pretty nice in that infield.

There's a well-founded suspicion, too, that the Nats' catching which was the joke of the league last season is something else again this year. Rick Ferrell is rid of his hand injuries and even if he is hurt again Bucky Harris will not shudder at the thought of making a replacement.

We are talking now of young Mickey Livingston, the kid catcher from Chattanooga who is slated to be the Nats' No. 2 man behind the plate. He may be no star but he will be a huge improvement

Temple Five Wins Over Bradley Tech

Owls Score 53-40 Win to Advance to Cage Semifinals.

By the United Press.

New York, March 9.—Temple's rangy Owls, champions of the Eastern Conference, marched into the semifinals of the national invitation basketball tournament tonight with a 53-to-40 victory over Bradley Tech, of Peoria, Ill., so-called "Giant Killers" of the Midwest.

Temple, losers only to Villanova and Georgetown during a season of 22 regular games, used speed, a terrific advantage in height and accurate long-range shooting to score a victory which, although expected, amazed a crowd of 14,000 in Madison Square Garden by its decisiveness.

N. Y. U. Beats L. I. U.

New York University followed Temple into the second round by coming from behind to nose out its local rival, Long Island University, 39-37. Behind 16-3 in the first 10 minutes, the Violets kept whittling away and finally tied the score with only three minutes to play. Dan Down dropped in a field goal at that point to send them in front to win.

Temple and N. Y. U., tonight's winner, and Colorado and Oklahoma A. & M., which drew first-round byes, will be paired in next Monday's second-round play. The draw for opponents will be made tomorrow.

Bradley, undefeated in two years of competition in the Illinois Conference and halted this season only by Northwestern, of the Big Ten, never was in the ball game because, in addition to working under a terrific physical disadvantage, it was facing for the first time this year a team using the zone defense.

For a brief flash after the opening whistle the white-uniformed Midwesterners held a 4-0 lead, but then Temple went to work and by half time the Philadelphia Giants, dropping in goals from all angles, held a 25-12 advantage.

Midway through the second half, Temple built a 21-point edge before the boys from Bradley finally clicked for a few brief moments and, led by Forward Carl Schunk, who was the game's high man, pulled up to within 11 points of tying the score.

Fight Is Halted!

At that point both teams were so aroused that the referee had to separate Don Henderson, Temple guard, and Dar Hutchins, Bradley guard, who almost came to blows. A moment later, Schunk temporarily went out of action due to a bad spill, but he returned to the game two minutes later.

Schunk, with nine field goals, was high man with 18 points. Next on the list was Don Shields, Temple forward, with six field goals for an even dozen points.

Giants Annex Third From Phils, 11-8.

By the Associated Press.

Biloxi, Miss., March 9.—The New York Giants had two big batting innings today and defeated the Phillies, 11 to 8, for their third straight Grapefruit League exhibition victory.

Four runs in the first inning and four more in the sixth, two of them on a booming triple by Lou Chiozza, gave the New Yorkers a commanding lead. They sewed up the game in the eighth and ninth with three more.

Cliff Melton, allowing only three hits from the fourth to the sixth innings, was the Giants top pitching performer. Pete Sivess held the New Yorkers hitless in the second and third, after being tagged for the first four runs in the opening frame.

RED SOX ROOKIE ARRIVES.

Cramer had been detained at home because of his daughter's illness. McNair is still unsigned.

CINCINNATI 'COLTS' WIN.

Tampa, Fla., March 9.—Lee Gamble, a .305 hitter with Syracuse last season, smashed a homer with one man on base and enabled the Cincinnati "Colts" to defeat the "Vets" 7-6 today. The Vets took a five-run lead in the first five innings but the Colts made it six-all in the eighth.

WEST REPORTS TO BEES.

Bradenton, Fla., March 9.—The Boston Bees devoted most of today's session to handling bunts. Max West, recruit outfielder who hit .330 on the Pacific Coast last season, reported and completed the squad.

ROLLIE HEMSLEY MISSING.

St. Louis, March 9.—Mrs. Rollie Hemsley, wife of the Cleveland Indians' playboy catcher, declined today to discuss her husband's latest escapade, which resulted in his being ordered home from the team's training camp in New Orleans.

She came to Vienna, Mo., small town near the Hemsley farm, to answer a telephone inquiry. She said she had not heard from Hemsley and did not know if he was returning home.

* * * *

New Orleans, March 9 (AP).—Rollie Hemsley, bad boy of the big leagues who was disciplined for breaking training, apparently had checked out of his hotel today but his whereabouts was undetermined.

Yesterday, Oscar Vitt, manager of the Cleveland Indians, said Hemsley had been given a railroad ticket home for persistently breaking training in the Indians' spring camp. Immediately thereafter, the valuable catcher shut himself in his room and barred all comers.

GOMEZ TO PAY JUNE $150.

New York, March 9.—Supreme Court Justice Aaron Levy today directed Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, ace pitcher of the New York Yankees, to pay his estranged, showgirl wife, June O'Dea, $150 a week temporary alimony.

In addition to that amount, the court ruled Gomez must pay his wife's counsel a fee of $2,000. The order was in lieu of trial of a suit for separation which Mrs. Gomez filed several weeks ago.

MIZE'S BROTHER TO SIGN.

Demorest, Ga., March 9 (AP).—When Pope Mize opened his filling station this morning he found a telegram on the floor.

He beamed and almost collapsed when he read that it was from Jimmy Dykes, White Sox manager, and asked him to name his terms for a contract with the Chicago club.

Mize is an older brother of the St. Louis Cardinals' Johnny Mize.

"I'll be there tomorrow night," he said, "and I'll be ready to start all over in a game that I thought had closed its door in my face."

Title Fight For Steele

To Meet Young Corbett in San Francisco.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, March 9.—Tony Palazola, local fight promoter, said today Freddie Steele, middleweight champion, had agreed to defend his title in a 10-round bout against Young Corbett here in June or early July.

Acceptance of terms was disclosed in a telegram from Eddie Miller, manager of Steele. Palazola guaranteed Steele $25,000 and the privilege of taking 37½ per cent of the gate receipts.

Corbett, veteran of 18 years in the ring and a former welterweight champion, sounded a challenge to the middleweight division by defeating Fred Apostoli in a 10-round match here last month. It was a stunning surprise as Apostoli had recently scored a technical knockout over Steele in a nontitle affair. As a result, Corbett was recognized by the California athletic commission as world middleweight champion.

Terry's Sets 718 Pin Mark

Ed Keith's 172 High for Recreation Leaguers.

Chalking up the highest game rolled in the District this year, Terry's Appliance smashed the maples for a 718 game for an all-time record in the Recreation Bowling League last night at Recreation alleys.

Instrumental in the record game were Ed Keith's 172, Dave Williams' 104, Charlie Nicholson's 156, Fred Murphy's 127 and Cliff Hollis' 159.

Keith's set was 411, while Cliff Hollis rolled 384, aiding Terry's to whitewash Blanken's Restaurant and also deadlock the pennant issue with the University Shop.

In other matches University Shop took a 2-1 decision from Blaydes, despite El Geib's second straight 400 in the loop, a sparkling 414.

Marlboro Hotel, paced by Harry Dawson's 398; Joe Harrison's 391 and Brad Mandle's 384, knocked the Bergman's Wildcats down to third place when the hotelmen took the odd skirmish. Abe Reavers rolled 381 for the losers.

Lou Pantos' 359 featured Marvin Credit's 2-1 win over Allied Roofing, while Herzog's, led by Harry High's 374 and Jimmy Ott's 372, took the odd tilt from Cooke Press.

Horton Smith Leads At Hollywood With 66

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, Fla., March 9.—Horton Smith, of Chicago, who dropped out of the winter golfing caravan for a physical check-up, rejoined it today in a big way—with a five-under-par 66 for the first-round lead in the $3,000 Hollywood Open.

The smiling blond pro rimmed the cup with a 6-foot putt on the eighteenth green, but his 66 was good enough for a two-stroke lead over Wiffy Cox, of Washington.

Ed Oliver, of Wilmington, Del., moved into the third slot with a 69 while ten others, including an amateur, Frank Strafaci, of New York, bettered par with 70s.

Smith said his physician at Springfield, Mo., told him he was in excellent condition.

Scored Six Birdies.

"Twelve years of steady golf just made me feel a little dull, I guess," smiled Smith.

There was nothing dull about his golf today. Firing his approaches dead to the pin and putting efficiently, he clipped off six birdies and wandered over par just once. He went out in 33, three under par, and came home with another 33, two below.

Met Has 71.

Strafaci played steady golf with a 35 on each side to lead the amateurs. Close on his heels was Robert Sweeny, British amateur champion, with par 71.

J. Schwartz Again Wins

D. C. Handball Titlist Is Second-Round Victor.

District Champion Jack Schwartz and three out-of-town players moved safely through the second round of the Junior National A. A. U. handball tournament at the Y. M. C. A. last night, with three seeded local players being the chief victims.

Schwartz, recently recovered from an attack of flu which stripped 15 pounds from his stocky frame, received his second break from the drawings and came through with a comparatively easy 21-6, 21-17 victory over youthful Walter Engelhardt, the District's No. 3 player.

Al Blum, Baltimore Y. M. H. A. veteran, engineered the most startling upset of the tourney when he came from behind in each of the last two games to take a hard-earned decision from Isadore Levinson, of the Philadelphia Broadwood A. C.

Levinson had little trouble in winning the first game by a 21-15 margin, but dropped the second game when Blum staged a courageous rally to run out the game at 21-14. Levinson was off to a good start in the third game and quickly ran up a 17-to-10 advantage.

Blum rallied again to deadlock his opponent at 19-all, then unleashed two smashing, unreturnable kill shots to take the match.

Edward Linz, New York A. C. entry, made his first start an impressive one with an easy 21-3, 21-4 victory over George Wenlandt, of the Central "Y." On the strength of his play last night, Linz appears to be the man to beat for the title.

Walter Plekan, of the Buffalo Y. M. C. A., continued his winning ways with a 21-10, 21-10 win over John Payne, of the local "Y."

West Virginia Pitcher To Try Out With Nats

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., March 9.—Maurice Johnson, ace pitcher of the 1937 Berkeley Springs High School baseball team, will be given a tryout by the Washington Senators upon their return from spring training.

Florida Vs. Texas.

Gainesville, Fla., March 9 (U.P.).—Florida will play Texas in football in Austin September 20, 1940, and here December 7, 1940, Josh Cody, Florida athletic director and coach, announced today.

Kuhel, Myer Not on Block, Griffith Says

Story Is Branded False by Presidents of Both Teams.

Harris Fears Club Will Be Easy Prey for 'Southpaws.'

President Lou Comiskey, of the Chicago White Sox, told The Washington Post late last night that the Bonura-to-Washington trade hasn't been discussed since the baseball meeting last winter when Clark Griffith turned it down.

A report that Bonura would be traded to the Nats was widely circulated in baseball circles last night.

"We made the offer, all right," said Comiskey in a special communication to The Post, "but not a word has been mentioned about it since that winter meeting.

"The Nats at that time thought the price of giving Kuhel and Myer was too high and I suspect that Mr. Griffith still thinks so. Any reports that the matter has been brought up recently are absolutely false."

Griffith Denies Report.

In the meantime, Clark Griffith, at the Nationals' training camp at Orlando, Fla., told a Washington Post representative that he had not been contacted by the White Sox concerning the trade.

"Mr. Comiskey has made no move to reopen negotiations since the matter was first brought up at the winter meeting," said Griffith, in a statement that paralleled Comiskey's remarks to The Post.

Griffith said he was not interested if Comiskey had any idea of getting both Joe Kuhel and Buddy Myer in a swap for Bonura and Bozie Berger, the former University of Maryland infielder.

Griffith, however, said he would talk turkey with the Sox in the slight contingency that they would take Kuhel in a straight swap for Bonura whose right-hand batting punch would aid the Griffmen.

Griffith said: "If Comiskey wants to talk business, it's his move to come to us, we dropped the deal flat after the winter meeting. If they want to put through a sensible trade, I'm willing to listen."

By Shirley Povich

A Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., March 9.—One disturbing note accompanies the development of the team that Bucky Harris will send into the 1938 pennant race. He fears that his Washington club may be too left-handed.

"I'd sleep better and breathe easier if six of our regulars weren't left-handed hitters," admitted Harris after permitting himself to discern a marked improvement in his club all down the line. "A good left-handed pitcher will have a terrific edge over our team. It was that way last year." And Harris sighed at the memory.

The Nat's manager wasn't exaggerating when he said that six of the nine men who would take the field would be southpaw swingers. The Nats' entire infield of Joe Kuhel, Buddy Myer, Cecil Travis and Buddy Lewis swing from the left side and the only other player apt to break into the group is Jimmy Wasdell, equally left-handed.

Two Fielders Left-Handed.

Two of the Nats' three regular outfielders are similarly southpaws. Johnny Stone and Mel Almada are fixtures and the right-handed hitting strength in the outfield must come from Al Simmon or the rookie George Washington Case. Hirris is plagued, too, by the fact that his only other outfield replacement is Taft Wright, another southpaw hitter.

Thus, excluding the pitcher, the only members of the Nats who will swing right-handed are Catcher Rick Ferrell and the right fielder, whoever he happens to be.

"They'll shoot their southpaws at us every chance they get," said Harris in a semimoan, "and I won't blame 'em. They'll be saving their left-handed pitchers for us, that's what hurts. Of course there are some fellows on our club that won't be bothered by southpaws, but there are others who will have a couple of strikes on 'em when they get up to the plate against a left-hander."

But Clark Griffith, who owns the ball club, refuses to be alarmed by the Nats' apparent vulnerability to left-handed pitching. "That's all bosh," said the Nats owner, "and I am tired of hearing it. A good hitter is a good hitter against any kind of pitching. Cecil Travis and Buddy Myer have never been bothered by southpaws and Johnny Stone has learned to like 'em."

Don't Like Southpaws.

Then the Nats' owner stopped short. Even he could not bring himself to declare that Buddy Lewis and Mel Almada and Joe Kuhel had any particular fondness for left-handed pitching.

Griffith, who in 26 years as boss of the Washington ball club has never admitted that he would have a poor team, is attempting to instill some enthusiasm for his 1938 club among the corps of correspondents here.

"Why, you fellows are going to be wrong, dead wrong, if you don't pick us to finish high up in the race.

Gehrig's Two Ambitions: To Get $40,000 This Season; to Play in 2,500 Games

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, March 9.—Lou (Two-Gun) Gehrig hopes to convince his boss he's worth $40,000 to the Yankees this season for the privilege, among others, of becoming the first and only ball player to engage in 2,000 consecutive games . . . Lou's "iron man" string now stands at 1,965 . . . His ultimate goal is 2,500 in a row, a mark which, if achieved, would carry his unbroken string into the 1941 season.

Other Gehrig arguments: He broke seven major league records last year and tied another . . . He's 35 years old this year and believes, all things considered, he's worth half what Babe Ruth was paid at that stage of the Bambino's career . . . Ruth got his peak salary of $80,000 in 1930-31.

Mike Jacobs made the unprecedented match between Feather Champion Henry Armstrong and Welter Champion Barney Ross after repeated failure to obtain Lou Ambers, the lightweight king, for a bout with "Homicide Henry" . . . Many a fighter has given away more poundage than Henry will concede to Barney, but no titleholder in fistic history ever stepped over one class completely to get a championship crack at another . . . If, for instance, Armstrong beats Ross, he will have Ambers surrounded . . . Bob Fitzsimmons held three ring titles, but he won them in this order: Middleweight, heavyweight and light heavyweight . . . and held only one at a time.

Army report: Lieut. Col. Ralph Sasse is now adjutant of the Thirteenth Cavalry (mechanized), stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., and insists he's through coaching football . . . Maj. Walter (Cappy) Wells, in town on way back to his Louisville post, promises to be out of trenches by Derby day . . . Cappy hopes to lure Biff Jones, the old artilleryman, from Lincoln and Maj. Phil Fleming from the Twin Cities for a reunion in Kentucky, May 7.

Many seasoned ringsiders regard Harry Mullins, Mississippi entry who won the New York Golden Gloves titles, as the coming heavyweight sensation . . . He's the best collegiate prospect for a pro career since New York U.'s Al Lassman, whose career was cut short by tragedy . . . Minnesota, Big Ten basketball runner-up, has tentatively agreed to make another Eastern invasion during the Christmas holiday season . . . Gophers helped pack Madison Square Garden twice this winter.

Apropos of Glenn Cunningham's phenomenal 4:04.4 for the mile on Dartmouth's big indoor track, Olympic Coach Lawson Robertson, of Pennsylvania, says: "I do not think Cunningham can do as well on the Princeton track as he has done on the boards . . . The boards are faster, and there is a little to be gained on the curves, because a miler can run closer than 1 foot from the border, if there is a border. In my opinion, the Los Angeles or even the Berlin (Olympic) track is faster than Princeton's."

Higher Cloud Takes Tropical Test With Fraidy Cat Far Back

Favorite Fails to Reach Money Circle as Denemark Horse Gallops Ahead of Double B. and Couleedam; Longden Rides $148.40 'Double.'

By the Associated Press.

Tropical Park, Fla., March 9.—Mrs. Emil Denemark's Higher Cloud, third to Sir Oracle and Preeminent in the opening-day feature here, came back to score a sparkling triumph in today's headliner, the Everglades Purse of 6 furlongs. With Paul Ryan, third leading rider of 1937, on his back, the Chicago-owned 5-year-old whisked home by three lengths in 1:11 2-5.

Weil & Lowenstein's Double B., veteran with an extreme liking for this strip, lasted to save second money by three-quarters of a length from T. D. Buhl's Couleedam.

H. P. Headley's Fraidy Cat, 11-to-10 favorite in the six horse field, failed to run back to his fine effort of last Monday, when he was a fast closing second behind the speedy Stubbs. The big black gelding found the early pace too much for him and dropped back to fifth place.

The sport again attracted a large crowd and typical sunny weather prevailed for the eight race card.

Higher Cloud, which seems to have overcome his bad manners at the post, rushed away from the stalls but could not shake off Double B. until after a quarter mile had been covered. He then bounded into a clear lead and increased his margin without being extended. Double B. was faltering in the closing strides but had enough left to hold the fast finishing Couleedam at bay.

Vitelio was a promising fourth.

Hirsch Jacobs, whose lucky charm seemed to have deserted him of late, flashed back into prominence when his wife's six-year-old plater, Epical, drove to a half length score in the six furlong opener. The son of Epinard was a $5.70 for two favorite and prevailed over 11 platers, including numerous paddock tips. The place went to Beaver Lake in a photo duel with Balcony, Johnny Longden broke Epical with the first flight and his mount gradually wore down the few in front of him. Balcony, the pacemaker, weakened in the last furlong and allowed Beaver Lake to nip her for second money.

Longden accomplished the unique feat of riding both winners in the Dailey Double combination, which paid $148.40 for two. The little Britisher followed up his success astride the favored Epical with a long shot score on Bahamas in the second race, the latter returning $33.10. Bahamas, a nine-year-old plater, came from lengths out of it to overtake another long shot, Two Tricks, in a photo finish. Exhort was beaten four lengths for the place. Rafter, which had not been to the post in almost a year, was a sluggish running choice.

Favorite players received a stunning setback in the third race of 5½ furlongs when Wise Fox, after breaking with the trailers and racing wide all the way, could only finish a game second to Time and Again, which clicked by three lengths. The latter was on top from end to end and returned $12.80. Wise Fox earned the place in the very last nod, nosing out the forward running My Pauline.

Jockey J. Cartwright, who rode My Pauline, was suspended ten days for crossing the field at the start. My Pauline had the outside position.

The Jacobs silks flew victoriously for the second time during the day when Sweet Patrice, a $3.50 for $2 favorite, made a show of the other 2-year-olds in the 4-furlong fourth event. The daughter of Halycon was much too speedy for her rivals and never faltered, stretching her lead to four lengths at the wire while finishing in 0:47 3-5. Modest Queen always was second, although she tired and held a scant margin over Kate Smith.

Little Jock, a $51.10 for two shot, won the sixth race in a blanket finish and it was an excited little rider that booted the gelding home. Ricardo Donoso, a Cuban lad who speaks no English, was astride the almost neglected plater. Four horses finished heads apart, with Escohigh, Tutti Curio and Absconder behind the winner. Grand Duke, winner of his last two starts but a bad-legged campaigner, broke slowly and failed to beat a horse home in the role of favorite.

Stagehand and 102 Are Named for Derby

Nedayr, Tiger, Fighting Fox, Teddy's Comet and Menow Among 77 Colts, 23 Geldings and 3 Fillies Nominated for Classic May 7.

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., March 9.—There are 103 of them named to run, but the important thing is not "how many," but "which ones," and all the latter might find there in the list that Col. Matt Winn put out before the public this fair day.

Yes, it's the Kentucky Derby list that comes along this time every year, be there dark skies and devastating floods in Derbytown, or bright sunshine like this glorious 1938. But to relieve the anxiety, lest it reach fever heat before May 7, there in the neat little "Derby booklet" are such names as Stagehand, Fighting Fox, Nedayr, Menow and Tiger, Dauber, Mountain Ridge and Teddy's Comet.

There are also some more which may make any one of the early choices stretch out for all they are worth before the old Churchill Downs mile and a quarter is traversed for the sixty-fourth time by some 15 or 20 of those named today.

No thoroughbred that amounted to anything as a 2-year-old and none that has done anything in early 1938 racing is missing. There's one big jolt to the Kentucky hardboots that all the Nation will feel more or less. Col. E. R. Bradley, only owner who has won four Derbies, hasn't anything to offer this year. The veteran master of Idle Hour Farm didn't possess any "likely looking" juvenile last year, so he just didn't try any "make believe."

Among the outstanding nominees, of course, is Stagehand, winner of this year's $50,000 Santa Anita Derby and $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, trained by the famous Earl Sande and owned by Maxwell Howard; W. S. Kilmer's Nedayr, last season's Pimlico Futurity winner; Milky Way Farm's Tiger and Mountain Ridge; William Woodward's Fighting Fox, full brother to Gallant Fox, the 1930 Derby topnotcher; E. F. Woodward's Teddy's Comet, and Hal Price Headley's Menow, despite its troublesome leg of last summer.

There can be many a mishap between now and May, and occasionally some thoroughbred that didn't quite set the turf world afire as a 2-year-old comes along in his third year training in championship fashion. Among these possibilities are Dauber, named by William duPont, jr.'s Foxcatcher Farms, and Can't Wait, Bull Lea, Lawrin, Bourbon King, Legal Light, Benjam, Pasteurized, Spillway, Knee Deep, Lassator, Fairflax, Redbreast, Cravat, Sun Egret and Dah He. And then there's a long shot named Gov. Chandler, sired by Reigh Count, the 1928 Winner, and named after Kentucky's young Governor, who has entered himself in a red hot political derby against this State's senior United States Senator.

Olympic Committee Will Back Japan as Site of 1940 Games

Meeting Opens in Cairo Today With King Farouk Giving Opening Speech—Norway Will Battle for Olympic Winter Games.

By the United Press.

Cairo, Egypt, March 9.—The ten-day annual meeting of the international Olympic committee opens tomorrow and, from opinions of the delegates who have arrived in Cairo, it seemed tonight that a majority favored holding the 1940 games in Tokyo.

Many of the delegates, including Avery Brundage, William May Garland and Frederic Coudert, of the United States, and Count Henri Baillet-Letour, president of the international body, frowned on the suggestion that the games be canceled because of present Far Eastern hostilities.

They believed the only way Japan could lose the games would be to give them up voluntarily, and there were no indications tonight that the Japanese delegation of nine planned to advance such a proposal.

On the contrary, it was believed the Japanese were prepared to fight to the limit to keep the games, advancing concrete proof that Tokyo will be ready for them by 1940 despite the present war in China.

The inaugural meeting will be held in the royal opera house with King Farouk opening the session with a speech. Over the 10-day period, eight meetings are planned. Friday night the delegates entrain for Assouan, Egypt, where they will board a special Nile steamer and sail back to Cairo, arriving there on March 19.

On the 12-point agenda there is no provision for discussion of whether the games will be held in Japan. That question was settled in 1936 at Berlin when Tokyo was awarded the twelfth Olympiad. However, it was certain the question would come up and no one knew exactly how it would be received or disposed of tonight.

A major skirmish was expected to develop, however, over the winter games. Japan was awarded them tentatively and now definitely wants them for Sapporo, 1,000 miles north of Tokyo. Norway, however, also wants to play host for those games and the site will be put to a vote.

Other points on the agenda include modifications of the charter, fixing an exact program for the Tokyo games, considering candidacies for the 1944 games, and considering a report of special committee on amateurism, which includes the question of payments to athletes for salaries lost while competing.

The question of the date for the 1940 games also is expected to provoke a heated debate.

Bonura Deal Is Exploded

This team has something it didn't have last year—good pitching, a great second baseman and more speed. I look for it to be a contender all the way.

"The way it's shaping up reminds me of my 1933 team. A sprinkling of veterans and good young ball players, with a pitching staff that figures to hold up. Those two young left-handers, Chase and Krakaukas, will mean the difference in at least 15 games."

Today's arrivals brought t[illegible]'s' squad to full strength. The [illegible]d is complete with the presenc[illegible] of Cecil Travis and Buddy Lewis and Utility Infielder Johnny Mihalic. Mel Almada's arrival completes the outfield contingent.

Lewis still looks like a fugitive from a prep school. Entering his third season as a big league regular at the age of 21, the prize third baseman, who hit .314 last year, is a 185-pounder this season.

Travis was the only member of the most recent arrivals to appear in uniform today, the others reaching camp too late for the morning practice. The photographers supervised Travis' workout at shortstop.

For eight days Mel Almada has been attempting to reach the Nats' camp. He was delayed two days by the flood at Suscon, Ariz., after succeeding in getting away from water-ridden Los Angeles. He has come East with tales of hunting big game and chichi beans in his native Mexico.

Wes Ferrell took the mound in batting practice today for the first time. He worked easily and Manager Harris is still curious about the speed of the Ferrell fast ball.

'Grid Relay' at C. U. Track Meet Has Coaches Excited

Something new under the sun—a football relay—will be included among the 8 events listed for the renewal of the annual Catholic University Indoor Games, scheduled for Brookland Saturday night.

Accredited to the imaginative mind of Tommy Whelan, former gridiron great of the Cardinal backfield, a special event will see relay teams from the varsity elevens of the five local colleges vie for speed supremacy on the wooden track.

Although it started out to be nothing more than an added attraction to enliven the proceedings, importance of the outcome has suddenly been realized by the respective football coaches in the city until they now are quite nervous about the whole thing.

Messrs. Reinhart, Hagerty, Dobson, Welch and Bergman realize that it would mean a great deal to present the speediest quartet of gridmen before a crowd expected to exceed 2,000 persons.

Reinhart has kept his starting team a secret, refusing to name a line-up until he has had a chance to see his candidates in action on the boards. Last night he took them over to C. U. and behind closed doors put several men through a workout. He is expected to do the same tonight before submitting names.

Because the track is narrow, the race will be run in two heats. Catholic University, American and Georgetown will run in the first heat, with George Washington and Maryland meeting in the other.

Jim Meade, Charlie Weidinger, Blair Smith and Mike Surgent will represent Maryland, while Catholic University is depending on Irish Carroll, Bud Munhall, Vic Miller and Joe Guyon or Luke Vidnovic.

Reinhart is expected to select his Colonial team from among Vic Sampson, Bob Nowaskey, Bob Faris, Izzy Weinberg, Allan Hall and Al Harrington. American will be represented by Emerson Barlett, Jack Murphy, Hugo Schultze and Hal Toner, while Georgetown's team is expected to be Tony Barabas, Elmer Moulin, Lewis Shuker and Tom Keating or Joe Mellendeck.

At the start, every contestant will hold the football in his teeth while making a runners' orthodox crouching start. That will give him both hands free for blocking and holding. Each member of the team will run one lap before passing (either forward, laterally or by handing) to the next man inside a 20-foot lane.

It sounds good!

The feature event of the high and prep school division will bring together ten of the fastest schoolboy quartets in Philadelphia, Baltimore and the metropolitan Washington area.

The Baltimore Poly four won in the good time of 3 minutes 58 seconds in the Fifth Regiment-Maryland games last Saturday night, and in the Penn Athletic Club games in Philadelphia, the West Catholic quartet set up the same time to defeat St. Thomas More High and Northeast Catholic.

Roosevelt also won a mile relay in Baltimore, and should give the out-of-town teams stiff competition. The dark horse team will be Washington-Lee, of Ballston, with the versatile Jimmy Milks running anchor and the other teams will need plenty of lead when he takes the stick.

Boys Club of Washington Quint Eyes Post-A.A.U. 145-Lb. Crown

John Jankowski Has Formidable Squad—Schulman and Connolly Among Team Stars.

A leading contender in the 145-pound class of the eleventh annual Post-A. A. U. basketball championships, which open March 17, will be the Boys Club of Washington Fleetwings who have won titles in the 100, 115 and 130-pound classes in the last three events.

This year the Fleetwings are gunning for a fourth straight crown and plan to gain it in the 145-pound division which annually draws some of the toughest outfits in the city. Most of the high school players weigh in at about that figure.

"We may not win it this year," he said, "but next year look out."

However, from the tone of his voice it would not be amiss to believe that "Jan," as his boys call him, expects the title to be won in the current tournament. He has gathered together a formidable squad which, although it includes few scholastic stars, is a strong, well-knit unit.

It does not lack well-known court figures, for on its roster are Sydney Schulman, of Tech, who received honorable mention on The Post's All-High team this year, and Jerry Connolly, Gonzaga's fleet little forward.

Jerry Zanllotti is good enough to play unlimited ball in the opinion of many boys' club coaches. Zanllotti has been the Fleetwings' high scorer to date, averaging approximately 11 points a game. He holds down one forward position and Pete Marshall takes care of the other.

Pairing with Schulman at guard is Mel Shoebridge, Sam Kligman, a stringbean newcomer, is the center, and a boy that Jankowski thinks will determine the success or failure of the Fleetwings in The Post tournament.

Standing 6 feet 2 inches, Kligman is the tallest member of the squad.

Besides these youngsters, the Fleetwings also will enter Charley Young and Lou Rados, a member of this year's Tech junior varsity team; Franny Collins, a teammate of Connolly's at Gonzaga, was expected to play, but will not be available because of an emergency appendectomy which was performed on him Saturday at Sibley Hospital. Although he will not have recovered in time to participate in the tournament, Collins is reported to be well on the road to recovery.

The A. A. U. basketball committee urges all teams to return their entries to the Boys Club of Washington as soon as possible. Entries positively close midnight, Monday, March 17, and none will be accepted after that date.

Berg-Vare Finals Seen

Favorites Advance in Belleair Golf.

By the Associated Press.

Belleair, Fla., March 9.—The gallery speculated on a Patty Berg-Glenna Collett Vare final in the Belleair women's Open Golf Tournament after today's quarter-final matches, but both players had a hard path to gain the title deciding round.

At the top of her game, Marian Miley, the medalist, of Fort Pierce, Fla., blazed around the course in 76, four under women's par to defeat Mrs. Jane Cothran Jameson, West Palm Beach, 2 and 1, and earn the right to meet Mrs. Vare in tomorrow's semi-final.

Mrs. Vare had a comparatively easy time eliminating Sally Guth, Webster Groves, Mo., 2 and 1.

Miss Berg, who coasted to a victory today over Dorothy Traung, of San Francisco, the defending champion, 4 and 2, meets Bernice Wall, of Oshkosh, Wis., in the other semifinal tomorrow. Miss Wall, also in rare form, fought a thrilling battle with Marian McDougall, Portland, Oreg., winning on the twentieth hole.

The Miley-Jameson match brought the day's highlight. After losing the first two holes, Mrs. Jameson halved the next three in even pars, but saw her opponent go 3 up with a birdie 4 on the difficult sixth, and then increase the margin to 4 up with another birdie, a fine 2 on the short eighth.

Mrs. Jameson reduced the lead to 3 when she carded a birdie 4 on the ninth, where Miss Miley went out of bounds and needed a 6.

They halved the first two incoming holes in par, but Miss Miley went back into a 4-lead with a par 3 at the twelfth, Mrs. Jameson's birdie 3 at the thirteenth and par 6 at the long sixteenth cut Miss Miley's lead to 2, but the latter steadied on the seventeenth, to close out the match.

Griffith to Ban Golf Next Week; P.S.—He Will Play

Orlando, Fla., March 9.—The ban on golf will go into effect at the Nats' camp next week. A heavy fine will face the Washington player who ventures out to the links.

For the past two weeks Orlando's two courses have been overrun with ball-playing golfers, but Owner Clark Griffith and Manager Bucky Harris are of the same mind in barring the game.

"The golf swing is harmful to the baseball swing," said Griffith. It's too different. Translate the golf swing into baseball and what do you have? A pop-up, that's what," said Griffith answering his own question. "Golf and baseball don't go together."

over Walter Millies, who was last-year's stop gap. Millies was a fair hitter, but he had one slight drawback. He couldn't catch very well. Young Livingston may not powder big league pitching but Harris has the consolation that the rookie is a pretty swell actor behind the plate. He can catch.

If I seem to be working up a case for the Nats, that's all right, too. For some time now, haunted by the possibilities of the Washington Club, I've been wanting to get a piece like this off my chest.

Detton and Chief Thunderbird To Clash Tonight on Arena Mat

Salt Lake City Wrestler, Undefeated in His Local Campaign, Will Meet Indian.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Dean Detton, Salt Lake City's most famous contribution to professional wrestling, will try to take the thunder out of Chief Thunderbird, the popular British Columbia Indian, tonight at Turner's Arena in the headline match.

Unbeaten in his local mat campaign, and with only two defeats at the hands of Bronko Nagurski, the recognized champion, marring his record, Detton will be facing one of the most formidable Redskin grapplers to perform here since Chief Little Wolf came out of the West.

The match will have an hour-and-one-half time limit.

One of the two must fall from the ranks of the unbeaten, as Thunderbird, since invading this section the latter part of last summer, has won eight matches and drawn in two others.

Detton, a formre all-round athlete at Utah State, lost his title last June to Nagurski and lost again to the Nag in a return match in Los Angeles, but Detton has informed Promoter Turner he isn't through with Nagurski, and if he gets by Thunderbird tonight, will demand a shot at the champion.

Detton won his crown two years ago in an elimination tournament, finally taking the title from Dave Levin.

Thunderbird also is in the market for the championship, and in Philadelphia recently demanded that the commission match him against Nagurski. Hailing from the Saanich Tribe, a versatile athlete while at Cushman School in Takoma, Thunderbird weighs 215 pounds, and stands 6 feet.

In the semiwindup, Ram Singh, the Hindu, goes after his sixth straight against Dick Daviscourt, California.

First bout is at 8:30.

Champion Is Negotiating With Promoter; Rankings Are Due Soon.

There were two interesting developments yesterday along the local fistic front in connection with next Monday night's ten-round fight between Saverio Turiello, the Italian challenger, and Andre Jessurun, New Yorker, at Turner's Arena.

Sam Pian, Barney Ross' manager, talking over long distance from Chicago with Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn, asked Ahearn if he had a place large enough for a Ross match either late this month or early in April.

Reinie Miller, secretary of the District Boxing Commission, announced that the winner of the Turiello-Jessurun scrap would be ranked No. 2 on the welterweight ladder by the National Boxing Association ranking board. The rankings, Miller said, would be released a few days after the Monday match. Joe Maloney, of Trenton, and Jimmy Blake, of Richmond, members of the board, will attend the fight.

Champion Ross announced that he would sharpen up in at least two nontitle engagements before meeting Henry Armstrong in New York, May 26, and offered Ahearn one of the bouts. The local matchmaker, literally tearing his hair, told Ross' manager, Pian, his arena seated only 2,300.

Pian also talked with Ahearn along the lines of a title bout between Ross and either Turiello or Jessurum early in the summer at Griffith Stadium, and Ross' pilot seemed favorable, Ahearn said.

Only one other fighter will be ranked between the Turiello-Jessurun winner and the champion. He is Ceferino Garcia, who lost to Barney on the carnival of champions' card.

Turiello at present is ranked No. 3, with Jessurun, on the strength of his victory over Frankie Blair (now ranked No. 2), having crowded out Blair.

Wheat Prices Decline With Rain Reports

Failure of Liverpool to Advance Is Factor.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 9.—Eclipsing season low-price records, the Chicago wheat market plunged downward 2¼ cents today, largely owing to widespread beneficial rains Southwest, the best in weeks.

In addition to timely general moisture for Kansas and Oklahoma in particular, disappointing action of the Liverpool wheat market gave impetus to downturns of values here. Quotations at Liverpool were due 1 cent to 1¼ cents higher, but yesterday's late advances in Chicago were ignored abroad, and the Liverpool market closed today at material net losses.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1⅞@2¼ cents under yesterday's finish; May, 88⅛@88¼; July, 83⅞@83⅞; corn, ⅛@⅞ off; May, 58⅞; July, 66¾; oats unchanged to ⅛ lower; rye, 1¼@1⅝ down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7 cents.

Brazil Coffee Burned Almost Equals Exports

New York, March 9.—Brazil, during the last half of February, burned 316,000 bags of coffee, cables to the New York Coffee Exchange disclose. This compares with 408,000 bags destroyed the first half of that month and brings the total for this crop year, or since July 1, 1937, to 11,073,000 bags.

The grand total since the program of destroying surpluses started, in 1931, is computed at 88,554,000 bags, enough coffee to more than fill the coffee cups of the world for over two years, in fact, just 144,000 bags short of Brazil's total exports to all points for the four years ended July 1, 1937, 59,598,000 bags.

The market opened about steady but prices turned steadier by the end of the first hour on a little foreign, trade and scattered buying. In mid-afternoon the list reacted to a point or so below the previous close when the Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced it will be impossible for a producer to obtain any cotton price adjustment payment by surrendering title to his loan cotton earlier than he would receive payment under the old program.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Rail Stocks Drop in Face of Freight Rate Increases; Francs Slip; Wheat Declines.

New York, March 9.—Stocks were mixed in the industrial sections on the continued doubts over the immediate future of business, and prices for railroad stocks declined as an answer to the small increase in freight rates authorized late yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Last prices were near the poorest. Stock sales were around 600,000 shares. United States Government bonds were firmer. French francs again fell sharply. May wheat closed 2 cents lower at 88¼ cents a bushel.

Response of the stock market to the increase in railroad freight rates granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, to take effect within the next ten days, was disappointing to many who had hoped to see a lively advance. Reasons for the lack of enthusiasm shown by stocks, including the railroad issues, were not difficult to uncover. For one thing the decision has been so long in coming that it had lost all its element of surprise. For another, the increases were, on the whole, less than had been expected, since a maximum of 10 per cent was granted on some commodities, only 5 per cent on other, and certain others were left out entirely. It was estimated that the blanket effect on revenue would be an increase of 5 per cent on freight carried.

Actually the amount to be realized in gross revenue promises to be much less than was taken in at the time the railroads made their request for higher rates last summer. That is because in the meantime freight traffic has fallen sharply. The decline in business activity has in effect washed away the benefits from higher rates in so far as giving the railroads spending power is concerned. It is unlikely that much new equipment buying will take place on the basis of the higher rates, in spite of the fact that most of the rise in gross revenues will go directly into net income.

While the rate increase scarcely will do much for stockholders, it may indeed help to keep solvent a number of roads that are having difficulty meeting bond interest. Life may be prolonged until better times appear. Another favorable factor is that, because the rates apply to steel and certain other heavy products, consumers generally may seek to secure goods before the higher rates take effect.

Rails Slip.

Rail stocks opened fractionally lower, but improved gradually during the first hour or so. Shortly after noon, however, selling again broke out and most issues slipped below their opening prices. New York Central opened three-eighths lower at 16¾ on a block of 1,500 shares, recovered to 17½ and during the final hour was quoted slightly above 16. Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and Southern Railway were fractionally higher in the forenoon but in the last hour most of them were below their previous closings. These stocks made up a large percentage of the day's moderate dealings.

The steels were unable to hold early gains of a point or so. United States and Bethlehem were off large fractions near the close. Inland ran against the trend with a two-point advance. Railway equipments were mostly higher, while motors yielded morning gains of a point or more. Elsewhere throughout the list stocks varied little from their previous closings.

Electricity Output.

At first glance the weekly statement of electric power output suggests that the protracted decline has been arrested, as the figure in the week ended March 5 was a fraction of 1 per cent above the previous week. This hopeful inference is destroyed when it is recalled that a holiday came in the last week of February. Allowing for that suspension of industrial activity, the trend was probably just as sharply downward as it had been since the beginning of the year. The domestic load is increasing steadily, as it did during most of the 1930-35 period, and that type of service takes a relatively high rate, but the offset against loss of industrial consumption is small.

Foreign View.

So far as foreign markets are concerned the Whitney failure seems to have only momentary effect. A survey made today disclosed that little money had been withdrawn from either banks or brokerage firms for repatriation. So far as the exchange market was concerned, what little money was taken home probably was transferred into sterling yesterday. Today the pound moved down and the market was wholly preoccupied with the French situation, although more as an observer without much financial stake in France.

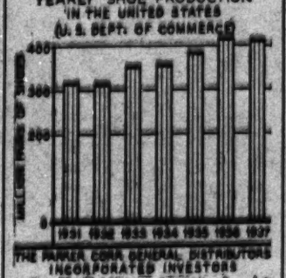
Francs.

Francs resumed their slide to the lowest figure in 12 years. When a French premier feels obliged to say that funds raised for national defense should be put into an autonomous fund to obviate any danger of the money being used by the Treasury for other purposes (meaning the deficit) it merely emphasizes how serious the French financial plight is. French correspondents of New York banks seem to feel that the franc may continue to be influenced by many developments, none of them helpful to France. The franc market today received intermittent support from the French stabilization fund, and possibly from the American fund. Evidently the support has not been persistent enough to cost the French fund all its gold and foreign assets.

Carloadings.

After declining for three successive weeks, railroad freight traffic last week perked up somewhat but the level still is well below the like week of the previous year. The Sun estimates that carloadings were 6.7 per cent better than the week ended February 26 and 29.7 per cent lower than the like week of 1937. There should be some pickup next week due to shipments before the new rate increase but loadings will not show any substantial improvement until the general run of business comes out of the doldrums.

1937 Shoe Output Near All-Time Peak



Boston, Mass., March 9.—An all-time yearly record was made in shoe production in 1936, with a next-to-record output in 1937, which lagged only 1 per cent behind the 1936 peak. Low prices, together with consistent national and local advertising, are the forces which have boosted sales.

D. C. Bankers Announce Plan For '38 Contest

Trip to Annual Convention and $50 Cash Among the Prizes.

The appointment of the 1938 essay contest committee of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, with Aubrey O. Dooley, assistant trust officer, Hamilton National Bank, as chairman, and H. H. McKee, president, National Capital Bank; C. H. Pope, vice president treasurer, Munsey Trust Co.; I. J. Roberts, assistant cashier, Riggs National Bank, and James A. Soper, vice president and cashier, Lincoln National Bank, other members were recently announced.

The committee has selected the following topics for this year's contest:

Group 1—"Merchandising Bank Service."

Group 2—"The Banker as an Economical and Social Factor" or as restated, "The Banker's Place in the Community."

Under new rules which have been put into effect for this year's contest, there will be two classes of contestants, one for bank employes and one for junior officers. The contest is open to all members of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, in good standing on April 1, 1938, who are employes of banks which are members of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, except senior executive officers of banks and trust companies, and individuals who have been winners in any two previous contests. Senior officers who are ineligible include those with the rank of cashier, treasurer, secretary, trust officer and higher.

A first and second prize are to be awarded to the two persons in each class, who, in the opinion of the judges appointed by the association, prepare the best papers in their respective classes. The first prize in each class will be a trip, at the expense of the contestant's bank, to the convention of the association, to be held June 9 to 12 at Hot Springs, Va. The second prize in each class will be a cash one of $50, to be paid by the contestant's bank. The judges will also give "honorable mention" to two such additional papers as in their judgment are the most meritorious.

Argentine Wheat Crop 184,047,000 Bushels

The second official estimate of the Argentine Ministry of Agriculture places the 1937-38 wheat crop at 184,047,000 bushels, flaxseed at 39,949,000 bushels, oats at 47,537,000 bushels, barley at 23,699,000 bushels, and rye at 3,582,000 bushels, according to information received by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics from its Buenos Aires offices.

These estimates show a substantial reduction for all crops listed, not only compared with last year's output, but also with the average quantities harvested during the five years ended with 1935-36.

Bob Burns Says—

The influence that Hollywood has over the rest of the world ain't just through its pictures alone. The boys who write the advertisements for these pictures deserve some credit.

The other day I ordered some large oranges and when the boy brought 'em, they was little-bitty, scrawny lookin' things and I says "Are these the largest you have?"

The boy says "Oh, no—they're just the large oranges. We also have the mammoth, giant, jumbo, gigantic, colossal and super-colossal sizes!"

Gate Crasher Fails To Impress Court In Shooting Case

Some question as to which was the more injured party in an assault case resulted in the dismissal of the case in Police Court yesterday.

Walter J. Butler, colored, 27, of the second block of Third street southwest, was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon in connection with the shooting of Roscoe Frazier, colored, 25, of 824 Twelfth street northeast. The affray occurred February 22 in front of 326 Third street southwest, police said.

On the witness stand, Frazier explained he had been drinking and had tried to "crash" a dance being given by Butler. After being thrown out once, he returned with a brick in each hand. Butler, he said, intercepted him, hit him with one of the bricks and shot him twice.

Judge Edward M. Curran ordered the case dismissed.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Efrem Kurtz conducts the National Symphony Orchestra in a joint performance with Col. W. de Basil's Ballets Russes de Monte Carlo in Constitution Hall. Program: "Les Dieux Mendiants" (choreography by David Lichin, music by George Frederick Handel), "Francesca da Rimini" (Choreography by David Lichin, music by Piotr Chaikovski); "Le Spectre de la Rose" (choreography by Mikhail Fokin, music by Carl Maria von Weber); "Danses Slaves et Tziganes" (choreography by Bronislava Nizhinska, music by Aleksandr Dargomizhski).

A capacity house witnessed, enjoyed and enthusiastically applauded the second joint performance of the National Symphony Orchestra and the Ballets Russes de Monte Carlo last night in Constitution Hall. The unqualified success of the two-day engagement, following the highly satisfactory outcome of last season's experiment, would make it seem that the National Symphony is in the process of establishing an annual custom. If this prospect is pleasing to balletomanes and music lovers, it behooves them all to see to it that the campaign for the orchestra's sustaining fund for next season is carried to a triumphant conclusion.

David Lichin, previously seen as an admirable artist of the dance, came to the fore last evening as a choreographer, for the first two ballets on the program were of his designing and had their premieres in London during the coronation season. "Les Dieux Mendiants" proved to be a delightful version of Sobeka's pastorale, in which two Olympian divinities disguise themselves as a serving maid and a shepherd, and mingle with mortals at a "fete champetre"—the sixteenth century French equivalent for a picnic. Tatiana Riabushenska and Yurek Shabelevski were the principals in the mimed story, which had the charm of an old fashion.

In keeping with the music of Handel, selected and arranged by Sir Thomas Beecham, the costuming of the nobles and their ladies was in the mode of the composer's day, with a note of fancy in the plumed and furred garb of four Ethiopian mummers whose antics diverted the merrymakers. In all its details the choreography was unified and consistent, and to effect was that of authenticity.

No such consistency was to be found in Lichin's treatment of Chaikovski's symphonic fantasia, "Francesca da Rimini." It will be remembered that this music was inspired by that fearsome canto of Dante's "Inferno," in which the explorer of hell sees countless pairs of lost souls borne upon a mighty wind, notes among them Paola and Francesca, and hears their piteous tale. Obviously this scene can be depicted only in music or by the graphic pen of a Gustave Dore.

Lichin has attempted to cabin the music within the limits of two dramatic episodes in the earthly existence of the lovers, and it refuses to be thus confined. Moreover, there is too much intrusion of the fantastic and the grotesque upon the dignity of the tragedy. The first episode verges at times closely on the ludicrous, so confused is the action and so erratic the miming. In the second scene, where the lovers are reading a romance of chivalry, the invasion of Botticellian nymphs and a Lancelot and Guinevere resembling Hector and Andromache, is meant to represent a vision induced by the reading, but it does not have precisely that effect upon the spectator.
